§ 361.21 Scope. * * *.

(a) Payment in full and refinancing. * * *

(3) Insured note. Payment in full and refinancing when the Government is named in the mortgage as the mortgagee and the lender holds the note. (In case the note is held by the insurance fund, payment in full and refinancing will be handled in accordance with Part 366 of this chapter.)

§ 361.22 General. * * *

(f) Special provisions for loan in connection with sale (transfer) of farm within program. When a new insured loan is made in connection with the sale (transfer) of a farm within the program to another insured Farm Ownership loan applicant, the following requirements will be observed:

(1) The transfer of ownership of an insured Farm Ownership borrower's farm to another eligible applicant will be accomplished by making a new insured loan to the new borrower and refinancing the old borrower's loan.

(2) Title clearance will be accomplished in accordance with the method prescribed by the loan approval official with the advice of the Attorney in Charge. The applicable provisions of Subpart A of Part 307 of this chapter will be followed insofar as practicable, except that the loan will be closed in accordance with instructions from the Attorney in Charge.

(3) A loan docket, including an option from the old borrower, will be prepared for the new borrower as in the case of an initial insured loan. The new borrower will pay the usual appraisal fee. Loan limitations will apply as in the case of an initial insured loan.

(4) The new borrower will be required to pay an initial loan insurance charge from the date his insured loan is closed to the next January 1. The charge must be paid by the new borrower even though the old borrower has paid a loan insurance charge covering the same period.

(5) On or before the date of loan closing, the new borrower will be required to deposit in a supervised bank account a down payment of not less than the amount required in the case of an initial insured loan to an applicant to purchase a farm.

3. The introductory paragraph of § 361.23, Title 6, Code of Federal Regulations (21 F. R. 5556) is revised to provide that a loan to a new borrower in connection with the sale (transfer) of a farm within the program will be processed in accordance with § 361.22 (f), and to read as follows:

The funds for final payment in such cases will be processed through the Finance Office. The County Supervisor is authorized to approve all of the above transactions except that involving the proceeds from the sale (transfer) of a farm within the program when a new lender furnishes the funds, in which case the loan approval official is authorized to approve the transaction and the loan to the new borrower will be processed in accordance with § 361.22 (f). In such case, the loan check for the new borrower in the full amount of the new borrower's promissory note will be requested from the new lender in the same manner as for an initial insured Farm Ownership loan, and upon receipt of such loan check, final payment and satisfaction of the old borrower's loan will be handled as provided in this section except as may be modified by the closing instructions from the Attorney in Charge.

4. Section 361.25, Title 6, Code of Federal Regulations (21 F. R. 5558) is revised to conform it to the revision of § 361.22 (f), and to read as follows:

§ 361.25 Payment in full by sale (transfer) of farm within the program to new applicant obtaining an insured Farm Ownership loan from holder. This section applies when an insured Farm Ownership borrower sells his farm to an eligible applicant who obtains an insured loan from the holder in an amount not less than the outstanding balance due on the insured note account. The loan to the new borrower will be processed in accordance with § 361.22 (f) and the provisions of this section.

(a) General. Final payment of the old borrower's note account will be accomplished by exchanging the new borrower's promissory note for the promissory note, and, when applicable, the mortgage of the old borrower, and additional funds, if any. Since no funds are involved in final payment of the note account, only the collection of any amount owed the loan insurance account will be transmitted to the Finance Office.

(b) Determining balance of indebtedness and collection of loan insurance account. Upon receipt of Form FHA–835, the County Supervisor will compute the amount necessary to pay the old borrower's note account in full and any balance due on his loan insurance account as of the date of closing the new insured loan. On or before closing the new insured loan, the County Supervisor will collect from the old borrower the full amount, if any, he owes the loan insurance account. A separate receipt will be used for such payment from the old borrower, and a notation will be made on the receipt that a sale of the farm to an insured loan applicant is in process.

(c) Actions prior to closing. Upon approval of the loan to the new borrower, the holder will be informed by the State Director that, upon closing of the insured loan, the new borrower's note will be sent to him to be substituted for the old borrower's promissory note and that a check for the additional advance, if any, will be requested from him at that time. If the holder does not desire to proceed with the transaction, the County Supervisor will be so informed, and the sale (transfer) of the farm within the program will be completed by having a new lender furnish the funds for making the new insured loan. (See § 361.23.)

(d) Loan closing actions. When additional funds are to be advanced to the new borrower, the loan will be closed before the County Supervisor requests the loan check for the new borrower in the amount of such additional funds.

(1) The County Supervisor will calculate the unpaid balance of principal and interest on the old borrower's promissory note as of the date the insured loan to the new borrower is closed. The difference, if any, between such unpaid balance on the old borrower's promissory note and the amount of the new borrower's promissory note will be the amount of the loan check to be requested from the holder. Form FHA–971, "Request for Check," will be used to request such loan check.

(2) The County Supervisor will send to the State Director Form FHA–993, the new borrower's promissory note, and, when appropriate, Form FHA–971 modified to fit the circumstances, with an explanatory attachment.

(3) The State Director will deliver to the holder the original and two copies of the partially completed form FHA–993, the original of the new borrower's promissory note, and, when appropriate, the original of Form FHA–971 with the explanatory attachment. Form FHA–971 will be attested as in the case of an initial insured FO loan. The State Director will inform the holder of the amount of the unpaid balance of principal and interest on the old borrower's promissory note as of the date of closing the insured loan for the new borrower, which will be the date of final payment shown on Form FHA–993. The State Director will request that, if such amount is in agreement with the holder's records, the holder should execute the original and one copy of Form FHA–993, and return to the appropriate County Supervisor the executed original and copy of Form FHA–993, together with the canceled promissory note of the old borrower. If the lender holds the old mortgage, the State Director also will request the holder to return to the County Supervisor the mortgage and appropriate instrument of satisfaction or release of the mortgage. If the amount of the new borrower's promissory note is in excess of the unpaid balance of principal and interest on the old borrower's promissory note, the State Director will request the holder to send a check to the County Supervisor drawn to the order of the new borrower in the amount of the difference as specified on Form FHA–971.

(4) On the date of loan closing, the County Supervisor will collect from the new borrower the appraisal fee and the initial loan insurance charge and will transmit these collections to the Finance Office in the usual manner. When the executed Form FHA–993 is received from the holder it will be sent to the Finance Office.

(e) Final actions on old borrower's account—(1) Finance Office action. Upon receipt of the executed Form FHA–993, the Finance Office will determine if the full amount owed the loan insurance account of the old borrower has been paid, and, if paid, the Director, Finance Office, will sign Section II of Form FHA–993. Finance Office records on the old borrower will be satisfied as a paid-in-full account.

(2) County Office action. After the satisfaction or release and, when appropriate, Form FHA–366 have been recorded, the County Supervisor will deliver to the old borrower the canceled promissory note, the satisfied real estate mortgage, the instrument of satisfaction or release of the mortgage and, when appropriate, Form FHA–366.

Subchapter G—Miscellaneous Regulations

[FHA Instruction 444.1]

PART 383—FARM HOUSING LOANS

MISCELLANEOUS AMENDMENTS

1. Section 383.3 (a) (5), Title 6, Code of Federal Regulations (21 F. R. 3477), is amended to make it clear that personal farming experience is not necessary for a borrower who is a nonoperating owner, and to read as follows:

§ 383.3 Qualification for Farm Housing loan—(a) Applicant. • • •

(5) Possess the character, ability, and experience necessary to carry out successfully the farming operations, either personally or through an agent or tenant, and satisfy the County Committee and loan approval official that he will endeavor honestly to carry out the undertakings and obligations required of him in connection with the Farm Housing loan.

2. Section 383.6, Title 6, Code of Federal Regulations (21 F. R. 3479), is amended by the insertion of a new paragraph providing for supervisory assistance for all Farm Housing borrowers. Paragraphs (a), (b) and (c) are renumbered as (b), (c), and (d), a new paragraph (a) is added and the paragraph formerly designated (d) is redesignated (e) and revised. The revisions read as follows:

§ 383.6 Special requirements—(a) Supervisory assistance. All Farm Housing borrowers will receive supervisory assistance to the extent necessary to assure the success of the borrower's farming operation and the protection of the Government's interest; except that supervisory assistance will not be extended to tenants on borrowers' farms, Farm Housing borrowers will receive supervisory assistance in developing annual farm and home plans for the first full crop year (including an interim plan, if necessary). They also will receive such additional supervisory assistance as necessary to accomplish the objectives of the loan, including farm and home visits and assistance in keeping records. Supervisory assistance in developing farm and home plans may be discontinued after the first full crop year when the County Supervisor determines that such assistance is no longer needed to accomplish the objectives of the loan. After assistance in the preparation of farm and home plans is discontinued, the County Supervisor will service each loan to the extent necessary to assure that (1) security is being maintained properly, (2) acceptable farming practices are being followed, and (3) the maturities on Farmers Home Administration debts and other debts secured by other prior liens are being paid when due.

• • • • • •

(e) Relationship of Farm Housing loans to Farm Ownership and Soil and Water loans. Each eligible applicant should be encouraged to obtain the kind of Farmers Home Administration loan best suited to his needs. In determining which kind of loan best suits the applicant's needs, consideration will be given to the purposes for which the applicant needs funds, the availability of loan funds, and the need for supervisory assistance. Whenever possible, an applicant's total real estate credit needs will be met with one kind of loan. If the credit needs of a Farm Ownership borrower can be met with a Farm Housing loan, such a loan may be made provided the loan limitations and requirements of Farm Ownership loans are also complied with.

3. Section 383.8 (c) Title 6, Code of Federal Regulations (21 F. R. 3480), is amended to make Farm Housing loans subject to the title clearance requirements of the Farmers Home Administration for real estate mortgage loans in general and to read as follows:

§ 383.8 Technical service. • • •

(c) Title clearance and legal services in connection with Farm Housing loans. Title clearance and legal services required for making and closing a Farm Housing loan will be in accordance with §§ 307.1 to 307.7 of this chapter.

4. Section 383.10 (b) Title 6, Code of Federal Regulations (21 F. R. 3480, 6210), is amended by changing references to Forms FHA–197A and FHA–440 to Forms FHA–141, "Farm and Home Plan," and FHA–596, "Appraisal Report."

5. Section 383.11 (a) Title 6, Code of Federal Regulations (21 F. R. 3480), is amended to require the preparation of farm and home plans for all Farm Housing loans and to read as follows:

§ 383.11 Preparation of loan docket—(a) Farm and home plans. Form FHA–14, "Farm and Home Plan," will be developed for all Farm Housing loans. When a Farm Housing loan is to be made to a nonoperator owner, the columns in Tables B, "Crops, Pasture, Etc.—Production and Sales," and C, "Livestock and Products—Production and Sales," of Form FHA–14 pertaining to the operator's share will be changed to owner's share. If an application is being considered early in the crop year for a borrower who has a current Form FHA–14, such form will be revised to show changes in the financial statement and significant changes in the plan of operations; however, if the crop year is well advanced or completed, a farm and home plan will be developed for the ensuing year.

6. Section 383.13 Title 6, Code of Federal Regulations (21 F. R. 3480), is amended to include references to property insurance, revised loan closing instructions, and owner's title insurance policies and the effective time of loan closing, and to read as follows:

§ 383.13 Actions subsequent to loan approval—(a) Property insurance. When there are insurable buildings on the real estate, the County Supervisor will see that adequate insurance is provided effective as of the time of loan closing in accordance with §§ 306.1 to 306.6 of this chapter.

(b) Supervised bank account. The supervised bank account will be used for Farm Housing borrowers in the same manner as prescribed for Farm Ownership borrowers in §§ 303.1 to 303.6 of this chapter.

(c) Loan closing. The Farm Housing loan will be closed in accordance with §§ 307.1 to 307.7 of this chapter.

(d) After loan closing. A conformed copy of the recorded mortgage, and an owner's policy of title insurance if one is obtained, will be delivered to the borrower by the County Supervisor.

(e) Effective time of loan closing. A Farm Housing loan is closed when the mortgage is filed for record.

7. Section 383.14 Title 6, Code of Federal Regulations (21 F. R. 3481), is amended to modify the requirements concerning appraisal reports for subsequent loans and to read as follows:

§ 383.14 Subsequent Farm Housing loans. Subsequent Farm Housing loans may be made for the same purposes and under the same conditions as initial loans. The subsequent loan will be processed in the same manner as initial loans except that title evidence will cover only the period since the previous Farm Housing mortgage was filed for record and a new appraisal report will be required only when at least one of the following exist: (a) The latest appraisal report on the farm is over a year old, (b) the physical characteristics of the farm have significantly changed or (c) the County Committee, County Supervisor or loan approval official requests a new appraisal report. The mortgage securing the subsequent Farm Housing loan will contain (by typed insertion, if necessary) a provision to the effect that both the initial loan and the subsequent loan will be secured by both the initial mortgage and the subsequent mortgage and that default under either mortgage will be default under both.

TITLE 7—AGRICULTURE

Chapter VII—Commodity Stabilization Service (Farm Marketing Quotas and Acreage Allotments), Department of Agriculture

ANNOUNCEMENT AND APPORTIONMENT OF NATIONAL MARKETING QUOTA FOR BURLEY TOBACCO FOR THE 1957–58 MARKETING YEAR

§ 725.803 Basis and purpose. (a) Sections 725.803 to 725.804 are issued (1) to announce the reserve supply level and the total supply of burley tobacco for the marketing year beginning October 1, 1956; (2) to establish the amount of the national marketing quota for burley tobacco for the marketing year beginning October 1, 1957; and (3) to apportion the national marketing quota for burley tobacco for the 1957–58 marketing year among the several States. The findings and determinations contained in §§ 725.803 to 725.804 have been made on the basis of the latest available statistics of the Federal Government, and after due consideration of data, views, and recommendations received from burley tobacco producers and others as provided in a notice (21 F. R. 7493) given in accordance with the Administrative Procedure Act (5 U. S. C. 1003).

(b) Since burley tobacco growers are making plans for their 1957 farming operations and will soon be preparing plant beds and purchasing fertilizer and other materials, it is hereby found that compliance with the 30-day effective date provision of the Administrative Procedure Act is impractical and contrary to the public interest. Therefore, the announcement and apportionment of the national marketing quota for burley tobacco for the 1957–58 marketing year contained herein shall become effective upon the date of filing with the Director, Division of the Federal Register.

§ 725.804 Findings and determinations with respect to the national marketing quota for burley tobacco for the marketing year beginning October 1, 1957[1]—(a) Reserve supply level. The reserve supply level for burley tobacco is 1,606,000,000 pounds, calculated, as provided in the Agricultural Adjustment Act of 1938, as amended, from a normal year's domestic consumption of 535,000,000 pounds and a normal year's exports of 36,000,000 pounds.

(b) Total supply. The total supply of burley tobacco for the marketing year beginning October 1, 1956, is 1,795,000,000 pounds consisting of carryover of 1,301,000,000 pounds and estimated 1956 production of 494,000,000 pounds.

(c) Carryover. The estimated carryover of burley tobacco at the beginning of the marketing year for such tobacco beginning October 1, 1957, is 1,234,000,000 pounds calculated by subtracting the estimated disappearance for the marketing year beginning October 1, 1956, of 561,000,000 pounds from the total supply of such tobacco.

(d) National marketing quota. The amount of burley tobacco which will make available during the marketing year beginning October 1, 1957, a supply of burley tobacco equal to the reserve supply level of such tobacco is 372,000,000 pounds and a national marketing quota of such amount is hereby announced. It is determined, however, that a national marketing quota in the amount of 372,000,000 pounds would result in undue restriction of marketings during the 1957–58 marketing year and such amount is hereby increased by 20 percent. Therefore, the amount of the national marketing quota for burley tobacco in terms of the total quantity of such tobacco which may be marketed during the marketing year beginning October 1, 1957, is 446,400,000 pounds.

(e) Apportionment of the quota. The national marketing quota is hereby apportioned among the several States pursuant to section 313 (a) of the Agricultural Adjustment Act of 1938, as amended, and converted into State acreage allotments in accordance with section 313 (g) of the act as follows:

State:	Acreage allotment

SUBPART—1956–57 MARKETING YEAR

DETERMINATION OF COUNTY AND FARM NORMAL YIELDS FOR 1956 CROP

The regulations contained in § 730.707 are issued pursuant to and in conformity with the rice marketing quota provisions of the Agricultural Adjustment Act of 1938, as amended, including the amendments to section 301 of that act which are contained in section 502 of the Agricultural Act of 1956. These amendments provide definitions for county and farm normal yields as follows:

(D) "Normal yield" for any county, in the case of rice shall be the average yield per acre of rice for the county during the five calendar years immediately preceding the year for which such normal yield is determined, adjusted for abnormal weather conditions and for trends in yields. If for any such year data are not available, or there is no actual yield, an appraised yield for such year, determined in accordance with regulations issued by the Secretary, taking into consideration the yields obtained in surrounding counties during such year and the yield in years for which data are available, shall be used as the actual yield for such year.

(E) "Normal yield" for any farm, in the case of rice, shall be the average yield per acre of rice for the farm during the five calendar years immediately preceding the year for which such normal yield is determined, adjusted for abnormal weather conditions and for trends in yields. If for any such year the data are not available or there is no actual yield, then the normal yield for the farm shall be appraised in accordance with regulations issued by the Secretary, taking into consideration abnormal weather conditions, trends in yields, the normal yield for the county, the yields obtained on adjacent farms during such year and the yield in years for which data are available.

(F) In applying subparagraphs (D) and (E), if on account of drought, flood, insect pests, plant disease, or other uncontrollable natural cause, the yield for any year of such five-year period is less than 75 per centum of the average, 75 per centum of such average shall be substituted therefor in calculating the normal yield per acre. If, on account of abnormally favorable weather conditions, the yield for any year of such five-year period is in excess of 125 per centum of the average, 125 per centum of such average shall be substituted therefor in calculating the normal yield per acre.

Prior to the enactment of the Agricultural Act of 1956 there was no provision of law for the determination of county normal yields of rice. Section 730.707 is issued to proclaim county normal yields for the 1956 crop of rice.

Since county normal yields of rice are to be taken into consideration in appraising farm normal yields, § 730.753 providing for farm normal yields is amended as required by the Agricultural Act of 1956.

Since farmers are marketing their 1956 crop rice it is necessary that they be informed of the proclamation and amendment herein as soon as possible. It is hereby found that compliance with the notice, public procedure, and effective date provisions of section 4 of the Administrative Procedure Act is impracticable and contrary to the public interest, and this document shall become effective upon the date of publication in the FEDERAL REGISTER.

2. Section 730.753, paragraphs (b) and (c), are amended to read as follows:

(b) Yields based on reliable records. Where reliable records of the actual average yield in pounds per acre for all the 5 calendar years immediately preceding the calendar year for which the yield is determined are presented by the farmer or are available to the county committee, the normal yield per acre of rice for the farm shall be determined to be the average of such yields, adjusted for abnormal weather conditions and other uncontrollable natural causes and for trends in yields as provided herein. If the county committee determines that on account of drought, flood, insect pests, plant disease or other uncontrollable natural cause, the yield for any year of such five-year period is less than 75 per centum of the average, 75 per centum of such average shall be substituted for such year in calculating the normal yield. If the county committee determines that on account of abnormally favorable weather conditions the yield for any year of such five-year period is in excess of 125 per centum of the average, 125 per centum of such average shall be substituted for such year in calculating the normal yield. The adjustment for trends in yields shall be made by computing the simple average of (1) the average yield per acre of rice for the farm during the 5 calendar years immediately preceding the calendar year for which the normal yield is determined, adjusted for abnormal weather conditions and other uncontrollable natural causes, and (2) the average yield per acre of rice for the farm during the 2 calendar years immediately preceding the calendar year for which the normal yield is determined, similarly adjusted.

(c) Appraised yields. If for any year of such five-year period records of the actual average yield are not available, or there was no actual yield, the normal yield in pounds per acre shall be appraised by the county committee, taking into consideration abnormal weather conditions, trends in yields, the county normal yield, the yields obtained on adjacent farms during such year which are similar with respect to type of soil, availability of irrigation water, and farming practices associated with the production of rice, and the yield in years for which data are available.

Chapter VIII—Commodity Stabilization Service (Sugar), Department of Agriculture

Subchapter B—Sugar Requirements and Quotas

[Sugar Reg. 814.24]

MAINLAND CANE SUGAR AREA, 1957

Basis and purpose. This allotment order is issued under section 205 (a) of the Sugar Act of 1948, as amended (hereinafter called the "act"), for the purpose of establishing allotments of the 1957 sugar quota for the Mainland Cane

Sugar Area for the period January 1, 1957, to the date allotments of such quota are prescribed for the full calendar year 1957.

Omission of recommended decision and effective date. The record of the hearing regarding the subject of this order shows that probably 305,000 tons of 1956-crop sugar will remain to be marketed after January 1, 1957. This quantity of sugar, along with production of sugar from 1957-crop sugarcane, will result in a supply of sugar available for marketing in 1957 sufficiently in excess of the 1957 quota that may be expected for the area that disorderly marketing may occur and some interested persons may be prevented from having equitable opportunities to market sugar (R. 5). The inventories of sugar on January 1, 1957, together with production in early 1957, may make it possible for some allottees to market shortly after January 1, 1957, a quantity of sugar larger than the allotments established by this order. It, therefore, is necessary that such allotments, to be effective, be in effect on January 1, 1957. In view thereof and since this proceeding was instituted for the purpose of issuing allotments to prevent disorderly marketing of sugar and to afford all interested persons an equitable opportunity to market, it is hereby found that due and timely execution of the functions imposed upon the Secretary under the act imperatively and unavoidably requires omission of a recommended decision in this proceeding. It is hereby further found that compliance with the 30-day effective date requirement of the Administrative Procedure Act (60 Stat. 237), is impracticable and contrary to the public interest and, consequently, this order shall be effective on January 1, 1957.

Preliminary statement. Section 205 (a) of the act requires the Secretary to allot a quota whenever he finds that the allotment is necessary (1) to assure an orderly and adequate flow of sugar or liquid sugar in the channels of interstate or foreign commerce, (2) to prevent the disorderly marketing of sugar or liquid sugar, (3) to maintain a continuous and stable supply of sugar or liquid sugar, or (4) to afford all interested persons equitable opportunities to market sugar within the quota for the area. Section 205 (a) also requires that such allotment be made after such hearing and upon such notice as the Secretary may by regulation prescribe.

Pursuant to the applicable rules of practice and procedure (21 F. R. 4251) a preliminary finding was made that allotment of the quota is necessary, and a notice was published on October 20, 1956 (21 F. R. 8088), of a public hearing to be held at Washington, D. C., in Room 2W, Administration Building of the Department of Agriculture on November 1, 1956, at 11:00 a. m., e. s. t., for the purpose of receiving evidence to enable the Secretary, (1) to affirm, modify or revoke the preliminary finding of necessity for allotment, and (2) to establish fair, efficient and equitable allotments of a portion of the 1957 quota for the Mainland Cane Sugar Area for the period January 1, 1957, to the date the Secretary prescribes allotments of such quota for the calendar year 1957.

The hearing was held at the place and time specified in the notice.

Basis for findings and conclusions. Section 205 (a) of the act reads in pertinent part as follows:

• • • Allotments shall be made in such manner and in such amounts as to provide a fair, efficient, and equitable distribution of such quota or proration thereof, by taking into consideration the processing of sugar or liquid sugar from sugar beets or sugarcane to which proportionate shares, determined pursuant to the provisions of subsection (b) of section 302, pertained; the past marketings or importations of each such person and the ability of such person to market or import that portion of such quota or proration thereof allotted to him • • •

The necessity for allotment of the 1957 sugar quota for the Mainland Cane Sugar Area is indicated by the extent to which the quantity of sugar in prospect for marketing in 1957 exceeds the quota that may be established and that in the absence of allotments disorderly marketing would result, and some interested persons would be prevented from having equitable opportunities to market sugar (R. 5).

Testimony indicates that it is desirable to defer allotment proceedings with respect to the allotment of the full quota for 1957 until most allottees have completed processing of 1956-crop sugarcane, but allotments of a portion of the quota should be in effect beginning January 1, 1956, because inventories of sugar on January 1, 1957, together with production of sugar in early 1957 may make it possible for some allottees to market shortly after January 1, 1957, a quantity of sugar larger than eventually may be allotted to them (R. 5, 6).

To meet this situation the Government witness proposed that allotment of 450,000 short tons, raw value, of the 1957 sugar quota for the Mainland Cane Sugar Area be established to be effective for the period January 1, 1957, to the date allotments of the entire quota for the calendar year are established, by allotting 450,000 short tons, raw value, to the respective allottees on the basis that each allottee's allotment be the same proportion of 450,000 short tons, raw value, as his allotment was of the total 1956 allotments established in Sugar Regulation 814.23, Amendment 2, effective August 15, 1956 (21 F. R. 6081, R. 6, Ex. 4).

Consideration is given to the three factors cited in the act in the same manner as was given in allotting the full quota for 1956, and such basis for allotment of a portion of the 1957 quota to be in effect for the early part of the year cannot be substantially improved (R. 7). The hearing record shows that due to a succession of interests the former allottee, Godchaux Sugars, Inc., shall be replaced by two allottees; namely, Gulf States Land and Industries, Inc., and The National Sugar Refining Company, Reserve Division, and provides the basis for establishing allotments for such allottees (R. 10, Ex. 6). The hearing record contains proposals to include in the order to become effective January 1, 1957, paragraphs essentially the same as paragraph (b) of Sugar Regulation 814.23, which established initial allotments for 1956 and paragraphs (c) and (d) as they appeared in Sugar Regulation 814.23, Amendment 2 (R. 10, 11).

No testimony, proposals or arguments contrary to that outlined above appear in the hearing record.

Findings and conclusions. On the basis of the record of the hearing, I hereby find and conclude that:

(1) For the calendar year 1957 Mainland Cane Sugar processors will have available for marketing from 1955 and 1956-crop sugarcane about 305,000 short tons, raw value, of sugar. This quantity of sugar, together with production of sugar from 1957-crop sugarcane, will result in a supply of sugar available for marketing in 1956 sufficiently in excess of the anticipated 1957 quota for the Mainland Cane Sugar Area to cause disorderly marketing and prevent some interested persons from having equitable opportunities to market sugar.

(2) The allotment of the 1957 Mainland Cane Sugar Area quota is necessary to prevent disorderly marketing and to afford all interested persons equitable opportunities to market sugar processed from sugarcane produced in the area.

(3) It is desirable to defer the allotment of the entire 1957 calendar year sugar quota for the Mainland Cane Sugar Area until processings from 1956-crop sugarcane can be known or closely estimated for all allottees, but it is necessary to make allotments of a portion of the 1957 quota effective January 1, 1957, to prevent some allottees from marketing a quantity of sugar larger than eventually may be allotted to them when the entire 1957 quota is allotted.

(4) The findings in (3), above, require that, effective for the period January 1, 1957, until the date allotments of the entire 1957 calendar year Mainland Cane Sugar Area quota are prescribed 450,000 short tons, raw value, of the 1957 quota shall be allotted and that allotments of such quantity be established by allotting to each allottee the same proportion of 450,000 short tons, raw value, as his allotment was of the total 1956 allotments established by Sugar Regulation 814.23, Amendment 2, effective August 15, 1956.

(5) Allotment of the 1957 sugar quota for the Mainland Cane Sugar Area established as found in (4), above, give consideration to the statutory factors "processings • • • from • • • proportionate shares," "past marketings" and "ability to market."

(6) The allotments of the 1956 quota referred to in (4), above, are as set forth in the following table:

(7) Gulf States Land and Industries, Inc., and The National Sugar Refining Company, Reserve Division, shall replace Godchaux Sugars, Inc., as allottees with allotments as provided for in the record of this proceeding.

(8) Provision shall be made in the order to restrict marketings of sugar to allotments established herein.

(9) To facilitate full and effective use of allotments, provision shall be made in the order for transfer of allotments under circumstances of a succession of interest and under circumstances involving an allottee not processing any cane and such cane as he would normally process, if operating, is processed by other allottees.

(10) To aid in the efficient movement and storage of sugar, provision shall be made to enable a processor to market a quantity of sugar of his own production in excess of his allotment equivalent to the quantity of sugar which he holds in storage and which was acquired by him within the allotment of another allottee of the 1957 Mainland Cane Sugar Area quota.

(11) For the period January 1, 1957, until the date allotments of the entire 1957 calendar year sugar quota for the Mainland Cane Sugar Area are prescribed, the allotments established in the foregoing manner and in the quantities set forth in the order provide a fair, efficient and equitable distribution of such quota and meet the requirements of section 205 (a) of the act.

Order. Pursuant to the authority vested in the Secretary of Agriculture by section 205 (a) of the act, It is hereby ordered:

(c) Transfer of allotments. The Director of the Sugar Division, Commodity Stabilization Service, of the Department, may, consistent with the provisions of the act: (1) Permit marketings to be made by one allottee, or other person, within the allotment or portion thereof established for another allottee upon receipt of evidence satisfactory to him of a merger, consolidation, transfer of sugar-processing facilities, or other action of similar effect upon the allottees or persons involved, and upon relinquishment by one of the allottees of all or a portion of its allotment, and (2) permit, when approved in writing by him, the transfer of allotments made in paragraph (a) of this section, in whole or in part, to another allottee thereunder upon a showing that the transferee has processed or will process 1956-crop sugarcane because of inability of the transferor, arising subsequent to the processing of the 1955 crop, to process the tonnage of sugarcane which otherwise would be processed by him.

(d) Exchanges of sugar between allottees. When approved in writing by the Director of the Sugar Division, or the Chief of the Quota and Allotment Branch thereof, Commodity Stabilization Service of the Department, any allottee holding sugar or liquid sugar acquired by him within the allotment of another person established in paragraph (a) of this section, may ship, transport or market up to an equivalent quantity of sugar processed by him in excess of his allotment established in paragraph (a) of this section. The sugar or liquid sugar held under this paragraph shall be subject to all other provisions of this section as if it had been processed by the allottee who acquired it for the purpose authorized by this paragraph.

Chapter IX—Agricultural Marketing Service (Marketing Agreements and Orders), Department of Agriculture

PART 943—MILK IN NORTH TEXAS MARKETING AREA

ORDER SUSPENDING CERTAIN PROVISIONS

Pursuant to the applicable provisions of the Agricultural Marketing Agreement Act of 1937, as amended (7 U. S. C. 601 et seq.), hereinafter referred to as the "act", and of the order, as amended (7 CFR Part 943), regulating the handling of milk in the North Texas marketing area, hereinafter referred to as the "order", it is hereby found that:

(a) The provision of § 943.51 (a) which provides for a supply-demand adjustment applicable to the Class I price will not tend to effectuate the declared policy of the act during the months of January, February, and March 1957.

(b) Notice of proposed rule making, public procedure thereon, and 30 days prior notice to the effective date hereof are found to be impracticable, unnecessary and contrary to the public interest in that (1) the issuance of this suspension order is necessary to reflect current marketing conditions and facilitate, promote and maintain the orderly marketing of milk produced for the said marketing area; (2) unless this suspension order is effective for January, February and March 1957, there will occur a substantial drop in the Class I price; (3) in view of the uncertain production conditions, such a drop in price would seriously threaten the maintenance of an adequate supply of milk from the production area for the North Texas market; (4) this suspension order has been requested by a substantial majority of the producers whose milk is regulated by the order; (5) this suspension order does not require of persons affected substantial or extensive preparation prior to its effective date; and (6) the time intervening between the date of this suspension order and its effective date affords persons affected a reasonable time to prepare for its effective date.

It is therefore ordered, That the following provision be and hereby is suspended for the months of January, February and March 1957:

All of § 943.51 (a) except the following:

(a) Class I milk. The basic formula price for the preceding month (rounded to the nearest one-tenth cent) plus $2.00 for the months of March through June and plus $2.20 for all other months.

(Sec. 5, 49 Stat. 753, as amended; 7 U. S. C. 608c)

Done at Washington, D. C., this 27th day of December 1956.

ELECTION OF NOMINEES TO PECAN ADMINISTRATIVE COMMITTEE AND HANDLERS ADVISORY COUNCIL

§ 994.433 Nomination elections. In addition to the procedure prescribed in §§ 994.33 and 994.48, the Secretary, through his authorized representative, shall, at least 15 days before the nomination election for a particular district is to be held, mail to each grower of record in that district or to each handler of record in that district, as the case may be, notice of the time and place of the nomination meeting and a ballot form for the use of such grower or handler in voting by mail in the event he elects not to attend the meeting and cast his ballot personally. In giving notice of each such meeting to growers and handlers in the respective districts, as required in §§ 994.33 and 994.48, the Secretary shall include information as to where ballot forms may be obtained. Such ballot forms shall provide separately for voting for each position to be filled and shall contain a blank space in which the voter may indicate his choice for that position. Each mail ballot shall be accompanied by a return addressed envelope. Ballots signed by voters in the particular district, in which the election is being held, and received by the representative of the Secretary prior to the counting of the votes at any meeting will be considered the same as ballots which are cast personally at the meeting. The person receiving the highest number of votes for any position shall be the nominee.

ASSESSMENTS AND REFUNDS

§ 994.462 Time of payment of assessments. Each handler shall pay assessments due the Committee promptly upon request by the Committee. Such requests may be made weekly, or in the case of handlers with no fixed place of business in the area or for other reasons, requests may be made at the time of inspection.

§ 994.464 Time of refunds. The Committee shall determine the amount of any excess assessments due each handler and shall notify him of the amount credited to his account within three months after the close of each fiscal period. After such notification any handler may request a refund of the net amount due him at the time of such request. Amounts which are due handlers as refunds for a fiscal period and which, after reasonable effort by the Committee have not been distributed, or have not been used in paying assessments for the next fiscal period shall, after one year following the end of the fiscal period for which such assessment funds were collected, be transferred to current receipts as "miscellaneous income": Provided, That if any person to whom such a refund is due requests the Committee for same, it shall be paid to him out of such current receipts.

INSPECTION

§ 994.475 Inspection—(a) Procedure. Each handler who desires to have pecans inspected as required in § 994.75, shall communicate with the Federal-State or Federal Inspection Service and have such inspection made and a certificate issued, at his own expense. If a handler is unable to locate an inspector, the Pecan Administrative Committee, Albany, Georgia, shall at his request furnish any assistance practicable in locating one.

(b) Seals and stamps. The Pecan Administrative Committee shall furnish to the inspection agency all necessary seals and stamps and shall keep records containing adequate information as to the serial numbers of all seals and stamps issued to the inspection agency. The Committee shall arrange with the inspection agency to keep records of the serial numbers of seals distributed to individual inspectors and to record on each inspection certificate the series range and the number of seals used on the pecans covered by such certificate.

EXEMPTIONS

§ 994.476 Quantity exemption. Except pecans handled in accordance with provisions of § 994.477, the total quantity of unshelled pecans which may be handled by any handler to any one person during any one day exempt from inspection and certification, and assessment, is 105 pounds.

§ 994.477 Pecans for shelling or processing outside the production area—(a) General. The Committee shall authorize shipments of unshelled pecans for shelling or processing outside the area, without regard to grade and size regulations and without regard to inspection and certification requirements, only to shellers, processors, or broker-distributors, who sign an agreement with the Committee insuring that all receipts of such pecans will be disposed of in accordance with the Committee requirements and who agree to make specified reports required by the Committee pertaining to such receipts and to meet the Committee's requirements in other respects.

(b) Authorized shellers, processors, or broker-distributors. The Pecan Administrative Committee shall mail or deliver to all shellers, processors, and broker-distributors outside the production area who are known to be interested in receiving unshelled pecans from the area, an agreement form (P. A. C. Form 2) to shellers and processors, and an agreement form (P. A. C. Form 3) to broker-distributors. To be approved to receive uninspected pecans, shellers and processors shall have adequate facilities for shelling or processing pecans, and by executing the applicable agreement must agree to: (1) Maintain accurate records in regard to pecans received from the area; (2) make their records and plant facilities available to the Committee or the Secretary of Agriculture for inspection; (3) submit such reports of receipts and disposition of such pecans to the Committee as it requires; and (4) to comply with all Committee requirements which affect them. Similar requirements for eligibility shall apply to broker-distributors, except that instead of having adequate facilities for shelling or processing pecans, they must be engaged in, or about to become engaged in, the business of distributing pecans. Each such sheller, processor, or broker-distributor who enters into the required agreement with the Committee shall be notified by the Committee that he has been approved as an authorized receiver of uninspected pecans shipped from the area, and shall be assigned an agreement number by the Committee: Provided, That the Committee may refuse to approve as an authorized receiver of uninspected pecans any person whom it appears may not reasonably be expected to comply with the aforementioned requirements. Such approval may be terminated at any time by the Committee for good cause.

(c) Instructions to handlers. The Committee shall furnish all known handlers in the area a list of shellers, processors, and broker-distributors outside the area who have been authorized by the Committee to receive uninspected pecans shipped from the area, together with the agreement number assigned to each such receiver by the Committee, and shall keep handlers currently informed of any deletions or additions to the list of approved receivers. The Committee shall also furnish or make available to handlers desiring to make shipments of uninspected pecans to points outside the area a supply of P. A. C. Form 1, each consisting of an original, one pink copy, and three yellow copies. Promptly upon each shipment, the handler shall complete and mail or deliver the original of such form to the Committee and mail or deliver the three yellow copies so completed to the person outside the area to whom the pecans are shipped. P. A. C. Form 1 shall show the name and address of the shipper, quantity, type of pecans, date of shipment, number and type of containers, shipping point, car initials and numbers, or truck license number, name and address of person to whom the shipment is made, and such receiver's agreement number assigned by the Committee. Except as authorized pursuant to § 994.76, no person shall ship or cause to be shipped unshelled pecans, which have not been inspected and certified as meeting order requirements, to any person outside the area who has not been authorized by the Committee to receive such pecans.

(d) Instructions to shellers, processors, and broker-distributors. Anyone receiving uninspected pecans shipped outside the five-State area shall, within three days after receipt of shipment, report to the Committee using the first yellow copy of P. A. C. Form 1 pertaining to such shipment. If any such pecans are distributed as unshelled pecans, they must be inspected and certified as meeting the then applicable grade and size requirements and a copy of the certificate and the assessment applicable to such quantity must be sent or delivered to the Committee. Promptly after shelling, or inspection and certification for inshell sale, a report of disposition shall be made to the Committee using the second yellow copy of P. A. C. Form 1. The third copy shall be retained in the files of the sheller or processor. In the event that a broker-distributor or a sheller or processor resells uninspected pecans received from the five-State area under a P. A. C. Form 1, he shall execute a new P. A. C. Form 1 in the manner described in paragraph (c) of this section and shall show on such new form the serial number of the P. A. C. Form 1 under which the shipment was received from the area. The Committee shall make a supply of forms available to persons outside the area for such use.

BOOKS AND RECORDS

§ 994.480 Information to be shown in handlers records. Each handler shall maintain records showing the following information with respect to his shipments of unshelled pecans to destinations outside the five-State area: (a) Quantity shipped, (b) variety or type, (c) date of shipment, (d) receiver or destination, and (e) inspection certificate number or P. A. C. Form 1 number.

§ 994.481 Reports of shipments by handlers. Information required under § 994.81 (a) (other than shipments under P. A. C. Form 1) may be furnished in a daily report or in the form of a copy of the Inspection Certificate covering such pecans or a copy of the handlers invoice covering the shipment of such pecans.

It is also ordered, That, effective as of the effective time of this document, the provisions of existing §§ 994.201 and 994.401 (7 CFR 994.201 and 994.401), which set forth requirements regarding nomination elections and exemptions, are terminated, since the requirements in those regards are set forth in the aforesaid rules and regulations contained in this document.

This proceeding was heard by a hearing examiner on the complaint of the Commission, charging a manufacturer and its agent, in New York City and Hoboken, N. J., respectively, with violating the Wool Products Labeling Act through misbranding as "all wool", ladies' skirts which did not contain all wool; failing to label certain wool products as required; and falsely guaranteeing as not misbranded wool products manufactured by them.

Following entry of an agreement between the parties for consent order, the hearing examiner made his initial decision and order to cease and desist, which became, on December 12, the decision of the Commission.

The order to cease and desist is as follows:

It is ordered, That the respondents, Jay's Manufacturing Company, Inc., a corporation, and its officers; and Sam Albala and Louis Feinbaum, individually and as officers of said corporation; and Sam Albala and James Sutera, individually and as co-partners trading and doing business as S and J Company, or under any other trade name, and their representatives, agents, and employees, directly or through any corporate or other device in connection with the introduction or manufacture for introduction into commerce or the offering for sale, sale, transportation, or distribution in commerce, as "commerce" is defined in the Federal Trade Commission Act and the Wool Products Labeling Act of 1939, of ladies' skirts or other "wool products" as such products are defined in and subject to the Wool Products Labeling Act of 1939, which products contain, purport to contain or in any way are represented to contain "wool", "reprocessed wool" or "reused wool" as those terms are defined in said Act, do forthwith cease and desist from:

1. Misbranding such products by falsely or deceptively stamping, tagging, labeling, or otherwise identifying such products as to the character or amount of the constituent fibers contained therein;

2. Misbranding such products by failing to securely affix to or place on each such product a stamp, tag, label or other means of identification showing in a clear and conspicuous manner:

(a) The percentage of the total fiber weight of such wool product, exclusive of ornamentation not exceeding five percentum of said total fiber weight, of (1) wool, (2) reprocessed wool, (3) reused wool, (4) each fiber other than wool where said percentage by weight of such fiber is five percentum or more, (5) the aggregate of all other fibers;

(b) The maximum percentage of the total weight of the wool product, of any non-fibrous loading, filling, or adulterating matter;

(c) The name or registered identification number of the manufacturer of such wool product, or of one or more persons engaged in introducing such wool product into commerce, or in the offering for sale, sale, transportation, distribution, or delivery for shipment thereof in commerce, as "commerce" is defined in the Wool Products Labeling Act of 1939.

3. Furnishing false guaranties when there is reason to believe the wool products so guaranteed may be introduced, sold, transported or distributed in commerce.

Provided, That the foregoing provisions concerning misbranding shall not be construed to prohibit acts permitted by paragraphs (a) and (b) of section 3 of the Wool Products Labeling Act of 1939: And provided further, That nothing contained in this order shall be construed as limiting any applicable provisions of said act or the rules and regulations promulgated thereunder.

By "Decision of the Commission", etc., report of compliance was required as follows:

It is ordered, That the respondents herein shall within sixty (60) days after service upon them of this order, file with the Commission a report in writing setting forth in detail the manner and form in which they have complied with the order to cease and desist.

DECEMBER 21, 1956.

Cortez Uranium and Mining Co. (Cortez), a Colorado corporation, 404 University Building, Denver, Colorado, filed with the Commission on May 27, 1955, a notification on Form 1-A and offering circular, and subsequently filed amendments thereto, relating to a proposed offer of 3,000,000 shares of common stock, 1 cent par, at 10 cents per share, for the purpose of obtaining an exemption from the registration requirements of the Securities Act of 1933, as amended, pursuant to section 3 (b) thereof and Regulation A thereunder. By amendment dated May 22, 1956, Columbia Securities Company, No. 1 Equitable Building, Denver, Colorado, is named as the principal underwriter of the securities proposed to be offered by Cortez.

NATIONAL FUEL GAS CO. ET AL.

ORDER APPROVING MERGER OF TWO SUBSIDIARIES

DECEMBER 26, 1956.

In the matter of National Fuel Gas Company, Iroquois Gas Corporation, Republic Light, Heat and Power Company, Inc.; File No. 70-3524.

National Fuel Gas Company ("National"), a registered holding company, and its wholly-owned public-utility subsidiaries, Iroquois Gas Corporation ("Iroquois") and Republic Light, Heat and Power Company, Inc. ("Republic"), have filed a joint application-declaration and amendments thereto with this Commission, pursuant to sections 6 (a) (2), 6 (b), 7 (e), 9, 10, 12 (c), and 12 (d) of the Public Utility Holding Company Act of 1935 ("act"), and Rules U-42 and U-44 thereunder, with respect to the following proposed transactions:

Iroquois and Republic are both gas companies engaged in the production of natural gas and in the distribution of natural and mixed gas. The service areas of both are located in the western part of New York State with the City of Buffalo as the center, and are for the most part contiguous. Both Iroquois and Republic operate with substantially the same executive personnel and many services and facilities are now used by both companies in common.

It is proposed to merge Republic into Iroquois by the filing with the Department of State of the State of New York a Certificate of Consolidation. In order to accomplish the merger, Iroquois will increase its authorized common stock from 400,000 to 500,000 shares of $100 par value common stock. Republic's outstanding 96,746 shares of common stock will be converted into a like number of shares of Iroquois common stock and Republic's common stock will be cancelled. Iroquois will then acquire Republic's assets and assume its liabilities, and National will acquire the additional 96,746 shares of common stock of Iroquois.

The proposed merger has been approved by the New York Public Service Commission and various phases of the proposed transactions have been approved by the Federal Power Commission, to the extent of the respective jurisdictions of these Commissions.

The fees and expenses in connection with the proposed transactions are estimated in the aggregate of $23,735, including $5,700 of estimated counsel fees and expenses. National will bear $500 of the total expenses while Iroquois will pay the remainder.

Due notice having been given of the filing of the joint application-declaration and a hearing not having been requested of or ordered by the Commission; and the Commission finding that the applicable provisions of the act and the rules promulgated thereunder are satisfied and that no adverse findings are necessary, and deeming it appropriate in the public interest and in the interest of investors and consumers that said application-declaration, as amended, be granted and permitted to become effective forthwith:

It is ordered, Pursuant to Rule U-23 and the applicable provisions of the act, that said application-declaration, as amended, be, and it hereby is, granted and permitted to become effective forthwith, subject to the terms and conditions prescribed in Rule U-24.

By the Commission.

Secretary.

Subchapter B—Farm Ownership Loans

[FHA Instruction 443.2]

PART 332—PROCESSING INITIAL LOANS

PROCESSING INITIAL INSURED AND DIRECT FARM OWNERSHIP LOANS

Sections 332.1 to 332.13, Title 6, Code of Federal Regulations, are amended to include regulations with respect to optioning of land, to conform Farm Ownership loan processing with revised title clearance regulations in §§ 307.1 to 307.7 of this chapter (21 F. R. 2929) and with revised loan policies under Public Law 878, 84th Congress, and to read as follows:

§ 332.1 Optioning of land. When land is to be purchased, the applicant will be responsible for selecting the land he intends to purchase and for obtaining an option on such land. Ordinarily, the County Committee should have viewed the applicant with favor before he obtains an option on the land to be purchased. The County Supervisor should, if possible, prior to the applicant's selection of the land to be purchased, advise him with respect to the approximate size and quality of farms which are generally considered as family-type farms in the particular county. Such advice, together with the consideration of the applicant's eligibility by the County Committee before the land is selected, will save applicant's time in looking for farms and will reduce the number of options taken on farms which are obviously too small, too large, or too unproductive to qualify for the Farm Ownership program. Form FHA–188, "Option to Purchase Real Property," will be given to the applicant with an explanation of the provisions of the form and how it will be completed. Generally, the Farmers Home Administration option form should be used; however, other option forms may be used if their provisions are acceptable.

(a) The County Supervisor is responsible for examining each completed option to determine if it is acceptable. When the County Supervisor is doubtful as to whether the option is acceptable due to questions of a legal or administrative nature, such as the effect of mineral or other reservations on the applicant's or the Government's interest, or unusual conditions or alterations of the Farmers Home Administration option Form or other option form, if used, he will forward the option to the State Director for advice.

(b) The County Supervisor also will determine that:

(1) At least one dollar is actually paid to the seller by the applicant and the receipt for this amount is acknowledged in the option.

(2) The option protects the interests of the applicant, and that the option is recorded, if necessary. Recordation fees will be paid by the applicant.

(3) The following clause is inserted in options in connection with loans which involve more than one tract:

"The seller agrees that, irrespective of any other provision in this option, the buyer, or his assignees may, if the option is accepted, without any liability therefor, refuse to accept conveyance of the property described herein if the aforesaid loan cannot be made or insured because of defects in the title to other land now owned by, or being purchased by, the buyer."

(c) When a tract of land is to be optioned and subdivided, the applicant, in whose name the option is to be taken, must be advised by the County Supervisor that he is not designated as an agent or trustee and will not receive any remuneration for assigning interest in the option to other applicants. The County Supervisor is responsible for explaining to the seller and the applicant, in whose name the option is taken, the terms and conditions of the option including the provision that the seller will provide an accurate survey, if required by the Government.

(1) The County Supervisor will discuss any proposed subdivision with the County Committee and the Area Supervisor before any definite commitments are made to the prospective seller with respect to utilizing a tract for subdivision purposes. He will also obtain the assistance of the employee authorized to appraise farms in making a thorough study of the tract and in plotting the units to show proposed roads and other necessary facilities in order to determine whether it is practicable to subdivide the tract into adequate farms.

(2) If the tract is determined to be suitable, an option will be taken on Form FHA–188A, "Option for Purchase of Farm (Land to be Subdivided)." The tract will be subdivided into units, each unit will be surveyed, and the applicant, in whose name the tract is optioned, with the guidance of the County Supervisor, will execute Form FHA–188B, "Assignment of Interest in Option (Land to be Subdivided)," with each applicant who is to receive one of the units. If it becomes necessary for the State Director to designate an applicant an interest in the option, Form FHA–188C, "Designation of Assignee of Interest in Option (Land to be Subdivided)," will be used.

(Secs. 1, 2, 60 Stat. 1072, 1073, as amended, Pub. Law 878, 84th Cong.; 7 U. S. C. 1001, 1002)

§ 332.2 Suitability of farm for the Farm Ownership program—(a) Responsibility for determining suitability of farms. The County Supervisor is responsible for making a preliminary determination with respect to whether a loan can be made on the farm. This determination will be based on a personal inspection of the farm and the consideration of such factors as: Productivity of the land; condition and adequacy of the buildings; approximate value of the farm; approximate amount of funds required for land purchase, refinancing or development; available title information; legal description and boundaries of the farm; roads, schools, markets, other community facilities; tax rates; and adequacy of the water supply.

(b) Development of loan docket and plans. When the County supervisor makes a preliminary determination that a loan can be made, he also will determine if it is a family-type or less than family-type farm and proceed to develop the loan docket. Farm and Home plans will be prepared on Form FHA–14A, "Long Time Farm and Home Plan," when applicable, and Form FHA–14, "Farm and Home Plan." The farm development plan will be prepared in accordance with Part 324, Subpart B, of this chapter. When the Farm and Home Plan(s) and the tentative draft of the farm development plan have been completed, the County Supervisor will request the services of the appraiser. If it appears that a loan cannot be made, the County Supervisor will promptly notify the applicant of the specific reasons for the decision. In case the aplicant is dissatisfied with the decision and requests further consideration, the County Supervisor may ask the County Committee to consider the farm and give an opinion regarding its suitability for a Farm Ownership loan.

(Secs. 1, 2, 3, 60 Stat. 1072, 1073, 1074, as amended, sec. 16, added 69 Stat. 553, as amended, Pub. Law 878, 84th Cong.; 7 U. S. C. 1001, 1002, 1003, 1006c)

§ 332.3 County Committee certification. The County Supervisor will arrange for a meeting of the County Committee to inspect the farm, and to make the necessary determinations with respect to the applicant and the farm. He will make available to the Committee completed Forms FHA–596, "Appraisal Report," FHA–596B, "Map of Farm," FHA–643, "Farm Development Plan," and FHA–14, "Farm and Home Plan." He will also make available Form FHA–14A, "Long-Time Farm and Home Plan," for all full-time farmers. However, when a loan is being made to an active borrower for whom Farm and Home Plans have been developed in connection with other Farmers Home Administration loans, existing Forms FHA–14 and FHA–14A will be revised to show a current financial statement and significant changes in the plan of operation.

(a) Certification as to applicant. The County Committee is responsible for certifying as to the eligibility of each applicant to receive the benefits of Title I of the Bankhead-Jones Farm Tenant Act, as amended, and that, in the opinion of the Committee, the applicant by reason of his character, ability, industry, and experience honestly will endeavor to, and successfully will, carry out undertakings and obligations required of him under a Farm Ownership loan. The Committee also will determine that credit, sufficient in amount to finance the needs of the applicant, is not available to him at the rates (but not exceeding the rate of 5 percent per annum) and terms similar to those prevailing in the community in or near which the applicant resides for loans of similar size and character from commercial banks, cooperative lending agencies, or from any other responsible source.

(b) Certification as to farm. The County Committee is responsible for certifying that the farm is of such character that there is a reasonable likelihood that the making of the loan will carry out the purposes of Title I. The County Committee also is responsible for certifying as to the fair and reasonable value of the farm based upon its normal earning capacity for a family-type farm or normal market value for a less than family-type farm. The County Committee's certification as to the fair and reasonable value of the farm should represent its determination with respect to the farm under consideration after personally inspecting the farm and reviewing Form FHA–596. Usually, the inspection of the farm will be accomplished by the Committee as a group in order to obtain the benefit of group discussion.

(Sec. 2, 60 Stat. 1073, as amended, Pub. Law 878, 84th Cong.; 7 U. S. C. 1002)

§ 332.4 Deferred payments. (a) For a direct Farm Ownership loan, the initial payment may be deferred until the end of the second full crop year from the date of the loan. Such payments may be deferred only when the Farm and Home Plan covering the first full crop year indicates that there will be insufficient income to meet a regular annual installment on the loan after farm operating, family living, and other essential expenses are paid during the first or first and second full crop years. Further, in the judgment of the loan approval official, there must be adequate evidence that income in subsequent years will be sufficient to meet the requirements of the loan. The initial payment must always be more than a nominal payment. Deferred payments should not be used to permit the accelerated repayment of other debts, to purchase an unusually large amount of capital goods, or to perform major items of land development. Deferment will be justified only when:

(1) There is a substantial reorganization of the farming system, adequate returns from which will be delayed for one or two full crop years; or

(2) There is being established a system of farming requiring substantial improvements in land clearing, draining, leveling, irrigating, basic fertilizing, and seeding, or other land development or soil improvement operations, adequate returns from which will be delayed for one or two full crop years.

(b) For an insured loan, in addition to meeting the requirements for a direct Farm Ownership loan, the initial payment may be deferred only when the lender has agreed to such deferment and the deferment does not violate State or local laws or regulations to which the lender may be subject.

(Sec. 48, 60 Stat. 1070, as amended; 7 U. S. C. 1022)

§ 332.5 Second mortgage loan. When a loan is to be secured by a second mortgage, the following items will apply:

(a) When the County Supervisor determines that it is necessary in protection of the Government's interest to obtain an agreement from a prior lienholder, Form FHA–446, "Agreement with Prior Lienholder," will be used in accordance with the provisions of Part 307, Subpart A, of this chapter.

(b) The applicant will be required to furnish the County Supervisor, before the docket is assembled, a copy of any note and mortgage held by the prior lienholder so that a proper determination can be made as to whether it should be refinanced. In addition, the County Supervisor will be furnished a current statement from the mortgagee showing the correct outstanding principal balance of the existing mortgage(s); the amount of any accrued interest; whether the account(s) is (are) current or delinquent; and rate of interest, if not shown in the mortgage. This information will be included in the docket for the information of the loan approval official. Any cost incident to securing a copy of a mortgage or current statement will be paid by the applicant.

(c) In states where a prior mortgage holder may foreclose his mortgage and make junior liens unenforceable without giving notice of foreclosure to the holder of the junior lien, a junior lien on the real estate will be taken as security for a loan only if the prior lienholder executes an agreement to give the Government actual advance notice of foreclosure or assignment of the mortgage. The State Director, with the advice of the Attorney in Charge, will prescribe an appropriate form of notice agreement and will issue a regulation regarding its use. The regulation will prescribe the minimum acceptable period of notice. If the notice agreement is to be recorded, the cost of recording will be paid by the borrower.

(Sec. 3, 60 Stat. 1074, as amended, sec. 16, added 69 Stat. 553, as amended, Pub. Law 878, 84th Cong.; 7 U. S. C. 1003, 1006c)

§ 332.6 Preparation of loan docket and action by loan approval official. (a) Forms required in loan processing will be prepared and assembled in the County Office. The County Supervisor will assemble the loan docket when the County Committee has signed Form FHA–491, "County Committee Certification (Farm Ownership Loans)." If the applicant is a veteran, the loan docket will include evidence of discharge or release, and, if he is a disabled veteran, also evidence showing the amount of and reason for his pension. The loan docket will be submitted to the State Office.

(b) Examination of loan. Before approving any loan, the loan approval official will make a comprehensive and objective study of the proposed loan, utilizing all available information regarding the family, the farm, and the plans of operation. This study is to determine the eligibility of the applicant and the farm and the soundness of the loan, and to see if the loan is within prescribed limitations. In the case of a loan where the property is subject to an existing mortgage, the loan approval official must determine whether the loan should be secured by a first or second mortgage. If the loan approval official's findings do not concur with the County Supervisor's recommendation, the docket will be returned to the County Supervisor with his comments and suggestions for revision.

(c) Approval or disapproval of a loan. (1) If the loan is approved, the loan approval official will:

(i) Indicate approval of the loan on Form FHA–476, "Record of Actions."

(ii) Sign Form FHA–5 for a direct loan or an insured loan when the United States as trustee for a State Rural Rehabilitation Corporation is the lender.

(2) If the loan is disapproved, the loan approval official will explain on Form FHA–476 the reasons therefor. The County Supervisor will notify the applicant, giving the reasons for the disapproval of the loan.

§ 332.7 Requesting title service and accepting option. When the County Supervisor receives Form FHA–476 indicating approval of the loan, he will see that title service is requested in accordance with Part 307, Subpart A, of this chapter, and, where land is being acquired, also see that Form FHA–191, "Acceptance of Option," is completed, signed, and mailed to the seller; however, in connection with acceptance of option on a subdivision Form FHA–191A, "Acceptance of Option by Assignee," and FHA–191B, "Acceptance of Option by Buyer," will be used, as appropriate.

§ 332.8 Cancellation of loan. Loans may be cancelled before loan closing upon request of the applicant or upon order of the County Supervisor through the use of Form FHA–903, "Request for Cancellation of Loan," and approval of such cancellation by the loan approval official. For an insured loan, any checks advanced will be returned promptly to the lender with an explanatory letter. Interested parties will be notified of the cancellation as provided in § 307.7 of this chapter.

§ 332.9 Increase or decrease in amount of loan. If it becomes necessary that the amount of the loan be increased or decreased, the County Supervisor will request that all distributed docket forms be returned to the County Office. The loan docket will be revised accordingly and reprocessed.

§ 332.10 Occupancy of farms by borrowers acquiring land. When the acceptance of option letter has been mailed to the seller, the borrower will arrange with the seller, in consultation with the Supervisor, to occupy and operate the farm as soon as practicable. Agreements will be in writing and cover such subjects as disposition of growing crops, rentals, payment of maintenance costs, and other pertinent points. The following Forms will be used for this purpose, as appropriate:

Form FHA–189, "Short-Term Lease of Optioned Land".
Form FHA–198, "Short-Term Lease (Between Purchaser and Seller)".
Form FHA–129, "Temporary Cropping License".
Form FHA–199, "Agreement (Between Seller, Purchaser, and Tenant)".

(Sec. 3, 60 Stat. 1074, sec. 16, added 69 Stat. 553; 7 U. S. C. 1003, 1006c)

§ 332.11 Action by State Office after approval of loan—(a) Insured loan. When Form FHA–971, "Request for Check," is received from the County Office, the State Office will:

(1) When the name of the lender is known, enter the loan on the records maintained in the State Office to control the allocation of loans among lenders, attest the signature of the County Supervisor on the original of Form FHA–971, and forward the original of Form FHA–971 to the lender.

(2) When the National Office must provide the name of the lender, the State Director or other authorized State Office official will attest the signature of the County Supervisor on the original of Form FHA–971 and submit the Form FHA–971, without the name of the lender, to the National Office. The National Office will select a lender to make the loan and will forward the original of Form FHA–971 to the lender selected.

§ 332.12 Actions subsequent to receipt of preliminary title evidence and prior to loan closing—(a) County Supervisor. When the preliminary title evidence is received, it will be processed in accordance with Part 307 Subpart A, of this chapter. When necessary curative actions have been taken to provide a satisfactory title and a date has been set for loan closing, the County Supervisor will order the loan check. For an insured loan, the County Supervisor will request the check by preparing Form FHA–971 and submitting it to the State Director. In a case where the seller is to become the lender, the amount of the check requested will be only the amount of cash he will advance. Whenever the bank handling a supervised bank account will require the lender's personal check to clear before disbursing funds, the lender should be requested to furnish a certified or cashier's check. When suitable arrangements can be made with the lender, the bank draft method may be used to obtain insured loan funds. When a lender issues a loan check payable jointly to the borrower(s) and the Farmers Home Administration as a precaution against loss of funds, the County Supervisor is authorized to endorse the check on behalf of the Farmers Home Administration at the time of loan closing as follows: "Endorsed without recourse: Farmers Home Administration, By ——————, Title ——————." The State Director also is authorized to endorse such a check in the same manner. Authority to endorse such checks in no way relates to or modifies the regulations contained in Part 362 of this chapter regarding collection items, or the endorsement of such items.

(b) Designated attorney. When the designated attorney receives the County Supervisor's comments on the preliminary title opinion and necessary waivers, he will determine if a satisfactory title can be obtained. When it is determined that a satisfactory title can be obtained, he will consult with the County Supervisor as to a suitable closing date. Closing documents will be prepared in accordance with Part 307, Subpart A, of this chapter.

(c) Attorney in Charge. When the Attorney in Charge receives the preliminary title evidence or binder and any other material required in § 307.3 (d) or § 307.4 (a) of this chapter, and determines that title is satisfactory or that satisfactory title can be obtained, he will prepare and forward closing instructions to the County Supervisor. Any other documents to be used in connection with loan closing also will be forwarded.

§ 332.13 Loan closing actions. When a loan closing date has been agreed upon, the County Supervisor will notify the borrower and seller, if any, of the loan closing date. The loan will be closed with the assistance of the designated attorney, or in accordance with the closing instructions of the Attorney in Charge, and the following appropriate actions will be taken prior to and after loan closing:

(a) Insured loan. When a loan check has been received and the loan cannot be closed on the date set for loan closing or within 21 days from the date of the check, it will be returned to the lender with a request for cancellation. When a loan check is lost or destroyed, the County Supervisor will immediately notify the lender and, if the borrower still desires to close the loan, the lender will be requested to issue a new check. When a check is returned and the loan will be closed at a subsequent date, another check will be requested in accordance with the provisions of § 332.12 (a).

(b) Deposit of check. The loan check will be deposited in a supervised bank account, in accordance with Part 303 of this chapter, on the date of loan closing after it has been determined that the loan can be closed.

(c) Assignment of income from property to be mortgaged. Assignments will be taken when income is to be received by the borrower from royalties, leases, or other existing agreements under which the value of the security will be depreciated. Such assigned income will be applied as an extra payment on the loan. When the County Supervisor deems it advisable, assignments may also be taken for all or a portion of the income derived from nondepleting items such as bonus payments or annual delay rentals. Such assigned income will be applied as a regular payment. When a second mortgage loan is made, the written consent of the prior lienholder to the assignment will be obtained either by a letter or written approval by the lienholder on the assignment form.

(1) In cases in which income is to be received by the borrower from a mineral lease or other existing agreement pertaining to the property at the time of purchase, a Form FHA–253, "Assignment of Income from Real Estate Security," will be prepared and executed by the borrower and his wife at the time of loan closing. The original and one copy will be forwarded to the lessee with the request that the original be signed and returned to the County Office.

(2) If he deems it advisable, the County Supervisor, upon advice of the designated attorney or Attorney in Charge, as appropriate, may require the acknowledgment and recordation of the assignment. Any cost incident thereto will be borne by the borrower.

(d) Collection of appraisal fee and initial loan insurance charge for insured loans. (1) The County Supervisor will collect a $20 appraisal fee from each applicant at the time of loan closing. This fee may be included in the loan. Form FHA–37, "Receipt for Payment," will be prepared for the appraisal fee payment.

(2) The initial loan insurance charge will be collected from an insured loan applicant at the time of loan closing. The amount of such charge will be computed at the rate of one percent of the principal amount of the loan for the period from the date of loan closing to the first January 1 thereafter. Such charge must be paid from the applicant's personal funds. The amount of initial loan insurance charge will be included on the same Form FHA–37 prepared for the appraisal fee payment. If the first installment on the loan, or any portion thereof, is collected at the time of loan closing, it will be entered as a regular payment on the same Form FHA–37.

(e) Preparation of note. The date of the note, Forms FHA–190, "Promissory Note," or FHA–190A for direct loans or Forms FHA–240, "Promissory Note (Insured Farm Ownership Loan)," or FHA–240A for insured loans, will be the date of loan closing.

(1) When determining the amount of the first installment, the County Supervisor will consider the borrower's financial circumstances and the extent to which he will receive income from the farm during the calendar year preceding the date of the first installment. The amount of the first installment may be less but not more than a regular annual installment. If the borrower will not receive income from the farm during the calendar year preceding the date of the first installment, a nominal first installment will be sufficient, unless the borrower desires to pay more.

(2) The regular amortized installment will be the amount of principal and interest which, if paid annually, will retire the full amount of the note plus interest within the amortization period of the loan.

(3) When a loan is closed between December 1 and January 1, the first installment will be collected at the time of loan closing unless deferment is approved.

(4) The promissory note and mortgage will be signed by the borrower and, if married, his wife, at the time of loan closing.

NOTE: In the States of Delaware, New Jersey, New York, and Pennsylvania, Forms FHA–190A, "Bond," and FHA–240A, "Bond (Insured Farm Ownership Loan)," are used in place of Forms FHA–190, "Promissory Note," and FHA–240, "Promissory Note (Insured Farm Ownership Loan)," respectively.

(f) Mortgage forms. Real estate mortgage forms in series FHA–187 will be used for direct loans and forms in series FHA–242 will be used for insured loans.

(g) Applicant's financial condition. The County Supervisor will review with the applicant the financial statement which was prepared at the time the docket was developed. If there have been significant changes in his financial condition, the financial statement will be revised. When an applicant's financial condition has changed to the extent that it appears that the loan would be unsound or improper, the County Supervisor will submit a revised loan docket to the loan approval official for reconsideration.

(h) Change in use of funds planned for refinancing. (1) In cases where funds are included in the loan to refinance debts, the County Supervisor is authorized to transfer funds planned for refinancing between debts, provided all debts for which loan funds were planned are paid and the amount of loan funds to be used for refinancing does not exceed the amount planned for such purpose; except that the County Supervisor is authorized to use funds planned for other purposes to pay small deficiencies in estimates of the amount needed for refinancing, if he determines that sufficient funds will remain available to complete the planned farm development or land purchase.

(2) When the total amount of debts planned to be paid have increased so that they cannot be met within the authorities in subparagraph (1) of this paragraph or the applicant desires to transfer funds to pay debts for which loan funds were not planned, a revised loan docket will be submitted to the loan approval official for reconsideration. If the total amount of the loan will be increased, the docket will be processed in accordance with § 332.9.

(i) Insurance endorsement for insured loan. The County Supervisor is authorized to execute the insurance endorsement on the reverse of Form FHA–240 or FHA–240A. The State Director also is authorized to sign the insurance endorsement. Execution of the insurance endorsement constitutes the Government's insurance of the loan. If, for any reason, it is not possible for the same County Supervisor who signed Form FHA–971 to sign the insurance endorsement on the Promissory note, the original of the completed note will be sent to the State Office instead of directly to the lender. In such case, the State Director, or other authorized State Office official, will attest on the reverse of the note the signature of the different County Supervisor before sending the note to the lender. This will not be necessary when a local lender has no objection to a different signature on the insurance endorsement than that which appeared on Form FHA–971.

(j) Obtaining insurance. When there are insurable buildings on the farm, the County Supervisor will see that adequate insurance is provided, effective as of the time of loan closing, in accordance with Part 306 of this chapter.

(k) Loan closing. Loans will be closed in accordance with Part 307, Subpart A, of this chapter.

(l) Immediately after loan closing, the original Form FHA–190 or a conformed copy of Form FHA–240 will be sent to the Finance Office.

(2) Immediately after loan closing, the original Form FHA–240 will be sent to the lender, except that when the United States as trustee for a State Rural Rehabilitation Corporation is the lender it will be forwarded to the State Director for safekeeping.

(3) When the mortgage is returned by the recording official, it will be retained in the County Office.

(4) The original deed of conveyance, if any, and conformed copy of the mortgage will be delivered to the borrower.

(5) If the borrower secures an owner's policy of title insurance, the County Supervisor will deliver it to the borrower as soon as it is received from the title insurance company.

(l) Effective time of loan closing. A Farm Ownership loan is considered closed when the mortgage is filed for record.

(m) Water stock certificates. Water stock certificates will be sent to the State Office for safekeeping.

(n) Abstracts of title. Any abstract of title will be delivered to the borrower for safekeeping except when an abstract is secured from a third party with the understanding it will be returned, such abstract will be sent directly to the third party. The County Supervisor will obtain a receipt from the borrower at the time the abstract is delivered to him. The receipt will be signed and dated by the borrower and the abstract will be identified in the receipt by showing the name of the abstractor who prepared the abstract, the number, if any, assigned by the abstractor, and the period covered by the abstract.

Subchapter C—Operating Loans

[FHA Instruction 441.3]

PART 342—OPERATING LOAN PROCESSING

Part 342, "Processing," Title 6, Code of Federal Regulations, is revised to read as follows:

Sec.
342.1 General.
342.2 Definitions.
342.3 Loan forms and routines.
342.4 Review and approval or rejection.

Sec.
342.5 Loan checks.
342.6 Loan closing.
342.7 Revision in the use of loan funds.

AUTHORITY: §§ 342.1 to 342.7 issued under sec. 41 (1), 60 Stat. 1066, 7 U. S. C. 1015 (1). Interpret or apply sec. 21, 70 Stat. 802, sec. 42 (c), 60 Stat. 1067, sec. 44, 60 Stat. 1068, as amended, sec. 48, 60 Stat. 1070, as amended, sec. 1, 63 Stat. 407, sec. 1311, 68 Stat. 830; 7 U. S. C. 1007, 1016, 1018, 1022, 31 U. S. C. 712a, 200.

§ 342.1 General. This part sets forth the requirements and procedures for the preparation and execution of documents and for other routines in connection with making Operating loans as prescribed in Subparts A and B of Part 341 in this chapter.

§ 342.2 Definitions. (a) "Applicant" is any individual who applies for an Operating loan under Title II of the Bankhead-Jones Farm Tenant Act, regardless of whether he has previously obtained or is presently indebted for such a loan.

(b) "Initial Operating Loan" is an Operating loan made to an applicant who is not indebted for a loan made under Title II of said act.

(c) "Subsequent Operating Loan" is an Operating loan made to an applicant who is indebted for a loan made under Title II of said act.

§ 342.3 Loan forms and routines—(a) Applications for loans. (1) Applicants for initial loans will execute Form FHA–197, "Application for FHA Services."

(2) Applicants for subsequent loans will not be required to execute Form FHA–197 but will be required to execute Form FHA–49, "Certifications—Operating Loans," in accordance with paragraph (b) of this section. If the financial statement executed by the applicant in connection with his most recent Farmers Home Administration loan does not reflect his current financial situation, a new financial statement will be made on a Form FHA–14, "Farm and Home Plan," for use by the County Committee in determining the eligibility of the applicant.

(3) If any debts owed by the applicant to the Farmers Home Administration have been settled for less than payment in full, the loan docket and any related County Office case files will be submitted to the National Office for review prior to approval of the loan.

(b) Form FHA–49, "Certifications—Operating Loans." (1) The "Applicant Certification," on Form FHA–49 will be executed by each applicant at the time the application for assistance for the crop year is made. However, if the County Committee has previously certified the applicant as eligible for loan assistance for a designated crop year, it will not be necessary for the applicant to execute another certification on Form FHA–49 provided the loan assistance to be extended is within the maximum amount established and the period covered by the existing County Committee certification.

(2) When the applicant is determined to be eligible, the County Committee will execute the "County Committee Certification," on Form FHA–49 before the loan is approved. This certification will cover any loan(s) to be made to the applicant for the crop year specified within the maximum amount of credit established by the County Committee. The date designated by the County Committee as the end of the crop year and the maximum amount of credit will be inserted in the appropriate spaces.

(3) In connection with an application for a subsequent loan, when the County Committee has agreed to increase the original amount of loan assistance certified for the crop year because such amount was insufficient to meet the needs of the borrower, a new Form FHA–49 will be prepared and executed.

(4) When the applicant is determined to be ineligible, the County Supervisor will notify the applicant of the County Committee action and the reasons therefor.

(5) County Committee actions regarding the eligibility of applicants will be taken in Committee meetings attended by at least two members.

(c) Form FHA–14A, "Long-Time Farm and Home Plan." Form FHA–14A will be developed for all applicants for initial loans who are full-time operators of family-type farms except for those whose loans are scheduled for payment in full from the income received from the first year's operations.

(d) Form FHA–14, "Farm and Home Plan." Form FHA–14 will be developed for all Operating loans.

(e) Appraisal of property. The following information will be obtained concerning each secured or unsecured debt to be refinanced: The name of the applicant; the name of the lienholder, if any; the amount owing on the debt; a description of each item of property on which the indebtedness is owed and the market value of each; and the total value of all property on which the indebtedness is owed.

(f) Tenure agreement. Generally, a copy of the lease agreement between tenant applicants and their landlords will be obtained and made a part of the loan docket. Where it is not practical to obtain a copy of the lease agreement, a statement setting forth those terms and conditions of the agreement which are not clearly reflected in the Farm and Home Plan will be prepared and made a part of the loan docket.

(g) Form FHA–31, "Promissory Note." The amount of each loan and the scheduled payments thereon will be in multiples of $10. Not more than four payments on a single note will be scheduled for any year. The time limitations for payment schedules prescribed in § 341.9 of Subpart A, of this chapter run from the date of the loan check instead of from the date of the note. Form FHA–31 will be dated as of the date of execution by the applicant. The applicant's spouse will be required to execute Form FHA–31 when legally required by State law, or the loan approval official determines that the signature is needed because of the spouse's interest in the farm being operated or in property offered as security, or it is determined by the State Director, on a state basis, that the spouse's signature will be required.

(h) Form FHA–5, "Loan Authorization." Form FHA–5 will be prepared for the total amount of the loan as indicated on Form FHA–31. Separate Forms FHA–5 will be prepared for each loan. The approval official will indicate his determination that the applicant is eligible and his approval of the loan by signing and dating the original in the space provided.

(i) Immediate and future loans. All of the applicant's anticipated credit needs for the crop year will be planned for when Form FHA–14 is developed and, ordinarily, all of the required loan documents will be submitted to the Finance Office at one time. Such documents may provide for the loan funds to be disbursed in an immediate loan, or an immediate loan and one or more future loans, or one or more future loans without an immediate loan. However, all such loans must be disbursed at least 30 days apart and not later than the end of the fiscal year in which they were approved. If it is not practical for all of the loans to be disbursed by the end of the fiscal year, additional loans may be approved and submitted after the beginning of the succeeding fiscal year to meet the remainder of the applicant's credit needs for that crop year if the loan funds are then available. Subject to the above requirements, additional loans also may be submitted at any time during the crop year to meet credit needs of the applicant which could not be anticipated at the beginning of the crop year, provided the need for such credit is reflected on a revision of Form FHA–14.

(1) When credit is to be extended in more than one loan, a separate loan authorization and note must be submitted for each loan.

(2) When a loan is approved for a single future disbursement, the loan will be "initial" or "subsequent" in accordance with § 342.2 (b) or (c), whichever is appropriate. When loan assistance is provided in more than one loan, all such loans will be shown as the same type, that is, either initial or subsequent, depending on the status of the account at the time the first such loan is made.

(j) Form FHA–30, "Crop and Chattel Mortgage." The property listed should be described accurately and adequately. The requirements for the signature of the applicant's spouse will be as prescribed for Form FHA–31 in paragraph (g) of this section.

(k) Form FHA–32, "Subordination Agreement." When a Subordination Agreement is required, Form FHA–32, or other form approved by the State Director, with the advice of the Attorney in Charge, where Form FHA–32 is not legally sufficient, will be used. The years to be covered by the subordination generally will be for the unexpired period of the lease but as a minimum will be for the year for which the loan is made.

(l) Form FHA–80, "Assignment of Proceeds from the Sale of Agricultural Products." Form FHA–80 or other form approved by the State Director, with the advice of the Attorney in Charge, will be used to obtain an assignment of proceeds from the sale of farm, dairy, poultry, or other agricultural products.

(m) Form FHA–916, (Form Letter). Form FHA–916 will be used when it is necessary to obtain both a division of income and a non-disturbance agreement from prior lienholders.

(n) Form FHA–933, "Nondisturbance Agreement." Form FHA–933 will be used when it is necessary to obtain only nondisturbance agreements from creditors of an applicant who are in a position to interfere with the applicant's farming operations.

(o) Form FHA–310, "Extension Agreement." Form FHA–310 will be used when it is necessary to extend installments on a borrower's note(s) and advance him additional credit after the 7-year continuous indebtedness limitation has been reached. Form FHA–310 will be prepared for each note on which an installment(s) is extended in accordance with the policies expressed in § 341.12 (c) of this subchapter and the following.

(1) Loans may be made after the 7-year continuous indebtedness limitation has been reached only during the period for which the borrower's existing note(s) has been extended. Therefore, the payment schedule on at least one note will be extended when making the first loan after the 7-year continuous indebtedness limitation has been reached. After the extension has been processed, additional loans may be made within the extended period without further extension. If the original extension was not for the full period authorized, and an additional loan is to be made after the expiration of the extended period, a further extension, within the maximum period, must be approved. The extended period is the period between the date ending the period of 7-year continuous indebtedness and the latest due date to which any installment is extended. Extension agreements will be entered into only in connection with the making of additional loans.

(2) Form FHA–310 will be executed by the borrower, the loan approval official, and by any junior lien holder(s). The Form will be dated as of the date it is executed by the borrower. The original will be transmitted to the Finance Office along with Forms FHA–31 and FHA–5.

(3) Any necessary actions will be taken to maintain the priority of the Government's lien securing the note(s) being extended.

§ 342.4 Review and approval or rejection. After the loan documents have been assembled, the loan approval official will make the determinations required in § 341.13 (a) or § 341.33 of this subchapter, whichever is applicable to the type of loan involved.

(a) Approval of loans. If the loan is to be approved, the loan approval official will date and sign Form FHA–5. In cases in which an Operating loan is being made in connection with the making of a Real Estate loan and one loan is dependent on the other, the loan approval official may determine that the loan checks should be issued simultaneously in order to avoid unnecessary interest charges to the applicant. In such cases, when it is not possible to request the Farm Ownership funds before the end of the fiscal year, it will be necessary to obtain a new note and a loan authorization for the Operating loan which must be approved after the beginning of the new fiscal year.

(b) Rejection of loans. If a loan is rejected, the County Supervisor will notify the applicant of the rejection and will return to him only the signed copy of Form FHA–31, tenure agreements, and any executed security instruments.

§ 342.5 Loan checks—(a) Undelivered checks. If for any reason a loan check cannot be delivered within 21 days from the date thereof, it will be returned to the Regional Disbursing Office, United States Treasury Department, 716 New Federal Building, St. Louis 1, Missouri, with a request for cancellation or remailing. When a substantial delay is likely to be encountered in the delivery of a loan check, ordinarily it will be advisable to return the check for cancellation rather than remailing because interest accrues from the date of the loan check. In such cases, a new loan check can be obtained at a suitable time by submitting a new loan authorization and note to the Finance Office.

(b) Lost or destroyed checks. When a loan check is lost or destroyed, and the borrower desires to cancel the check, or if a substitute check is to be issued, the County Supervisor will so advise the Finance Office which will take the necessary action. Under no circumstances will the County Supervisor process a new loan authorization to obtain a check to replace one which has been lost or destroyed.

§ 342.6 Loan closing—(a) Check delivery. Only bonded employees of the Farmers Home Administration will receive and deliver loan checks. Upon receipt of a loan check, the County Supervisor will notify the applicant promptly, indicating where and when he may expect delivery of the check, or will mail the check to him, or when a supervised bank account is required and the depository bank does not require the applicant's endorsement for deposit, he may deposit the loan check in the supervised bank account and furnish the applicant a copy of the deposit slip. If the bank will not accept the loan check for deposit in a supervised bank account without the applicant's endorsement, the County Supervisor will retain the check and arrange with the applicant for a time and place for its deposit.

(b) Form FHA–87, "Report of Lien Search." Form FHA–87 or other form providing substantially the same information will be prepared.

(1) Lien searches will be obtained at a time which will assure that the security instruments filed or recorded give the Government the required security.

(2) Except as otherwise provided in this subparagraph, applicants are required to obtain and pay the cost of lien searches. County Supervisors will make inquiries locally concerning the available sources through which satisfactory lien searches can be obtained at nominal cost to applicants. However, applicants should select the sources through which lien searches are made. The cost of lien searches may be paid from the proceeds of loan checks when necessary.

(i) State Directors may authorize the employees of a particular County Office unit to make lien searches without cost to applicants when the cost of lien searches is exorbitant, such service is not available, or experience has shown that the service available will cause undue delay in the closing of loans or make it difficult to comply with the provisions of subparagraph (1) of this paragraph.

(ii) County Office employees may make continuation lien searches when such searches are made as referred to in the last sentence of subparagraph (1) of this paragraph; or if such lien searches are required, as determined by the State Director based upon the advice of the Attorney in Charge, in connection with subsequent mortgages taken to describe additional chattels purchased with loan funds.

(c) Security documents. Bonded County Office employees are authorized to execute and file or record any legal instruments necessary to obtain or preserve security for loans. This includes mortgages and similar lien instruments, as well as affidavits, acknowledgments, and other certifications, when the mortgagee must execute such instruments under State law.

(d) Obtaining security for Operating loans. In cases in which capital goods are to be purchased and covered by a lien, the County Supervisor will encourage the applicant to make preliminary arrangements for the purchase of all such items by the time the initial mortgage is taken in order to eliminate the taking of additional mortgages. The taking of security in closing loans will be governed by the following requirements:

(1) If all of the loan funds are deposited in a supervised bank account, the initial mortgage to secure the loan will be taken not later than the date of the first withdrawal of any of the loan funds from such account.

(2) If only a part or none of the loan funds are deposited in a supervised bank account, the initial mortgage to secure the loan will be taken not later than the time of the delivery of the loan check to the applicant.

(3) If, at the time the initial mortgage is taken under the requirements of subparagraphs (1) or (2) of this paragraph, a part of the property which is to serve as security for the loan is yet to be purchased, a first lien will be taken on such property at the time it is purchased, unless the after-acquired property clause in the mortgage gives the Government a first lien on such property.

(e) Executing and recording or filing. Crop and chattel mortgages must be delivered or mailed to the recording office for recordation or filing, whichever is appropriate, the same day such instruments are executed and delivered to the Farmers Home Administration, provided that executed lien instruments received too late in the day to be delivered or mailed to the recording office on that day will be delivered or mailed not later than the next work day; and in those cases in which lien instruments are taken before delivery of the loan checks, such instruments will be delivered or mailed to the recording official for filing or recording by the time the loan check is delivered.

(f) Fees. Statutory fees for filing or recording mortgages or other legal instruments and notary and lien search fees incident to loan transactions in all cases will be paid by the borrower from personal funds or from the proceeds of the loan.

(1) Whenever cash is accepted by Farmers Home Administration personnel to be used to pay the filing or recording fees for security instruments, or the cost of making lien searches, Form FHA–385, "Acknowledgment of Payment for Recording and Lien Search Fees," will be executed.

§ 342.7 Revision in the use of loan funds. (a) The concurrence of the official who approved the loan involved ordinarily will be obtained before changes are made in the purposes for which loan funds are to be used. However, minor changes involving only relatively nominal amounts may be approved by the County Supervisor with respect to loans approved by other officials, provided adequate loan funds will be available to carry out the purposes of the loan. In all instances, the use made of loan funds must be in accord with the purposes for which Operating loans may be made, and the borrower and the County Supervisor must agree to the changes.

(b) When changes are made in the use of loan funds, no revision will be made in the payment schedule on Form FHA–31. However, when funds loaned for the purchase of capital goods are to be used to meet operating expenses, the borrower must agree to pay the funds so used in accordance with the payment terms prescribed in § 341.9 of this subchapter. Appropriate changes with respect to the payments will be made in Form FHA–14 and initialed by the borrower.

TITLE 7—AGRICULTURE

Chapter VIII—Commodity Stabilization Service (Sugar), Department of Agriculture

Subchapter B—Sugar Requirements and Quotas

DOMESTIC BEET SUGAR AREA, 1957

Basis and purpose. This allotment order is issued under section 205 (a) of the Sugar Act of 1948, as amended (hereinafter called the "act"), for the purpose of establishing allotments of the 1957 sugar quota for the Domestic Beet Sugar Area for the period January 1, 1957, to the date allotments of such quota are prescribed for the full calendar year 1957.

Omission of recommended decision and effective date. The record of the hearing regarding the subject of this order shows that about 1,515,000 short tons, raw value, of sugar will be held in inventory by the allottees on January 1, 1957, or will be produced by them from the remainder of the 1956-crop sugar beets by July 1957. This quantity of sugar, along with production of sugar from the 1957-crop beets will result in a supply of sugar available for marketing in 1957 in excess of the 1957 quota that may be expected for the area. Thus, lack of continuity in allotment of the quota might lead to disorderly marketing and some interested persons may be prevented from having equitable opportunities to market sugar and the interests of growers of sugar beets might be adversely affected (R. 5). Inventories of sugar on January 1, 1957, together with production in early 1957 may make it possible for some allottees to market a quantity of sugar larger than the allotments established by this order. It, therefore, is necessary that such allotments, to be effective, be in effect on January 1, 1957. In view thereof, and since this proceeding was instituted for the purpose of issuing allotments to prevent disorderly marketing of sugar and to afford all interested persons an equitable opportunity to market, it is hereby found that due and timely execution of the functions imposed upon the Secretary under the act imperatively and unavoidably requires omission of a recommended decision in this proceeding. It is hereby further found that compliance with the 30-day effective date requirement of the Administrative Procedure Act (60 Stat. 237), is impracticable and contrary to the public interest and, consequently, this order shall be effective on January 1, 1957.

Preliminary statement. Section 205 (a) of the act requires the Secretary to allot a quota whenever he finds that the allotment is necessary (1) to assure an orderly and adequate flow of sugar or liquid sugar in the channels of interstate or foreign commerce, (2) to prevent the disorderly marketing of sugar or liquid sugar, (3) to maintain a continuous and stable supply of sugar, or (4) to afford all interested persons equitable opportunities to market sugar within the quota for the area. Section 205 (a) also requires that such allotment be made after such hearing and upon such notice as the Secretary may by regulation prescribe.

Pursuant to the applicable rules of practice and procedure (21 F. R. 4251) a preliminary finding was made that allotment of the quota is necessary, and a notice was published on October 20, 1956 (21 F. R. 8087), of a public hearing to be held at Washington, D. C., in Room 2W, Administration Building of the Department of Agriculture on November 1, 1956, at 10:00 a. m., e. s. t., for the purpose of receiving evidence to enable the Secretary (1) to affirm, modify or revoke the preliminary finding of necessity for allotments, and (2) to establish fair, efficient and equitable allotments of a portion of the 1957 quota for the Domestic Beet Sugar Area for the period January 1, 1957 to the date the Secretary prescribes allotments of such quota for the calendar year 1957.

The hearing was held at the place and time specified in the notice.

Basis for findings and conclusions. Section 205 (a) of the act reads in pertinent part as follows:

• • • Allotments shall be made in such manner and in such amounts as to provide a fair, efficient, and equitable distribution of such quota or proration thereof, by taking into consideration the processing of sugar or liquid sugar from sugar beets or sugarcane to which proportionate shares, determined pursuant to the provisions of subsection (b) of section 302, pertained; the past marketings or importations of each such person and the ability of such person to market or import that portion of such quota or proration thereof allotted to him • • •

The necessity for allotment of the 1957 sugar quota for the Domestic Beet Sugar Area is indicated by the fact that the quantity of sugar in prospect for marketing in 1957 exceeds the quota that may be established and that in the absence of allotments disorderly marketing might occur and some interested persons may be prevented from having equitable opportunities to market sugar (R. 5).

Testimony indicates that it is desirable to defer allotment proceedings with respect to the allotment of the full quota for 1957 until the level of processings from the 1956 beet crop will be known or can be closely approximated, but that allotments of a portion of the quota should be in effect January 1, 1957, because inventories of sugar on January 1, 1957, together with production of sugar in early 1957 may make it possible for some allottees to market shortly after January 1, 1957, a quantity of sugar larger than eventually may be allotted to them (R. 5, 6).

To meet this situation it was proposed that allotment of 1,600,000 short tons, raw value, of the 1957 sugar quota for the Domestic Beet Sugar Area be established to be effective for the period January 1, 1957, to the date allotments of the entire quota for the calendar year are established, by alloting 1,600,000 short tons, raw value, to the respective allottees on the basis that each allottee's allotment be the same proportion of 1,600,000 short tons, raw value, as his allotment was of the total 1956 allotments established in Sugar Regulation 814.32, Amendment 2, effective August 15, 1956 (21 F. R. 6083, R. 6, Ex. 4).

Allotments established on this basis give effect to the three factors cited in section 205 (a) of the act for consideration in allotting a quota in the same manner that these factors were treated in allotting the quota for 1956 and constitute a fair, efficient and equitable allotment of a portion of the 1957 quota to be in effect for the early part of the year (R. 7, 8).

In accordance with the hearing record (R. 9) it has been found that the Holly Sugar Corporation is the successor of the Garden City Company and Menominee Sugar Company is successor to Superior Sugar Refining Company.

The hearing record contains proposals (R. 9, 10) to include in the order to become effective January 1, 1957, paragraphs essentially the same as paragraphs (b) and (c) of Sugar Regulation 814.32 (20 F. R. 9853), which established initial allotments for 1956, and paragraph (c) of Sugar Regulation 814.32, Amendment 1 (21 F. R. 2589). No testimony, proposals or arguments contrary to that outlined above appear in the hearing record.

Findings and conclusions. On the basis of the record of the hearing, I hereby find and conclude that:

(1) For the calendar year 1957 Domestic Beet Sugar processors will have available for marketing from 1956-crop sugar beets about 1,515,000 short tons, raw value, of sugar. This quantity of sugar, together with production of sugar from 1957-crop beets, will result in a supply of sugar available for marketing in 1957 sufficiently in excess of the anticipated 1957 quota for the Domestic Beet Sugar Area to cause disorderly marketing and prevent some interested persons from having equitable opportunities to market sugar.

(2) The allotment of the 1957 Domestic Beet Sugar Area quota is necessary to prevent disorderly marketings and to afford all interested persons equitable opportunities to market sugar processed from sugar beets produced in the area.

(3) Allotment of the entire 1957 calendar year sugar quota for the Domestic Beet Sugar Area should be deferred until processings of the 1956-crop sugar beets can be known or closely estimated for all allottees. However, it is necessary that an allotment of such quota be in effect on January 1, 1957, in order to avoid disorderly marketing out of sugar on hand on that date or to be produced shortly thereafter, and to afford all interested persons equitable opportunities to market sugar.

(4) The findings in (3), above, require that, effective for the period January 1, 1957, until the date allotments of the entire 1957 Domestic Beet Sugar Area quota for the full calendar year are prescribed, 1,600,000 short tons, raw value, of the 1957 quota shall be allotted. Allotments of such quantity shall be established by allotting to each allottee the same proportion of 1,600,000 short tons, raw value, as his allotment was of the total 1956 allotments established by Sugar Regulation 814.32, Amendment 2, effective August 15, 1956.

(5) In establishing allotment of the 1957 sugar quota for the Domestic Beet Sugar Area as found in (4), above, the statutory factors, "processings • • • from • • • proportionate shares," "part marketings" and "ability to market" have been taken into consideration.

(6) The allotments of the 1956 quota referred to in (4), above, are as set forth in the following table:

Processor	Allotments (100-pound bags refined beet sugar)

(7) The Holly Sugar Corporation shall succeed to all interests of the Garden City Company and the Menominee Sugar Company shall succeed to all interests of Superior Sugar Refining Company as allottees of the 1957 sugar quota for the Domestic Beet Sugar Area.

(8) To assure that the marketing of sugar or liquid sugar is charged against the proper allotment, it is necessary that the order provide for charges to allotments of processors who sell sugar beets, or molasses derived from sugar beets, but retain and process such sugar beets or molasses into sugar or liquid sugar for delivery to or for the account of the buyer.

(9) To facilitate full and effective use of allotments, provision shall be made in the order for transfer of allotments under circumstances of a succession of interest.

(10) Provision shall be made in the order to restrict marketings of sugar to allotments established herein.

(11) For the period January 1, 1957, until the date allotments of the entire 1957 calendar year sugar quota for the Domestic Beet Sugar Area are prescribed, the allotments established in the foregoing manner and in the quantities set forth in the order provide a fair, efficient and equitable distribution of such quota and meet the requirements of section 205 (a) of the act.

Order. Pursuant to the authority vested in the Secretary of Agriculture by section 205 (a) of the act, it is hereby ordered:

R. 4707), regulating the handling of navel oranges grown in Arizona and designated part of California, effective September 22, 1953, under the applicable provisions of the Agricultural Marketing Agreement Act of 1937, as amended (7 U. S. C. 601 et seq.; 68 Stat. 906, 1047), and upon the basis of the recommendation and information submitted by the Navel Orange Administrative Committee, established under the said amended marketing agreement and order, and upon other available information, it is hereby found that the limitation of handling of such navel oranges, as hereinafter provided, will tend to effectuate the declared policy of the act.

2. It is hereby further found that it is impracticable and contrary to the public interest to give preliminary notice, engage in public rule-making procedure, and postpone the effective date of this amendment until 30 days after publication thereof in the FEDERAL REGISTER (60 Stat. 237; 5 U. AUTHORITY: §§ 1017.0 to 1017.88 issued under sec. 5, 49 Stat. 753, as amended; 7 U. S. C. 608c.

§ 1017.0 Findings and determinations—(a) Findings upon the basis of the hearing record. Pursuant to Public Act No. 10, 73d Congress (May 12, 1933), as amended, and as reenacted and amended by the Agricultural Marketing Agreement Act of 1937, as amended (48 Stat. 31, as amended; 7 U. S. C. 601 et seq.; 68 Stat. 906, 1047), and the rules of practice and procedure governing proceedings to formulate marketing agreements and marketing orders (7 CFR Part 900), a public hearing was held at Caldwell, Idaho, on June 20–21, 1956, upon a proposed marketing agreement and a proposed marketing order regulating the handling of onions grown in Malheur County, Oregon, and in all counties south and southeast of the southern boundary of Idaho County in the State of Idaho. Upon the basis of the evidence introduced at such hearing, and the record thereof, it is found that:

(1) This order, and all the terms and conditions hereof, will tend to effectuate the declared policy of the act with respect to onions produced in the production area (i) by establishing and maintaining such orderly marketing conditions therefor as will tend to establish, as prices to the producers thereof, parity prices, (ii) and by protecting the interest of the consumer by approaching the level of prices which it is declared in the act to be the policy of Congress to establish by a gradual correction of the current level of prices at as rapid a rate as the Secretary deems to be in the public interest and feasible in view of the current consumptive demand in domestic and foreign markets, and by authorizing no action which has for its purpose the maintenance of prices to producers of such onions above the parity level, and (iii) by authorizing the establishment and maintenance of such minimum standards of quality and maturity, and such grading and inspection requirements as may be incidental thereto, as will tend to effectuate such orderly marketing of such onions as will be in the public interest;

(2) This order regulates the handling of onions grown in the production area in the same manner as, and is applicable only to persons in the respective classes of industrial and commercial activity specified in, a proposed marketing agreement upon which a hearing has been held;

(3) This order is limited in application to the smallest regional production area which is practicable, consistently with carrying out the declared policy of the act; and the issuance of several orders applicable to subdivisions of the production area would not effectively carry out the declared policy of the act;

(4) This order prescribes, so far as practicable, such different terms, applicable to different parts of the production area, as are necessary to give due recognition to the differences in the production and marketing of onions grown in the production area; and

(5) All handling of onions grown in the production area is in the current of interstate or foreign commerce, or directly burdens, obstructs, or affects such commerce.

(b) Determinations. It is hereby determined that:

(1) Handlers (excluding cooperative associations of producers who are not engaged in processing, distributing, or shipping onions covered by this order) of more than 50 percent of the volume of onions covered by this order have signed a marketing agreement regulating the handling of onions grown in the production area, and

(2) The issuance of this order is approved or favored (i) by at least two-thirds of the producers of onions who participated in a referendum held during the period December 10 through December 17, 1956, and who, during the determined representative period (July 1, 1955, to June 30, 1956), have been engaged within the production area in the production of onions for market, and (ii) by producers who participated in the aforesaid referendum who, during the aforesaid representative period, produced for market at least two-thirds of the volume of such onions produced for market within the production area specified herein by all producers who participated in the said referendum.

Order relative to handling. It is, therefore, ordered that on and after the effective time hereof, the handling of onions grown in Malheur County, Oregon, and in all counties south and southeast of the southern boundary of Idaho County in the State of Idaho, shall be in conformity to and in compliance with the terms and conditions of this order; and such terms and conditions are as follows:

AUTHORITY: §§ 1017.0 to 1017.88 issued under sec. 5, 49 Stat. 753, as amended; 7 U. S. C. 608c.

§ 1017.0 Findings and determinations—(a) Findings upon the basis of the hearing record. Pursuant to Public Act No. 10, 73d Congress (May 12, 1933), as amended, and as reenacted and amended by the Agricultural Marketing Agreement Act of 1937, as amended (48 Stat. 31, as amended; 7 U. S. C. 601 et seq.; 68 Stat. 906, 1047), and the rules of practice and procedure governing proceedings to formulate marketing agreements and marketing orders (7 CFR Part 900), a public hearing was held at Caldwell, Idaho, on June 20–21, 1956, upon a proposed marketing agreement and a proposed marketing order regulating the handling of onions grown in Malheur County, Oregon, and in all counties south and southeast of the southern boundary of Idaho County in the State of Idaho. Upon the basis of the evidence introduced at such hearing, and the record thereof, it is found that:

(1) This order, and all the terms and conditions hereof, will tend to effectuate the declared policy of the act with respect to onions produced in the production area (i) by establishing and maintaining such orderly marketing conditions therefor as will tend to establish, as prices to the producers thereof, parity prices, (ii) and by protecting the interest of the consumer by approaching the level of prices which it is declared in the act to be the policy of Congress to establish by a gradual correction of the current level of prices at as rapid a rate as the Secretary deems to be in the public interest and feasible in view of the current consumptive demand in domestic and foreign markets, and by authorizing no action which has for its purpose the maintenance of prices to producers of such onions above the parity level, and (iii) by authorizing the establishment and maintenance of such minimum standards of quality and maturity, and such grading and inspection requirements as may be incidental thereto, as will tend to effectuate such orderly marketing of such onions as will be in the public interest;

(2) This order regulates the handling of onions grown in the production area in the same manner as, and is applicable only to persons in the respective classes of industrial and commercial activity specified in, a proposed marketing agreement upon which a hearing has been held;

(3) This order is limited in application to the smallest regional production area which is practicable, consistently with carrying out the declared policy of the act; and the issuance of several orders applicable to subdivisions of the production area would not effectively carry out the declared policy of the act;

(4) This order prescribes, so far as practicable, such different terms, applicable to different parts of the production area, as are necessary to give due recognition to the differences in the production and marketing of onions grown in the production area; and

(5) All handling of onions grown in the production area is in the current of interstate or foreign commerce, or directly burdens, obstructs, or affects such commerce.

(b) Determinations. It is hereby determined that:

(1) Handlers (excluding cooperative associations of producers who are not engaged in processing, distributing, or shipping onions covered by this order) of more than 50 percent of the volume of onions covered by this order have signed a marketing agreement regulating the handling of onions grown in the production area, and

(2) The issuance of this order is approved or favored (i) by at least two-thirds of the producers of onions who participated in a referendum held during the period December 10 through December 17, 1956, and who, during the determined representative period (July 1, 1955, to June 30, 1956), have been engaged within the production area in the production of onions for market, and (ii) by producers who participated in the aforesaid referendum who, during the aforesaid representative period, produced for market at least two-thirds of the volume of such onions produced for market within the production area specified herein by all producers who participated in the said referendum.

Order relative to handling. It is, therefore, ordered that on and after the effective time thereof, the handling of onions grown in Malheur County, Oregon, and in all counties south and southeast of the southern boundary of Idaho County in the State of Idaho, shall be in conformity to and in compliance with the terms and conditions of this order; and such terms and conditions are as follows:

§ 1017.28 Nominations. Nominations from which the Secretary may select the members of the Idaho-Eastern Oregon Onion Committee and their respective alternates may be made in the following manner:

(a) The committee shall hold or cause to be held prior to April 1 of each year, after the effective date of this subpart, one or more meetings of producers and of handlers in each of the districts, or portions of the production area, in which the then current terms of office will expire the following May 31;

(b) In arranging for such meetings the committee may, if it deems desirable, cooperate with existing organizations and agencies and may combine its meetings with others;

(c) Nominations for committee members and alternate members shall be supplied to the Secretary, in such manner and form as he may prescribe, not later than 30 days prior to the end of each fiscal period;

(d) Only producers may participate in designating nominees for producer committee members and their alternates and only handlers may participate in designating nominees for handler committee members and their alternates;

(e) Each person who is both a handler and a producer may vote either as a handler or as a producer and may select the group in which he will vote; and

(f) Regardless of the number of districts in which a person produces or handles onions, each such person is entitled to cast only one vote on behalf of himself, his partners, agents, subsidiaries, affiliates and representatives, in designating nominees for committee members and alternates. In the event a person is a producer engaged in producing onions in more than one district, such person shall select the district within which he may participate as aforesaid in designating nominees. Similarly, a person who is a handler both in Malheur County, Oregon, and in the Idaho portion of the production area, may select either Malheur County or the Idaho portion of the production area in which to cast his vote for the applicable committee handler member and alternate. Each such handler shall also be entitled to cast his vote for the committee member and alternate to represent the production area-at-large. An eligible voter's privilege of casting only one vote, as aforesaid, shall be construed to permit such voter to cast one vote for each member and alternate position to be filled in the respective district or portion of the production area, as the case may be, in which he elects to vote.

§ 1017.29 Failure to nominate. If nominations are not made within the time and in the manner specified by the Secretary pursuant to § 1017.28, the Secretary may, without regard to nominations, select the committee members and alternates on the basis of the representation provided for in this subpart.

§ 1017.30 Vacancies. To fill any vacancy occasioned by the failure of any person, selected as a committee member or alternate, to qualify, or in the event of the death, removal, resignation, or disqualification of any qualified member or alternate, a successor for his unexpired term may be selected by the Secretary from nominations made in the manner specified in § 1017.28, or the Secretary may select such committee member or alternate from previously unselected nominees on the current nominee list from the district or portion of the production area, as the case may be, that is involved, or from other eligible persons. If the names of nominees to fill any such vacancy are not made available to the Secretary within 30 days after such vacancy occurs, the Secretary may fill such vacancy without regard to nominations, which selection shall be made on the basis of the representation provided for in this subpart.

EXPENSES AND ASSESSMENTS

§ 1017.40 Expenses. The committee is authorized to incur such expenses as the Secretary may find are reasonable and likely to be incurred by it during each fiscal period for its maintenance and functioning, and for such purposes as the Secretary, pursuant to this subpart, determines to be appropriate. Handlers shall share expenses upon the basis of a fiscal period. Each handler's share of such expenses shall be proportionate to the ratio between the total quantity of such handler's onion shipments inspected pursuant to this part that are handled by him as the first handler thereof during a fiscal period, and the total quantity of such onions handled by all handlers as first handlers thereof during the same period.

§ 1017.41 Budget. At the beginning of each fiscal period, and as may be necessary thereafter, the committee shall prepare a budget of estimated income and expenditures necessary for the administration of this part. The committee shall recommend to the Secretary a rate of assessment calculated to provide adequate funds to defray its proposed expenditures. The committee shall present such budget promptly to the Secretary with an accompanying report thereon showing the basis for its calculations and recommended rate.

§ 1017.42 Assessments. (a) The funds to cover the committee's expenses pursuant to § 1017.40 shall be acquired by the levying of assessments upon handlers as provided in this subpart. Each handler who handles onions as the first handler thereof which are inspected pursuant to this part shall pay assessments to the committee upon demand, which assessments shall be in payment of such handler's pro rata share of such expenses.

(b) Assessments shall be levied upon handlers at rates established by the Secretary. Such rates may be established upon the basis of the committee's recommendations or other available information.

(c) At any time during or subsequent to a given fiscal period, the committee may recommend the approval of an amended budget and an increase in the rate of assessment. Upon the basis of such recommendation, or other available information, the Secretary may approve an amended budget and increase the rate of assessment. Such increase shall be applicable to all onion shipments inspected pursuant to this part during such fiscal period.

§ 1017.43 Accounting. (a) All funds received by the committee pursuant to the provisions of this part shall be used solely for the purposes specified in this part.

(b) The Secretary may at any time require the committee, its members and alternates, employees, agents, and all other persons to account for all receipts and disbursements, funds, property, or records for which they are responsible. Whenever any person ceases to be a member or alternate of the committee, he shall account for all receipts, disbursements, funds, and property (including, but not being limited to, books and other records) pertaining to the committee's activities for which he is responsible, and deliver all such property and funds in his hands to such successor, agency, or person as may be designated by the Secretary, and shall execute such assignments and other instruments as may be necessary or appropriate to vest in each such successor, agency, or person as may be designated by the Secretary the right to all of such property and funds and all claims vested in such person.

(c) The committtee may make recommendations to the Secretary for one or more of the members thereof, or any other person, to act as a trustee for holding records, funds, and any other committee property during periods of suspension of this part, or during any periods when regulations are not in effect; and, if the Secretary determines such action appropriate, he may direct that such person or persons shall so act as trustee or trustees.

§ 1017.44 Refunds. At the end of each fiscal period, monies arising from the excess of assessments collected over expenses shall be accounted for as provided in this section. Each handler entitled to a proportionate refund of such excess assessments at the end of a fiscal period shall be credited with such refund against the operations of the following fiscal period unless he demands payment thereof, in which event such proportionate refund shall be paid to him. However, the Secretary, upon recommendation of the committee, may determine that it is appropriate for the maintenance and functioning of the committee that some of the funds remaining at the end of a fiscal period which are in excess of the expenses necessary for committee operations during such period may be carried over into following periods as a reserve for possible liquidation. Upon approval by the Secretary, such reserve may be used upon termination of this part to liquidate the affairs of the committee, Provided, That upon termination of this part any monies in the reserve for liquidation which are not required to defray the necessary expenses of committee liquidation shall, to the extent practical, be returned upon a pro rata basis to all persons from whom such funds were collected.

RESEARCH AND DEVELOPMENT

§ 1017.47 Research and development. The committee, with the approval of the Secretary, may provide for the establishment of marketing research and development projects designed to assist, improve, or promote the marketing, distribution, and consumption of onions.

REGULATION

§ 1017.50 Marketing policy—(a) Preparation. Prior to each marketing season the committee shall consider and prepare a proposed policy for the marketing of onions. In developing its marketing policy the committee shall investigate relevant supply and demand conditions for onions. In such investigations the committee shall give appropriate consideration to the following:

(1) Market prices for onions, including prices by variety, grade, size, and quality, and by different packs;

(2) Supply of onions by grade, size, quality, and variety in the production area and in other onion producing sections;

(3) The trend and level of consumer income;

(4) Establishing and maintaining orderly marketing conditions for onions;

(5) Orderly marketing of onions as will be in the public interest; and

(6) Other relevant factors.

(b) Reports. (1) The committee shall submit a report to the Secretary setting forth the aforesaid marketing policy; and the committee shall notify producers and handlers of the contents of such report.

(2) In the event it becomes advisable to shift from such marketing policy because of changed supply and demand conditions, the committee shall prepare an amended or revised marketing policy in accordance with the manner previously outlined. The committee shall submit a report thereon to the Secretary and notify producers and handlers of the contents of such report on the revised or amended marketing policy.

§ 1017.51 Recommendations for regulations. The committee shall recommend regulations to the Secretary whenever it finds that such regulations as provided in § 1017.52 will tend to effectuate the declared policy of the act. The committee also may recommend modification, suspension, or termination of any regulation, or amendments thereto, in order to facilitate the handling of onions for the purposes authorized in § 1017.53. The committee may also recommend amendment, modification, termination, or suspension of any regulation issued under this part.

§ 1017.52 Issuance of regulations. (a) Except as otherwise provided in this part, the Secretary shall limit the shipment of onions by any one or more of the methods hereinafter set forth whenever he finds from the recommendations and information submitted by the committee, or from other available information, that such regulation would tend to effectuate the declared policy of the act. Such limitation may:

(1) Regulate in any or all portions of the production area, the handling of particular grades, sizes, or qualities of any or all varieties of onions, or combinations thereof, during any period or periods;

(2) Regulate the handling of particular grades, sizes, or qualities, of onions differently, for different varieties, for different portions of the production area, for different packs, or for any combination of the foregoing, during any period or periods;

(3) Provide a method, through rules and regulations issued pursuant to this part, for fixing the size, capacity, weight, dimensions, or pack of the container, or containers, which may be used in the packaging or handling of onions;

(4) Regulate the handling of onions by establishing, in terms of grades, sizes, or both, minimum standards of quality and maturity; or

(5) Limit the shipment of the total quantity of onions by prohibiting the handling thereof during a specified period or periods. No regulation issued pursuant to this subparagraph shall be effective for more than 96 consecutive hours: Provided, That not less than 72 consecutive hours shall elapse between the termination of any such period of prohibition and the beginning of the next such period.

(b) In the event the handling of onions is regulated pursuant to paragraph (a) (5) of this section, no handler shall handle any onions which were prepared for market or loaded during the effective period of such regulation. However, during any such period, no such regulation shall be deemed to limit the right of any person to sell or contract to sell onions for future shipment or delivery.

(c) The Secretary may amend any regulation issued under this part whenever he finds that such amendment would tend to effectuate the declared policy of the act. The Secretary may also terminate or suspend any regulation or amendment thereof whenever he finds that such regulation or amendment obstructs or no longer tends to effectuate the declared policy of the act.

§ 1017.53 Handling for specified purposes. Upon the basis of recommendations and information submitted by the committee, or other available information, the Secretary shall issue special regulations, or modify, suspend, or terminate requirements in effect pursuant to §§ 1017.42, 1017.52, 1017.60, or any combination thereof, in order to facilitate the handling of onions for the following purposes whenever he finds that to do so will tend to effectuate the declared policy of the act:

(a) Shipments of onions for export;

(b) Shipments of onions for relief or to charitable institutions;

(c) Shipments of onions for livestock feed;

(d) Shipments of onions for planting; and

(e) Shipments of onions for other purposes which may be specified.

§ 1017.54 Minimum quantities. The committee, with the approval of the Secretary, may establish minimum quantities below which onion shipments will be free from the requirements in, or pursuant to, §§ 1017.42, 1017.52, 1017.53, 1017.60, or any combination thereof.

§ 1017.55 Notification of regulations. The Secretary shall notify the committee of each regulation issued, and of each amendment, modification, suspension, or termination thereof. The committee shall give reasonable notice thereof to handlers.

§ 1017.56 Safeguards. (a) The committee, with the approval of the Secretary, may prescribe adequate safeguards to prevent onions shipped,

(1) Pursuant to § 1017.53 or § 1017.54; or

(2) To commercial dehydrators for processing by such dehydrators into dehydrated onion products, from entering channels of trade for other than the purpose authorized therefor.

(b) The committee, with the approval of the Secretary, may also prescribe rules and regulations governing the issuance, and the contents, of Certificates of Privilege if such certificates are prescribed as safeguards by the committee. Such safeguards may include requirements that:

(1) Handlers shall first file applications with the committee to ship such onions;

(2) Handlers shall obtain inspection provided by § 1017.60, or pay the pro rata share of expenses provided by § 1017.42, or both, in connection with such onions; and

(3) Handlers shall obtain Certificates of Privilege from the committee prior to effecting the particular onion shipment.

(c) The committee may rescind any Certificate of Privilege, or refuse to issue any Certificate of Privilege to any handler if proof is obtained that onions shipped by him for the purposes stated in the Certificate of Privilege were handled contrary to the provisions of this part.

(d) The Secretary shall have the right to modify, change, alter, or rescind any safeguards prescribed and any certificates issued by the committee pursuant to the provisions of this section.

(e) The committee shall make reports to the Secretary, as requested, showing the number of applications for such certificates, the quantity of onions covered by such applications, the number of such applications denied and certificates granted, the quantity of onions handled under duly issued certificates, and such other information as may be requested.

INSPECTION

§ 1017.60 Inspection and certification. (a) During any period in which shipments of onions are regulated pursuant to this subpart, no handler shall handle onions unless such onions are inspected by an authorized representative of the Federal-State Inspection Service, or such other inspection service as the Secretary shall designate and are covered by a valid inspection certificate, except when relieved from such requirements pursuant to §§ 1017.53, 1017.54, or both.

(b) Regrading, resorting, or repacking any lot of onions shall invalidate prior inspection certificates insofar as the requirements of this section are concerned. No handler shall ship onions after they have been regraded, resorted, repacked or in any other way further prepared for market, unless such onions are inspected by an authorized representative of the Federal-State Inspection Service, or such other inspection service as the Secretary shall designate.

(c) Upon recommendation of the committee, and approval of the Secretary, all onions that are required to be inspected and certified in accordance with this section, shall be identified by appropriate seals, stamps, tags, or other identification to be furnished by the committee and affixed to the containers by the handler under the direction and supervision of the Federal-State, or Federal inspector, or the committee. Master containers may bear the identification instead of the individual containers within said master container.

(d) Insofar as the requirements of this section are concerned, the length of time for which an inspection certificate is valid may be established by the committee with the approval of the Secretary.

(e) When onions are inspected in accordance with the requirements of this section, a copy of each inspection certificate issued shall be made available to the committee by the inspection service.

REPORTS

§ 1017.65 Reports. Upon request of the committee, made with the approval of the Secretary, each handler shall furnish to the committee, in such manner and at such time as it may prescribe, such reports and other information as may be necessary for the committee to perform its duties under this part.

(a) Such reports may include, but are not necessarily limited to, the following: (1) The quantities of onions received by a handler; (2) the quantities disposed of by him, segregated as to the respective quantities subject to regulation and not subject to regulation; (3) the date of each such disposition and the identification of the carrier transporting such onions; and (4) identification of the inspection certificates relating to the onions which were handled pursuant to §§ 1017.53 and 1017.54.

(b) All such reports shall be held under appropriate protective classification and custody by the committee, or duly appointed employees thereof, so that the information contained therein which may adversely affect the competitive position of any handler in relation to other handlers will not be disclosed. Compilations of general reports from data submitted by handlers is authorized, subject to the prohibition of disclosure of individual handler's identities or operations.

(c) Each handler shall maintain for at least two succeeding years such records of the onions received, and of onions disposed of, by such handler as may be necessary to verify the reports he submits to the committee pursuant to this section.

EFFECTIVE TIME AND TERMINATION

§ 1017.70 Effective time. The provisions of this subpart, or any amendment thereto, shall become effective at such time as the Secretary may declare and shall continue in force until terminated in one of the ways specified in this subpart.

§ 1017.71 Termination. (a) The Secretary may at any time terminate the provisions of this subpart by giving at least one day's notice by means of a press release or in any other manner which he may determine.

(b) The Secretary may terminate or suspend the operations of any or all of the provisions of this subpart whenever he finds that such provisions do not tend to effectuate the declared policy of the act.

(c) The Secretary shall terminate the provisions of this subpart at the end of any fiscal period whenever he finds that such termination is favored by a majority of producers who, during a representative period, have been engaged in the production for market of onions: Provided, That such majority has, during such representative period, produced for market more than fifty percent of the volume of such onions produced for market, but such termination shall be effective only if announced on or before May 31 of the then current fiscal period.

(d) The provisions of this subpart shall, in any event, terminate whenever the provisions of the act authorizing them cease to be in effect.

§ 1017.72 Proceeding after termination. (a) Upon the termination of the provisions of this subpart, the then functioning members of the committee shall continue as joint trustees, for the purpose of liquidating the affairs of the committee, of all the funds and property then in the possession, or under control, of the committee, including claims for any funds unpaid and property not delivered at the time of such termination. Action by said trusteeship shall require the concurrence of a majority of the said trustees.

(b) The said trustees shall continue in such capacity until discharged by the Secretary; shall, from time to time, account for all receipts and disbursements and deliver all property on hand, together with all books and records of the committee and of the trustees, to such person as the Secretary may direct; and shall, upon request of the Secretary, execute such assignments or other instruments necessary or appropriate to vest in such person full title and right to all of the funds, property, and claims vested in the committee or the trustees pursuant to this subpart.

(c) Any person to whom funds, property, or claims have been transferred or delivered by the committee or its members pursuant to this section, shall be subject to the same obligations imposed upon the members of the committee and upon the said trustees.

§ 1017.73 Effect of termination or amendment. Unless otherwise expressly provided by the Secretary, the termination of this subpart or of any regulation issued pursuant to this subpart, or the issuance of any amendment to either thereof, shall not (a) affect or waive any right, duty, obligation, or liability which shall have arisen or which may thereafter arise in connection with any provision of this subpart or of any regulation issued under this subpart; (b) release or extinguish any violation of this subpart or of any regulations issued under this subpart; or (c) affect or impair any rights or remedies of the Secretary or of any other person with respect to any such violations.

§ 1017.85 Derogation. Nothing contained in this subpart is, or shall be construed to be, in derogation or in modification of the rights of the Secretary or of the United States to exercise any powers granted by the act or otherwise, or, in accordance with such powers, to act in the premises whenever such action is deemed advisable.

§ 1017.86 Personal liability. No member or alternate of the committee nor any employee or agent thereof, shall be held personally responsible, either individually or jointly with others, in any way whatsoever, to any handler or to any person for errors in judgment, mistakes, or other acts, either of commission or omission, as such member, alternate, employee, or agent, except for acts of dishonesty, wilful misconduct, or gross negligence.

§ 1017.87 Separability. If any provision of this subpart is declared invalid, or the applicability thereof to any person, circumstance, or thing is held invalid, the validity of the remainder of this subpart, or the applicability thereof to any other person, circumstance, or thing, shall not be affected thereby.

TOLERANCES FOR RESIDUES OF SODIUM 2,2-DICHLOROPROPIONATE

Petitions were filed with the Food and Drug Administration requesting the establishment of tolerances for residues of sodium 2,2-dichloropropionate as 2,2-dichloropropionic acid in or on sugar beets and cottonseed.

The Secretary of Agriculture has certified that this pesticide chemical is useful for the purposes for which tolerances are being established.

After consideration of the data submitted in the petition and other relevant material which show that the tolerances established in this order will protect the public health, and by virtue of the authority vested in the Secretary of Health, Education, and Welfare by the Federal Food, Drug, and Cosmetic Act (sec. 408 (d) (2), 68 Stat. 512; 21 U. S. C. 346a (d) (2)) and delegated to the Commissioner of Food and Drugs by the Secretary (21 CFR 120.7 (g)), the regulations for tolerances for pesticide chemicals in or on raw agricultural commodities (21 CFR Part 120) are amended by adding the following new section:

§ 120.149 Tolerances for residues of sodium 2,2-dichloropropionate. (a) A tolerance of 35 parts per million is established for residues of 2,2-dichloropropionate as 2,2-dichloropropionic acid in or on cottonseed.

(b) A tolerance of 5 parts per million is established for residues of sodium 2,2-dichloropropionate as 2,2-dichloropropionic acid in or sugar beets and sugar beet tops.

Any person who will be adversely affected by the foregoing order may, at any time prior to the thirtieth day from the effective date thereof, file with the Hearing Clerk, Department of Health, Education, and Welfare, Room 5440, 330 Independence Avenue SW., Washington 25, D. C., written objections thereto. Objections shall show wherein the person filing will be adversely affected by this order, specify with particularity the provisions of the order deemed objectionable and reasonable grounds for the objections, and request a public hearing upon the objections. Objections may be accompanied by a memorandum or brief in support thereof. All documents shall be filed in quintuplicate.

Effective date. This order shall be effective upon publication in the FEDERAL REGISTER.

M-5A—ALUMINUM

AMENDMENT OF SECTIONS 5 AND 9 (a)

This amendment is found necessary and appropriate to promote the national defense and is issued pursuant to the Defense Production Act of 1950, as amended. In the formulation of this amendment, there has been consultation with industry representatives, including trade association representatives, and consideration has been given to their recommendations.

BDSA Order M-5A (formerly NPA Order M-5A) dated May 6, 1953, is hereby amended as follows:

1. Section 5 is amended to read as follows:

SEC. 5. Opening of order books. Each producer of aluminum shall open his order books for the purpose of accepting authorized controlled material orders no later than 105 days prior to the first day of each calendar quarter for which such orders are valid pursuant to DMS Regulation No. 1. An aluminum producer may open his order books for the purpose of accepting authorized controlled material orders for any calendar quarter as long in advance of such 105-day period as he may choose, but after his order books are open he shall accept all such orders as provided in this order and in applicable DMS regulations: Provided, however, That the acceptance by an aluminum controlled materials producer of an authorized controlled material order or orders directly from the Department of Defense or the Atomic Energy Commission prior to the date such producer opens his order books shall not effect an opening of his books so as to require acceptance of other orders for controlled materials.

2. Paragraph (a) of section 9 is amended to read as follows:

(a) As soon as practicable after December 31, 1956, BDSA will notify each primary producer, independent fabricator, and secondary smelter of the maximum aggregate quantities of aluminum, by form and shape, for the shipment of which during any calendar month, he must accept authorized controlled material orders tendered to him prior to the commencement of "lead time," unless such maximum quantities are thereafter modified by BDSA order, regulation, or directive. These quantities will be determined by BDSA on the basis of each primary producer's, independent fabricator's, or secondary smelter's total shipments of each form and shape of aluminum during the first 6 calendar months of 1956, or such subsequent period as BDSA may determine, and the total anticipated defense requirements from time to time for aluminum of each form and shape.

(Sec. 704, 64 Stat. 816, as amended; sec. 1, P. L. 632, 84th Cong., 70 Stat. 408; 50 U. S. C. App. 2154).

[SEAL] ABE MCGREGOR GOFF,

a. In § 16.1 Second-class publications, make the following changes:

1. Rescind present paragraph (c); and redesignate paragraph (d) as paragraph (c).

2. Amend paragraph (c) (4), as redesignated, to read as follows:

(4) Copies for same post office or state—(i) Direct packages. When there are more than five individually addressed copies of a publication for subscribers at the same post office, they must be securely wrapped in packages or tied in bundles and labeled for the post office. The twine and paper used must be strong enough for the weight and size of the package or bundle.

(ii) State packages. After all post office directs have been made if there are more than five copies remaining for any one State, they must be wrapped in packages or tied in bundles and labeled for the State.

(iii) Direct sacks. When there are sufficient packages and bundles for one post office to fill a sack approximately one-third full, they must be placed in a direct sack, or sacks, for that post office. Direct sacks should be labeled in the following form:

Philadelphia, Pa.
From Progress, Boston, Mass.

(iv) State sacks. When the quantity is insufficient for direct sacks and there are enough bundles or packages for one State to fill a sack approximately one-third full, they must be placed in a State sack and labeled to the proper distribution point for that State. See § 16.2 (d). State sacks should be labeled in the following form:

Cincinnati, Ohio, Terminal
Virginia
From The Sketch, St. Louis, Mo.

(v) Mixed sacks. Publications for which there are insufficient copies to justify direct city and State sacks should be made up in sacks labeled in the following form:

Mixed States
From Fair, Chicago, Ill.

(vi) Maximum weight in a sack. The total weight of publications placed in one sack must not exceed 100 pounds.

(vii) Labels furnished by postmaster. Where sack labels are furnished by the postmaster, the mailer will mark his name on the back of the label.

3. Amend paragraph (c) (5) as redesignated to read as follows:

(5) Copies for military post offices overseas—(i) Direct packages. When more than one copy is addressed to one unit, APO, or Navy or Marine Corps address (see § 13.8 of this subchapter), the copies must be securely wrapped in packages or tied in bundles labeled for the military address.

(ii) Mixed packages. After all direct packages have been made, if there are more than five copies remaining for dispatch through any postal concentration center, they must be wrapped in packages or tied in bundles and labeled for the center.

(iii) Direct sacks. When there are a sufficient number of packages and bundles for one unit, APO, or Navy or Marine Corps address to fill approximately one-half of a sack, a direct sack must be made. Direct sacks will not be opened at postal concentration centers. The sack should be labeled in the following form:

(Show appropriate postal concentration center)
PCC San Francisco, Calif.
(Show military address)
APO 165
From The Recorder, New York, N. Y.

(iv) Mixed sacks. When the quantity is insufficient for a direct sack and there are enough bundles or packages for dispatch through one postal concentration center to fill approximately one-half of a sack, make up a sack for that center and label in the following form:

(Show appropriate postal concentration center)
PCC New York, N. Y.
(Show FPO when applicable)
APO MAIL
From The Recorder, New York, N. Y.

4. Add new subparagraph (6) to redesignated paragraph (c) to read as follows:

(6) Exceptional dispatch—(i) Applications. Postmasters will approve or disapprove applications filed under § 22.3 (c) (4) of this chapter for exceptional dispatch on the basis of whether such dispatch will improve service. They will notify other post offices concerned and the appropriate regional transportation manager of approved arrangements and include a list showing how the sacks or outside bundles are to be labeled and the approximate number of copies.

(ii) Delivery by PTS Clerks. Postal Transportation Service clerks, when authorized by the regional transportation manager, may receive packages of second-class publications directly from publishers or news agents and deliver them as directed, provided the packages are presented and called for at the mail car and are not received from or intended for delivery in any post office.

(iii) Delivery by baggageman. Baggagemen when authorized by an appropriate regional transportation manager may receive packages of second-class publications directly from publishers and news agents on trains to which no postal transportation clerk is assigned. The baggageman will deliver the packages of outside matter at the place shown on the address. When in his custody, the packages will be considered as mail.

(iv) Delivery to agents. Packages marked to be delivered outside the mail will be so delivered only when addressed to news agents or agents of publishers.

(v) Preparation. Bundles or packages intended for delivery outside the mail must be adequately wrapped with heavy paper and tied with twine heavy enough to stand up under the regular handling and dispatch of these packages. The wrapper of the bundles must be conspicuously marked "U. S. Mail for Outside Delivery at Publisher's Risk."

5. New paragraph (d) is added, to read as follows:

(d) Newspaper treatment—(1) Definition. Newspapers must be published once each week or more frequently and feature principally news of interest to the general public to be given expeditious distribution, dispatch, transit handling, and delivery, usually referred to as newspaper treatment. If the postmaster at the office of entry is in doubt as to whether any particular publication is a newspaper, he will submit all the facts to the Bureau of Post Office Operations, Mail Classification Division.

(2) Preparation for mailing. Newspapers must be made up in sacks plainly labeled "Newspapers". Direct city and State sacks will be made in accordance with paragraph (c) (4) of this section. Label in the following manner:

(i) Direct sacks:

Cincinnati, Ohio—Newspapers
Via Pitts. & St. Lou. Train 79
From The Register, Columbus, Ohio

(ii) State sacks:

Wheel. & Cin. Tr. 238
Ohio—Newspapers
From The Register, Columbus, Ohio

(3) Dispatching. Newspapers will be dispatched in pouches with first-class mail when the quantity is not sufficient to make up separate sacks. Newspapers for dispatch to a railway post office, a highway post office, a terminal, or a first-class office will not be mixed in sacks with any class of mail other than first class. Sacks labeled "Newspapers" will be dispatched with first-class mail.

(4) Handling at delivery office. Sacks containing newspapers will be promptly segregated and the contents distributed for the earliest possible delivery.

(5) Notification to publishers of delays. Publishers will be notified whenever their mailings of newspapers are not delivered to the post office or train in sufficient time to connect with the intended dispatch.

6. Redesignate paragraph (g) as paragraph (h); and insert new paragraph (g) to read as follows:

(g) Key rate—(1) Authority to use. Postmasters will use the key rate method of computing pound-rate postage on publications subject to the advertising zone rates when large mailings justify its use.

(2) Statement showing mailings to each zone. The publisher must submit once each calendar year, at 12-month intervals, a statement on POD Form 3542 showing the number of copies of an issue mailed to each zone. During these 12-month intervals, the publisher does not need to complete the lines for zones 1 to 8 on POD Form 3542. He enters only total zone mailings on "Total to all zones" line.

(3) New zone statement. Postmasters will require a new report on POD Form 3542 showing mailings to each zone at any time during the 12-month intervals when the volume of mailings show variations to the zones or an increase in the total number of copies.

(4) Computation. (i) Compute the key rate on Form 3541 once each calendar year at 12-month intervals. If a new report on POD Form 3542 is filed at any time showing mailings to each zone, a new key rate must be computed and used.

(ii) Enter on the corresponding lines in column B of Form 3541 the number of copies for each zone shown on POD Form 3542. Apply the pound rates to the number of copies for each zone and enter the postage for each zone in column C of Form 3541. Divide the total postage in column C by the total number of copies in column B to obtain the key rate, which should be carried to six decimal places. Apply the key rate only to the total weight of the advertising portion of the issue and the regular reading portion rate only to the total weight of the reading portion. Enter the amount of postage in column G. Two employees must verify the computation. See illustration A, Form 3541.

(iii) Prepare Form 3541 for subsequent mailings as shown in illustration B until a new report on POD Form 3542 showing mailings to each zone is filed.

b. In § 16.2 Third-class mailings, make the following changes:

1. Redesignate paragraph (c) as paragraph (e).

2. Insert new paragraph (c) and (d) to read as follows:

(c) Preparation for dispatch—(1) Direct sacks. When there are sufficient direct packages for the same post office to fill a sack at least one-third full, they must be placed in a sack or sacks which should be labeled in the following manner:

Philadelphia, Pa.
Circs.
From Jay Mailing Co., Cincinnati, Ohio

(2) State sacks—(i) Direct packages. After all possible city direct sacks have been made, if there are enough direct packages remaining for post offices within the same State to fill approximately one-third of a sack, they should be placed in a State sack and labeled to the proper distribution point. See paragraph (d) of this section. State sacks should be labeled in the following manner:

Ogden, Utah Terminal
Calif. Directs Circs.
From D. C. Mailers, Washington, D. C.

(ii) State packages. When State packages of circulars for one State will fill approximately one-third of a sack, they should be placed in a State sack and labeled to the proper distribution point. (See paragraph (d) of this section.) Label in the following form:

Ogden, Utah Terminal
Calif. Circs.
From D. C. Mailers, Washington, D. C.

(3) Mixed sacks. (i) Mixed State packages of circulars may be included in sacks labeled "Mixed States—Circulars."

(ii) Any direct package for which there is insufficient quantity to make city or State direct sacks should be included in sacks labeled "Mixed Directs—Circulars."

(4) Labels furnished by postmaster. Where sack labels are furnished by the postmaster, the mailer will mark his name on the back of the label.

(d) Distribution points. A list of the proper distribution points for papers, mixed circulars, and direct circulars from each postal region is prepared by the regional transportation manager of the region. Copies of this list, along with any special instructions relating to specific locations, may be obtained through your local postmaster or district transportation manager.

TITLE 49—TRANSPORTATION

Chapter I—Interstate Commerce Commission

Subchapter A—General Rules and Regulations

PART 125—RAILROAD ACCIDENTS: REPORTS AND CLASSIFICATION

RULES GOVERNING MONTHLY REPORTS OF RAILROAD ACCIDENTS

At a general session of the Interstate Commerce Commission, held at its office in Washington, D. C., on the 27th day of December A. D. 1956.

On November 23, 1956, the Commission issued its order prescribing revised Rules Governing Monthly Reports of Railroad Accidents. Pursuant to § 125.55 (c), Appendix A of such rules, rail carriers reporting the causes of train or train-service accidents are required to utilize the codes taken from an "Alphabetical Index". However, since no Alphabetical Index has been issued, it will be necessary to use in place of such index the codes of causes of train-service accidents in the lists designated "Train accidents" and "Train-service accidents" as set forth in § 125.55 of the rules.

Rule-making procedure under Section 4 of the Administrative Procedure Act, 5 U. S. C. 1003 (a), would be impracticable, unnecessary, and contrary to the public interest because of the minor character of this amendment to the rules, and because of the proximity of the effective date of the order. For the same reasons, good cause exists for making this order effective on less than thirty days' notice.

Therefore, it is ordered, That § 125.55 paragraph (c) of Appendix A to the Commission's order of November 23, 1956, in the above-entitled matter, be, and it is hereby, modified and amended to read as set forth in the paragraph below:

It is further ordered, That 49 CFR § 125.55 (c) be, and it is hereby, modified and amended to read as follows:

§ 125.55 Codes for accident reporting.

(c) On Form T, Cause of train or train-service accident, causes should be reported in accordance with the lists designated "Train accidents" and "Train-service accidents" shown in this section under "Code of Causes";

It is further ordered, That a copy of this order shall be served on common carriers subject to the provisions of the Accident Reports Act, and that notice of this order shall be given to the general public by depositing a copy thereof in the office of the Secretary of the Commission, Washington, D. C., and by filing a copy thereof with the Director, Division of Federal Register;

And it is further ordered, That this order shall be effective on January 1, 1957.

(Sec. 12, 24 Stat. 383, as amended, sec. 1, 36 Stat. 350; 49 U. S. C. 12, 45 U. S. C. 38. Interpret or apply sec. 20, 24 Stat. 386, as amended, sec. 3, 36 Stat. 351; 49 U. S. C. 20, 45 U. S. C. 40)

By the Commission.

Subchapter B—Carriers by Motor Vehicle

PART 205—REPORTS OF MOTOR CARRIERS

MOTOR CARRIER ANNUAL REPORT FORM A

At a session of the Interstate Commerce Commission, held at its office in Washington, D. C., on the 10th day of December A. D. 1956.

The matter of Annual Reports from Class I Motor Carriers of Property and Class I Motor Carriers of Passengers being under consideration, and the changes in existing regulations to be effectuated by this order being only minor changes with respect to the data to be furnished, public rule-making procedures are unnecessary:

It is ordered, That the order of October 11, 1945, in the matter of Annual Reports from Class I Motor Carriers of Property and Class I Motor Carriers of Passengers be, and it is hereby modified with respect to annual reports for the year ended December 31, 1956, and subsequent years, as follows:

§ 205.1 Form prescribed for annual reports. Each Class I Common and Contract Motor Carrier of Property and each Class I Common and Contract Motor Carrier of Passengers shall file under oath an annual report for the year ended December 31, 1956, and for each succeeding year until further order, in accordance with Motor Carrier Annual Report Form A (Class I Motor Carriers of Property and Passengers) which is hereby approved and made a part of this section.[1] The annual report shall be filed, in duplicate, in the Bureau of Accounts, Cost Finding and Valuation, Interstate Commerce Commission, Washington, D. C., on or before March 31 of the year following the one to which it relates.

(49 Stat. 546, as amended; 49 U. S. C. 304. Interprets or applies 49 Stat. 563, as amended; 49 U. S. C. 320)

GAIN OR LOSS ON DISPOSITION OF PROPERTY

DETERMINATION OF AMOUNT OF AND RECOGNITION OF GAIN OR LOSS

§ 1.1001 Statutory provisions; determination of amount of and recognition of gain or loss.

SEC. 1001. Determination of amount of and recognition of gain or loss—(a) Computation of gain or loss. The gain from the sale or other disposition of property shall be the excess of the amount realized therefrom over the adjusted basis provided in section 1011 for determining gain, and the loss shall be the excess of the adjusted basis provided in such section for determining loss over the amount realized.

(b) Amount realized. The amount realized from the sale or other disposition of property shall be the sum of any money received plus the fair market value of the property (other than money) received. In determining the amount realized—

(1) There shall not be taken into account any amount received as reimbursement for real property taxes which are treated under section 164 (d) as imposed on the purchaser, and

(2) There shall be taken into account amounts representing real property taxes which are treated under section 164 (d) as imposed on the taxpayer if such taxes are to be paid by the purchaser.

(c) Recognition of gain or loss. In the case of a sale or exchange of property, the extent to which the gain or loss determined under this section shall be recognized for purposes of this subtitle shall be determined under section 1002.

(d) Installment sales. Nothing in this section shall be construed to prevent (in the case of property sold under contract providing for payment in installments) the taxation of that portion of any installment payment representing gain or profit in the year in which such payment is received.

§ 1.1001–1 Computation of gain or loss—(a) General rule. Except as otherwise provided in subtitle A, the gain or loss realized from the conversion of property into cash, or from the exchange of property for other property differing materially either in kind or in extent, is treated as income or as loss sustained. The amount realized from a sale or other disposition of property is the sum of any money received plus the fair market value of any property (other than money) received. The fair market value of property is a question of fact, but only in rare and extraordinary cases will property be considered to have no fair market value. The general method of computing such gain or loss is prescribed by section 1001, which contemplates that from the amount realized upon the sale or exchange there shall be withdrawn a sum sufficient to restore the adjusted basis prescribed by section 1011 and regulations thereunder (i. e., the cost or other basis adjusted for receipts, expenditures, losses, allowances, and other items chargeable against and applicable to such cost or other basis). The amount which remains after the adjusted basis has been restored to the taxpayer constitutes the realized gain. If the amount realized upon the sale or exchange is insufficient to restore to the taxpayer the adjusted basis of the property, a loss is sustained to the extent of the difference between such adjusted basis and the amount realized. The basis may be different depending upon whether gain or loss is being computed. For example, see section 1015 (a) and the regulations thereunder.

(b) Real estate taxes as amounts received. (1) Section 1001 (b) and section 1012 state rules applicable in making an adjustment upon a sale of real property with respect to the real property taxes apportioned between seller and purchaser under section 164 (d). Thus, if the seller pays (or agrees to pay) real property taxes attributable to the real property tax year in which the sale occurs, he shall not take into account, in determining the amount realized from the sale under section 1001 (b), any amount received as reimbursement for taxes which are treated under section 164 (d) as imposed upon the purchaser. Similarly, in computing the cost of the property under section 1012, the purchaser shall not take into account any amount paid to the seller as reimbursement for real property taxes which are treated under section 164 (d) as imposed upon the purchaser. These rules apply whether or not the contract of sale calls for the purchaser to reimburse the seller for such real property taxes paid or to be paid by the seller.

(2) On the other hand, if the purchaser pays (or is to pay) an amount representing real property taxes which are treated under section 164 (d) as imposed upon the seller, that amount shall be taken into account both in determining the amount realized from the sale under section 1001 (b) and in computing the cost of the property under section 1012. It is immaterial whether or not the contract of sale specifies that the sale price has been reduced by, or is in any way intended to reflect, the taxes allocable to the seller. See also § 1.1012–1 (b).

(3) Subparagraphs (1) and (2) shall not apply to a taxpayer who elects to capitalize real property taxes in accordance with section 266 and the regulations thereunder (relating to election to capitalize certain carrying charges and taxes).

(4) The application of this paragraph may be illustrated by the following examples:

Example (1). Assume that the contract price on the sale of a parcel of real estate is $50,000 and that real property taxes thereon in the amount of $1,000 for the real property tax year in which occurred the date of sale were previously paid by the seller. Assume further that $750 of the taxes are treated under section 164 (d) as imposed upon the purchaser and that he reimburses the seller in that amount in addition to the contract price. The amount realized by the seller is $50,000. Similarly, $50,000 is the purchaser's cost. If, in this example, the purchaser made no payment other than the contract price of $50,000, the amount realized by the seller would be $49,250, since the sales price would be deemed to include $750 paid to the seller in reimbursement for real property taxes imposed upon the purchaser. Similarly, $49,250 would be the purchaser's cost.

Example (2). Assume that the purchaser in example (1) above, paid all of the real property taxes. Assume further that $250 of the taxes are treated under section 164 (d) as imposed upon the seller. The amount realized by the seller is $50,250. Similarly, $50,250 is the purchaser's cost, regardless of the taxable year in which the purchaser makes actual payment of the taxes.

Example (3). Assume that the seller described in the first part of example (1), above, elected under section 266 to capitalize the real property taxes of $1,000 which he paid. In such a case, the amount realized is $50,750. Moreover, the purchaser in that case could also elect under section 266 to capitalize the $750 of taxes treated under section 164 (d) as imposed upon him in which case his adjusted basis would be $50,750 (cost of $50,000 plus capitalized taxes of $750).

(c) Other rules. (1) Even though property is not sold or otherwise disposed of, gain is realized if the sum of all the amounts received which are required by section 1016 and other applicable provisions of subtitle A of the Internal Revenue Code of 1954 to be applied against the basis of the property exceeds such basis. Except as otherwise provided in section 301 (c) (3) (B) with respect to distributions out of increase in value of property accrued prior to March 1, 1913, such gain is includible in gross income under section 61 as "income from whatever source derived". On the other hand, a loss is not ordinarily sustained prior to the sale or other disposition of the property, for the reason that until such sale or other disposition occurs there remains the possibility that the taxpayer may recover or recoup the adjusted basis of the property. Until some identifiable event fixes the actual sustaining of a loss and the amount thereof, it is not taken into account.

(2) The provisions of subparagraph (1) of this paragraph may be illustrated by the following example:

Example. A, an individual on a calendar year basis, purchased certain shares of stock subsequent to February 28, 1913, for $10,000. On January 1, 1954, A's adjusted basis for the stock had been reduced to $1,000 by reason of receipts and distributions described in sections 1016 (a) (1) and 1016 (a) (4). He received in 1954 a further distribution of $5,000, being a distribution covered by section 1016 (a) (4), other than a distribution out of increase of value of property accrued prior to March 1, 1913. This distribution applied against the adjusted basis as required by section 1016 (a) (4) exceeds that basis by $4,000. The $4,000 excess is a gain realized by A in 1954 and is includible in gross income in his return for that calendar year. In computing gain from the stock, as in adjusting basis, no distinction is made between items of receipts or distributions described in section 1016. If A sells the stock in 1955 for $5,000, he realizes in 1955 a gain of $5,000, since the adjusted basis of the stock for the purpose of computing gain or loss from the sale is zero.

(d) Installment sales. In the case of property sold on the installment plan, special rules for the taxation of the gain are prescribed in section 453.

(e) Transfers in part a sale and in part a gift. (1) Where a transfer of property is in part a sale and in part a gift, the transferor has a gain to the extent that the amount realized by him exceeds his adjusted basis in the property. However, no loss is sustained on such a transfer if the amount realized is less than the adjusted basis. For determination of basis of the property in the hands of the transferee see § 1.1015–4.

(2) Examples. The provisions of subparagraph (1) may be illustrated by the following examples:

Example (1). A transfers property to his son for $60,000. Such property in the hands of A has an adjusted basis of $30,000 (and a fair market value of $90,000). A's gain is $30,000, the excess of $60,000, the amount realized, over the adjusted basis, $30,000. He has made a gift of $30,000, the excess of $90,000, the fair market value, over the amount realized, $60,000.

Example (2). A transfers property to his son for $30,000. Such property in the hands of A has an adjusted basis of $60,000 (and a fair market value of $90,000). A has no gain or loss, and has made a gift of $60,000, the excess of $90,000, the fair market value, over the amount realized, $30,000.

Example (3). A transfers property to his son for $30,000. Such property in A's hands has an adjusted basis of $30,000 (and a fair market value of $60,000). A has no gain and has made a gift of $30,000, the excess of $60,000, the fair market value, over the amount realized, $30,000.

Example (4). A transfers property to his son for $30,000. Such property in A's hands has an adjusted basis of $90,000 (and a fair market value of $60,000). A has sustained no loss, and has made a gift of $30,000, the excess of $60,000, the fair market value, over the amount realized, $30,000.

§ 1.1002 Statutory provisions; recognition of gain or loss.

SEC. 1002. Recognition of gain or loss. Except as otherwise provided in this subtitle, on the sale or exchange of property the entire amount of the gain or loss, determined under section 1001, shall be recognized.

§ 1.1002–1 Sales or exchanges—(a) General rule. The general rule with respect to gain or loss realized upon the sale or exchange of property as determined under section 1001 is that the entire amount of such gain or loss is recognized except in cases where specific provisions of subtitle A of the Internal Revenue Code of 1954 provide otherwise.

(b) Strict construction of exceptions from general rule. The exceptions from the general rule requiring the recognition of all gains and losses, like other exceptions from a rule of taxation of general and uniform application, are strictly construed and do not extend either beyond the words or the underlying assumptions and purposes of the exception. Nonrecognition is accorded by the Internal Revenue Code of 1954 only if the exchange is one which satisfies both (1) the specific description in the Code of an excepted exchange, and (2) the underlying purpose for which such exchange is excepted from the general rule. The exchange must be germane to, and a necessary incident of, the investment or enterprise in hand. The relationship of the exchange to the venture or enterprise is always material, and the surrounding facts and circumstances must be shown. As elsewhere, the taxpayer claiming the benefit of the exception must show himself within the exception.

(c) Certain exceptions to general rule. Exceptions to the general rule are made, for example, by sections 351 (a), 354, 361 (a), 371 (a) (1), 371 (b) (1), 721, 1031, 1035 and 1036. These sections describe certain specific exchanges of property in which at the time of the exchange particular differences exist between the property parted with and the property acquired, but such differences are more formal than substantial. As to these, the Internal Revenue Code of 1954 provides that such differences shall not be deemed controlling, and that gain or loss shall not be recognized at the time of the exchange. The underlying assumption of these exceptions is that the new property is substantially a continuation of the old investment still unliquidated; and, in the case of reorganizations, that the new enterprise, the new corporate structure, and the new property are substantially continuations of the old still unliquidated.

(d) Exchange. Ordinarily, to constitute an exchange, the transaction must be a reciprocal transfer of property, as distinguished from a transfer of property for a money consideration only.

BASIS RULES OF GENERAL APPLICATION

§ 1.1011 Statutory provisions; adjusted basis for determining gain or loss.

SEC. 1011. Adjusted basis for determining gain or loss. The adjusted basis for determining the gain or loss from the sale or other disposition of property, whenever acquired, shall be the basis (determined under section 1012 or other applicable sections of this subchapter and subchapters C (relating to corporate distributions and adjustments), K (relating to partners and partnerships), and P (relating to capital gains and losses)), adjusted as provided in section 1016.

§ 1.1011–1 Adjusted basis. The adjusted basis for determining the gain or loss from the sale or other disposition of property is the cost or other basis prescribed in section 1012 or other applicable provisions of subtitle A of the Internal Revenue Code of 1954, adjusted to the extent provided in sections 1016, 1017, and 1018 or as otherwise specifically provided for under applicable provisions of internal revenue laws.

§ 1.1012 Statutory provisions; basis of property—cost.

SEC. 1012. Basis of property—cost. The basis of property shall be the cost of such property, except as otherwise provided in this subchapter and subchapters C (relating to corporate distributions and adjustments), K (relating to partners and partnerships), and P (relating to capital gains and losses). The cost of real property shall not include any amount in respect of real property taxes which are treated under section 164 (d) as imposed on the taxpayer.

§ 1.1012–1 Basis of property—(a) General rule. In general, the basis of property is the cost thereof. The cost is the amount paid for such property in cash or other property. This general rule is subject to exceptions stated in subchapter O (relating to gain or loss on the disposition of property), subchapter C (relating to corporate distributions and adjustments), subchapter K (relating to partners and partnerships), and subchapter P (relating to capital gains and losses) of chapter 1 of the Internal Revenue Code of 1954.

(b) Real estate taxes as part of cost. In computing the cost of real property, the purchaser shall not take into account any amount paid to the seller as reimbursement for real property taxes which are treated under section 164 (d) as imposed upon the purchaser. This rule applies whether or not the contract of sale calls for the purchaser to reimburse the seller for such real estate taxes paid or to be paid by the seller. On the other hand, where the purchaser pays (or assumes liability for) real estate taxes which are treated under section 164 (d) as imposed upon the seller, such taxes shall be considered part of the cost of the property. It is immaterial whether or not the contract of sale specifies that the sale price has been reduced by, or is in any way intended to reflect, real estate taxes allocable to the seller under section 164 (d). For illustrations of the application of this paragraph, see § 1.1001–1 (b).

(c) Sale of stock—(1) In general. If shares of stock in a corporation are sold or transferred by a taxpayer who purchased or acquired lots of stock on different dates or at different prices, and the lot from which the stock was sold or transferred cannot be adequately identified, the stock sold or transferred shall be charged against the earliest purchased of such lots in order to determine the cost or other basis of such stock under this section, and in order to determine the holding period of such stock for purposes of subchapter P of chapter 1 of the Internal Revenue Code of 1954. If, on the other hand, the lot from which the stock is sold or transferred can be adequately identified, the rule stated in the preceding sentence is not applicable. As to what constitutes "adequate identification", see subparagraphs (2), (3), and (4) of this paragraph.

(2) Identification of stock. An adequate identification is made if it is shown that certificates representing shares of stock from a lot which was purchased or acquired on a certain date or for a certain price were delivered to the taxpayer's transferee. Except as otherwise provided in subparagraph (3) of this paragraph, the stock certificates delivered to the transferee constitute the stock sold or transferred by the taxpayer. Thus, unless the requirements of subparagraph (3) of this paragraph are met, the stock sold or transferred is charged to the lot to which the certificates delivered to the transferee belong, whether or not the taxpayer intends, or instructs his broker or other agent, to sell or transfer stock from a lot purchased or acquired on a different date or for a different price.

(3) Identification on confirmation document. (i) Where the stock is left in the custody of a broker or other agent, an adequate identification is made if, at the time of the sale or transfer, the taxpayer—

(a) Specifies to such broker or other agent having custody of the stock, through whom the sale or transfer of such stock is made, the particular stock to be sold or transferred, and

(b) Confirmation of such specification is set forth in a written document from such broker or other agent.

Stock identified pursuant to this subdivision is the stock sold or transferred by the taxpayer, even though stock certificates from a different lot are delivered to the taxpayer's transferee.

(ii) Where a single stock certificate represents stock from different lots, where such certificate is held by the taxpayer rather than his broker or other agent, and where the taxpayer sells a part of the stock represented by such certificate through a broker or other agent, an adequate identification is made if, at the time of the delivery of the certificate to the broker or other agent, the taxpayer—

(a) Specifies to such broker or other agent the particular stock to be sold or transferred, and

(b) Confirmation of such specification is set forth in a written document from such broker or agent.

Where part of stock represented by a single certificate is sold or transferred directly by the taxpayer to the purchaser instead of through a broker or other agent, an adequate identification is made if the taxpayer maintains a record of the particular stock which he intended to sell or transfer.

(4) Stock held by a fiduciary; identification by books. In the case of a distribution of stock by a fiduciary, an adequate identification is made if the fiduciary—

(i) Clearly specifies, in its books or other appropriate records, the particular stock distributed, and

(ii) Furnishes the distributee with a written document setting forth such information in full.

The rule of this subparagraph does not apply where an adequate identification can be made under subparagraph (2) or where stock is sold by a fiduciary.

(5) Subsequent sales. If stock identified under subparagraph (3) or (4) of this paragraph as belonging to a particular lot is sold or transferred, the stock so identified shall be deemed to have been sold or transferred and such sale or transfer will be taken into consideration in identifying stock remaining in the taxpayer's hands which is subsequently sold or transferred.

(6) Example. The provisions of this paragraph may be illustrated by the following example:

Example. (i) The corpus of Trust A consists in part of 480 shares of the common stock of X Corporation, purchased by the trust on the following dates and for the following prices:

Number of shares	Date purchased	Price
114	Jan. 1, 1947	$14/share.
40	June 15, 1949	$19/share.
250	July 1, 1953	$12/share.
76	Feb. 1, 1956	$15/share.

On March 15, 1956, the trust terminates. Under the trust instrument, the corpus is to be divided between 8 remaindermen in equal shares. For the purpose of making an "adequate identification", the trustee may turn in its stock in X Corporation for 8 certificates of 60 shares each and distribute one certificate to each remainderman, making the following designation on its books or other appropriate records and in a written document furnished to each distributee:

REMAINDERMAN B

Number of shares	Date purchased	Price
14¼	Jan. 1, 1947	$14/share.
5	June 15, 1949	$19/share.
31¼	July 1, 1953	$12/share.
9½	Feb. 1, 1956	$15/share.

(ii) If, following the termination of Trust A, Remainderman B desires to sell 5 shares of stock purchased on June 15, 1949, he may so specify to his broker and deliver to the latter the stock certificate representing 60 shares of stock, receiving in return the proceeds of sale plus a certificate (or certificates) for 55 shares of stock. If the requirements of subparagraph (3) (ii) of this paragraph are met, an "adequate identification" of the stock sold has been made.

(d) Special rules. For special rules for determining the basis for gain or loss in the case of vessels acquired through the Maritime Commission (or its successor), see sections 510 and 511 of the Merchant Marine Act of 1936 (46 U. S. C. 1160, 1161). For special rules for determining the unadjusted basis of property recovered in respect of war losses, see section 1336. For special rules for determining the basis for gain or loss in the case of the disposition of a share of stock acquired pursuant to the timely exercise of a restricted stock option where the option price was between 85 percent and 95 percent of the fair market value of the stock at the time the option was granted, see section 421 (b). For special rules for determining the basis and adjusted basis of property acquired or improved with the proceeds of a grant or loan made to a taxpayer by the United States for the encouragement of exploration, development, or mining of critical and strategic minerals or metals, see section 621.

§ 1.1012–2 Transfers in part a sale and in part a gift. For rule relating to basis of property acquired in a transfer which is in part a gift and in part a sale, see § 1.1015–4.

§ 1.1013 Statutory provisions; basis of property included in inventory.

SEC. 1013. Basis of property included in inventory. If the property should have been included in the last inventory, the basis shall be the last inventory value thereof.

§ 1.1013–1 Property included in inventory. The basis of property required to be included in inventory is the last inventory value of such property in the hands of the taxpayer. The requirements with respect to the valuation of an inventory are stated in sections 471, 472, and the regulations thereunder.

§ 1.1014 Statutory provisions; basis of property acquired from a decedent.

SEC. 1014. Basis of property acquired from a decedent—(a) In general. Except as otherwise provided in this section, the basis of property in the hands of a person acquiring the property from a decedent or to whom the property passed from a decedent shall, if not sold, exchanged, or otherwise disposed of before the decedent's death by such person, be the fair market value of the property at the date of the decedent's death, or, in the case of an election under either section 2032 or section 811 (j) of the Internal Revenue Code of 1939 where the decedent died after October 21, 1942, its value at the applicable valuation date prescribed by those sections.

(b) Property acquired from the decedent. For purposes of subsection (a), the following property shall be considered to have been acquired from or to have passed from the decedent:

(1) Property acquired by bequest, devise, or inheritance, or by the decedent's estate from the decedent;

(2) Property transferred by the decedent during his lifetime in trust to pay the income for life to or on the order or direction of the decedent, with the right reserved to the decedent at all times before his death to revoke the trust;

(3) In the case of decedents dying after December 31, 1951, property transferred by the decedent during his lifetime in trust to pay the income for life to or on the order or direction of the decedent with the right reserved to the decedent at all times before his death to make any change in the enjoyment thereof through the exercise of a power to alter, amend, or terminate the trust;

(4) Property passing without full and adequate consideration under a general power of appointment exercised by the decedent by will;

(5) In the case of decedents dying after August 26, 1937, property acquired by bequest, devise, or inheritance or by the decedent's estate from the decedent, if the property consists of stock or securities of a foreign corporation, which with respect to its taxable year next preceding the date of the decedent's death was, under the law applicable to such year, a foreign personal holding company. In such case, the basis shall be the fair market value of such property at the date of the decedent's death or the basis in the hands of the decedent, whichever is lower;

(6) In the case of decedents dying after December 31, 1947, property which represents the surviving spouse's one-half share of community property held by the decedent and the surviving spouse under the community property laws of any State, Territory, or possession of the United States or any foreign country, if at least one-half of the whole of the community interest in such property was includible in determining the value of the decedent's gross estate under chapter 11 of subtitle B (section 2001 and following, relating to estate tax) or section 811 of the Internal Revenue Code of 1939;

(7) In the case of decedents dying after October 21, 1942, and on or before December 31, 1947, such part of any property, representing the surviving spouse's one-half share of property held by a decedent and the surviving spouse under the community property laws of any State, Territory, or possession of the United States or any foreign country, as was included in determining the value of the gross estate of the decedent, if a tax under chapter 3 of the Internal Revenue Code of 1939 was payable on the transfer of the net estate of the decedent. In such case, nothing in this paragraph shall reduce the basis below that which would exist if the Revenue Act of 1948 had not been enacted;

(8) In the case of decedents dying after December 31, 1950, and before January 1, 1954, property which represents the survivor's interest in a joint and survivor's annuity if the value of any part of such interest was required to be included in determining the value of decedent's gross estate under section 811 of the Internal Revenue Code of 1939;

(9) In the case of decedents dying after December 31, 1953, property acquired from the decedent by reason of death, form of ownership, or other conditions (including property acquired through the exercise or non-exercise of a power of appointment), if by reason thereof the property is required to be included in determining the value of the decedent's gross estate under chapter 11 of subtitle B or under the Internal Revenue Code of 1939. In such case, if the property is acquired before the death of the decedent, the basis shall be the amount determined under subsection (a) reduced by the amount allowed to the taxpayer as deductions in computing taxable income under this subtitle or prior income tax laws for exhaustion, wear and tear, obsolescence, amortization, and depletion on such property before the death of the decedent. Such basis shall be applicable to the property commencing on the death of the decedent. This parargaph shall not apply to—

(A) Annuities described in section 72;

(B) Property to which paragraph (5) would apply if the property had been acquired by bequest; and

(C) Property described in any other paragraph of this subsection.

(c) Property representing income in respect of a decedent. This section shall not apply to property which constitutes a right to receive an item of income in respect of a decedent under section 691.

(d) Employee stock options. This section shall not apply to restricted stock options described in section 421 which the employee has not exercised at death.

§ 1.1014–1 Basis of property acquired from a decedent—(a) General rule. The purpose of section 1014 is, in general, to provide a basis for property acquired from a decedent which is equal to the value placed upon such property for purposes of the Federal estate tax. Accordingly, the general rule is that the basis of property acquired from a decedent is the fair market value of such property at the date of the decedent's death, or, if the decedent's executor so elects, at the alternate valuation date prescribed in section 2032, or in section 811 (j) of the Internal Revenue Code of 1939. Property acquired from a decedent includes, principally, property acquired by bequest, devise, or inheritance, and, in the case of decedents dying after December 31, 1953, property required to be included in determining the value of the decedent's gross estate under any provision of the Internal Revenue Code of 1954 or the Internal Revenue Code of 1939. The general rule governing basis of property acquired from a decedent, as well as other rules prescribed elsewhere in this section, shall have no application if the property is sold, exchanged, or otherwise disposed of before the decedent's death by the person who acquired the property from the decedent. For general rules on the applicable valuation date where the executor of a decedent's estate elects under section 2032, or under section 811 (j) of the Internal Revenue Code of 1939, to value the decedent's gross estate at the alternate valuation date prescribed in such sections, see § 1.1014–3 (e).

(b) Scope and application. With certain limitations, the general rule described in paragraph (a) of this section is applicable to the classes of property described in paragraphs (a) and (b) of § 1.1014–2. Special basis rules with respect to the basis of certain other property acquired from a decedent are set forth in § 1.1014–2 (c). These special rules concern certain stock or securities of a foreign personal holding company and the surviving spouse's one-half share of community property held with a decedent dying after October 21, 1942, and on or before December 31, 1947. In this section and §§ 1.1014–2 to 1.1014–6, inclusive, whenever the words "property acquired from a decedent" are used they shall also mean "property passed from a decedent" and the phrase "person who acquired it from the decedent" shall include the "person to whom it passed from the decedent."

(c) Property to which section 1014 does not apply. Section 1014 shall have no application to the following classes of property:

(1) Property which constitutes a right to receive an item of income in respect of a decedent under section 691; and

(2) Restricted stock options described in section 421 which the employee has not exercised at death, regardless of the date on which the employee died.

§ 1.1014–2 Property acquired from a decedent—(a) In general. The following property, except where otherwise indicated, is considered to have been acquired from a decedent and the basis thereof is determined in accordance with the general rule in § 1.1014–1:

(1) Without regard to the date of the decedent's death, property acquired by bequest, devise, or inheritance, or by the decedent's estate from the decedent, whether the property was acquired under the decedent's will or under the law governing the descent and distribution of the property of decedents. However, see paragraph (c) (1) of this section if the property was acquired by bequest or inheritance from a decedent dying after August 26, 1937, and if such property consists of stock or securities of a foreign personal holding company.

(2) Without regard to the date of the decedent's death, property transferred by the decedent during his lifetime in trust to pay the income for life to or on the order or direction of the decedent, with the right reserved to the decedent at all times before his death to revoke the trust.

(3) In the case of decedents dying after December 31, 1951, property transferred by the decedent during his lifetime in trust to pay the income for life to or on the order or direction of the decedent with the right reserved to the decedent at all times before his death to make any change in the enjoyment thereof through the exercise of a power to alter, amend, or terminate the trust.

(4) Without regard to the date of the decedent's death, property passing without full and adequate consideration under a general power of appointment exercised by the decedent by will. (See section 2041 (b) for definition of general power of appointment.)

(5) In the case of decedents dying after December 31, 1947, property which represents the surviving spouse's one-half share of community property held by the decedent and the surviving spouse under the community property laws of any State, Territory, or possession of the United States or any foreign country, if at least one-half of the whole of the community interest in that property was includible in determining the value of the decedent's gross estate under part III of chapter 11 (relating to the estate tax) or section 811 of the Internal Revenue Code of 1939. It is not necessary for the application of this subparagraph that an estate tax return be required to be filed for the estate of the decedent or that an estate tax be payable.

(6) In the case of decedents dying after December 31, 1950, and before January 1, 1954, property which represents the survivor's interest in a joint and survivor's annuity if the value of any part of that interest was required to be included in determining the value of the decedent's gross estate under section 811 of chapter 3 of the Internal Revenue Code of 1939. It is necessary only that the value of a part of the survivor's interest in the annuity be includible in the gross estate under section 811. It is not necessary for the application of this subparagraph that an estate tax return be required to be filed for the estate of the decedent or that an estate tax be payable.

(b) Property acquired from a decedent dying after December 31, 1953—(1) In general. In addition to the property described in paragraph (a) of this section, and except as otherwise provided in subparagraph (3) of this paragraph, in the case of a decedent dying after December 31, 1953, property shall also be considered to have been acquired from the decedent to the extent that both of the following conditions are met: (i) the property was acquired from the decedent by reason of death, form of ownership, or other conditions (including property acquired through the exercise or non-exercise of a power of appointment), and (ii) the property is includible in the decedent's gross estate under the provisions of the Internal Revenue Code of 1954, or 1939, because of such acquisition. The basis of such property in the hands of the person who acquired it from the decedent shall be determined in accordance with the general rule in § 1.1014–1. See, however, § 1.1014–6 for special adjustments if such property is acquired before the death of the decedent. See also subparagraph (3) for a description of property not within the scope of this paragraph.

(2) Rules for the application of subparagraph (1). Except as provided in subparagraph (3), this paragraph generally includes all property acquired from a decedent, which is includible in the gross estate of the decedent if the decedent died after December 31, 1953. It is not necessary for the application of this paragraph that an estate tax return be required to be filed for the estate of the decedent or that an estate tax be payable. Property acquired prior to the death of a decedent which is includible in the decedent's gross estate, such as property transferred by a decedent in contemplation of death, and property held by a taxpayer and the decedent as joint tenants or as tenants by the entireties is within the scope of this paragraph. Also, this paragraph includes property acquired through the exercise or non-exercise of a power of appointment where such property is includible in the decedent's gross estate. It does not include property not includible in the decedent's gross estate such as property not situated in the United States acquired from a nonresident who is not a citizen of the United States.

(3) Exceptions to application of paragraph (b). The rules in paragraph (b) are not applicable to the following property:

(i) Annuities described in section 72;

(ii) Stock or securities of a foreign personal holding company as described in section 1014 (b) (5) (see paragraph (c) (1) of this section);

(iii) Property described in any paragraph other than paragraph (9) of section 1014 (b). See paragraphs (a) and (c) of this section.

In illustration of subdivision (ii), assume that A acquired by gift stock of a character described in paragraph (c) (1) of this section from a donor and upon the death of the donor the stock was includible in the donor's estate as being a gift in contemplation of death. A's basis in the stock would not be determined by reference to its fair market value at the donor's death under the general rule in section 1014 (a). Furthermore, the special basis rules prescribed in paragraph (c) (1) are not applicable to such property acquired by gift in contemplation of death. It will be necessary to refer to the rules in section 1015 (a) to determine the basis.

(c) Special basis rules with respect to certain property acquired from a decedent—(1) Stock or securities of a foreign personal holding company. The basis of certain stock or securities of a foreign corporation which was a foreign personal holding company with respect to its taxable year next preceding the date of the decedent's death is governed by a special rule. If such stock was acquired from a decedent dying after August 26, 1937, by bequest or inheritance, or by the decedent's estate from the decedent, the basis of the property in the hands of the person who so acquired it (notwithstanding any other provision of section 1014) shall be the fair market value of such property at the date of the decedent's death or the adjusted basis of the stock in the hands of the decedent, whichever is lower.

(2) Spouse's interest in community property of decedent dying after October 21, 1942, and on or before December 31, 1947. In the case of a decedent dying after October 21, 1942, and on or before December 31, 1947, a special rule is provided for determining the basis of such part of any property, representing the surviving spouse's one-half share of property held by the decedent and the surviving spouse under the community property laws of any State, Territory, or possession of the United States or any foreign country, as was included in determining the value of the decedent's gross estate, if a tax under chapter 3 of the Internal Revenue Code of 1939 was payable upon the decedent's net estate. In such case the basis shall be the fair market value of such part of the property at the date of death (or the optional valuation elected under section 811 (j) of the Internal Revenue Code of 1939) or the adjusted basis of the property determined without regard to this subparagraph, whichever is the higher.

§ 1.1014–3 Other basis rules—(a) Fair market value. For purposes of this section and § 1.1014–1, the value of property as of the date of the decedent's death as appraised for the purpose of the Federal estate tax or the alternate value as appraised for such purpose, whichever is applicable, shall be deemed to be its fair market value. If no estate tax return is required to be filed under section 6018 (or under section 821 or 864 of the Internal Revenue Code of 1939) the value of the property appraised as of the date of the decedent's death for the purpose of State inheritance or transmission taxes shall be deemed to be its fair market value and no alternate valuation date shall be applicable.

(b) Property acquired from a decedent dying before March 1, 1913. If the decedent died before March 1, 1913, the fair market value on that date is taken in lieu of the fair market value on the date of death, but only to the same extent and for the same purposes as the fair market value on March 1, 1913, is taken under section 1053.

(c) Reinvestments by a fiduciary. The basis of property acquired after the death of the decedent by a fiduciary as an investment is the cost or other basis of such property to the fiduciary, and not the fair market value of such property at the death of the decedent. For example, the executor of an estate purchases stock of X company at a price of $100 per share with the proceeds of the sale of property acquired from a decedent. At the date of the decedent's death the fair market value of such stock was $98 per share. The basis of such stock to the executor or to a legatee, assuming the stock is distributed, is $100 per share.

(d) Reinvestments of property transferred during life. Where property is transferred by a decedent during life and the property is sold, exchanged, or otherwise disposed of before the decedent's death by the person who acquired the property from the decedent, the general rule stated in § 1.1014–1 (a) shall not apply to such property. However, in such a case, the basis of any property acquired by such donee in exchange for the original property, or of any property acquired by the donee through reinvesting the proceeds of the sale of the original property, shall be the fair market value of the property thus acquired at the date of the decedent's death (or applicable alternate valuation date) if the property thus acquired is properly included in the decedent's gross estate for Federal estate tax purposes. These rules also apply to property acquired by the donee in any further exchanges or in further reinvestments. For example, on January 1, 1956, the decedent made a gift of real property to a trust for the benefit of his children, reserving to himself the power to revoke the trust at will. Prior to the decedent's death the trustee sold the real property and invested the proceeds in stock of the Y company at $50 per share. At the time of the decedent's death the value of such stock was $75 per share. The corpus of the trust was required to be included in the decedent's gross estate owing to his reservation of the power of revocation. The basis of the Y company stock following the decedent's death is $75 per share. Moreover, if the trustee sold the Y Company stock before the decedent's death for $65 a share and reinvested the proceeds in Z company stock which increased in value to $85 per share at the time of the decedent's death, the basis of the Z company stock following the decedent's death would be $85 per share.

(e) Alternate valuation dates. Section 1014 (a) provides a special rule applicable in determining the basis of property described in § 1.1014–2 where—

(1) The property is includible in the gross estate of a decedent who died after October 21, 1942, and

(2) The executor elects for estate tax purposes under section 2032, or section 811 (j) of the Internal Revenue Code of 1939, to value the decedent's gross estate at the alternate valuation date prescribed in such sections.

In those cases, the value applicable in determining the basis of the property is not the value at the date of the decedent's death but (with certain limitations) the value at the date one year after his death if not distributed, sold, exchanged, or otherwise disposed of in the meantime. If such property was distributed, sold, exchanged, or otherwise disposed of within one year after the date of the decedent's death by the person who acquired it from the decedent, the value applicable in determining the basis is its value as of the date of such distribution, sale, exchange, or other disposition. For illustrations of the operation of this paragraph, see the estate tax regulations under section 2032.

§ 1.1014–4 Uniformity of basis; adjustment to basis—(a) In general. (1) The basis of property acquired from a decedent, as determined under section 1014 (a), is uniform in the hands of every person having possession or enjoyment of the property at any time under the will or other instrument or under the laws of descent and distribution. The principle of uniform basis means that the basis of the property (to which proper adjustments must, of course, be made) will be the same, or uniform, whether the property is possessed or enjoyed by the executor or administrator, the heir, the legatee or devisee, or the trustee or beneficiary of a trust created by a will or an inter vivos trust. In determining the amount allowed or allowable to a taxpayer in computing taxable income as deductions for depreciation or depletion under section 1016 (a) (2), the uniform basis of the property shall at all times be used and adjusted. The sale, exchange, or other disposition by a life tenant or remainderman of his interest in property will, for purposes of this section, have no effect upon the uniform basis of the property in the hands of those who acquired it from the decedent. Thus, gain or loss on sale of trust assets by the trustee will be determined without regard to the prior sale of any interest in the property. Moreover, any adjustment for depreciation shall be made to the uniform basis of the property without regard to such prior sale, exchange, or other disposition.

(2) Under the law governing wills and the distribution of the property of decedents, all titles to property acquired by bequest, devise, or inheritance relate back to the death of the decedent, even though the interest of the person taking the title was, at the date of death of the decedent, legal, equitable, vested, contingent, general, specific, residual, conditional, executory, or otherwise. Accordingly, there is a common acquisition date for all titles to property acquired from a decedent within the meaning of section 1014, and, for this reason, a common or uniform basis for all such interests. For example, if distribution of personal property left by a decedent is not made until one year after his death, the basis of such property in the hands of the legatee is its fair market value at the time when the decedent died, and not when the legatee actually received the property. If the bequest is of the residue to trustees in trust, and the executors do not distribute the residue to such trustees until five years after the death of the decedent, the basis of each piece of property left by the decedent and thus received, in the hands of the trustees, is its fair market value at the time when the decedent dies. If the bequest is to trustees in trust to pay to A during his lifetime the income of the property bequeathed, and after his death to distribute such property to the survivors of a class, and upon A's death the property is distributed to the taxpayer as the sole survivor, the basis of such property, in the hands of the taxpayer, is its fair market value at the time when the decedent died. The purpose of the Internal Revenue Code in prescribing a general uniform basis rule for property acquired from a decedent is, on the one hand, to tax the gain, in respect of such property, to him who realizes it (without regard to the circumstance that at the death of the decedent it may have been quite uncertain whether the taxpayer would take or gain anything); and, on the other hand, not to recognize as gain any element of value resulting solely from the circumstance that the possession or enjoyment of the taxpayer was postponed. Such postponement may be, for example, until the administration of the decedent's estate is completed, until the period of the possession or enjoyment of another has terminated, or until an uncertain event has happened. It is the increase or decrease in the value of property reflected in a sale or other disposition which is recognized as the measure of gain or loss.

(3) The principles stated in subparagraphs (1) and (2) of this paragraph do not apply to property transferred by an executor, administrator or trustee, to an heir, legatee, devisee or beneficiary under circumstances such that the transfer constitutes a sale or exchange. In such a case, gain or loss must be recognized by the transferor to the extent required by the revenue laws, and the transferee acquires a basis equal to the fair market value of the property on the date of the transfer. Thus, for example, if the trustee of a trust created by will transfers to a beneficiary, in satisfaction of a specific bequest of $10,000, securities which had a fair market value of $9,000 on the date of the decedent's death and $10,000 on the date of the transfer, the trust realizes a taxable gain of $1,000 and the basis of the securities in the hands of the beneficiary would be $10,000. As a further example, if the executor of an estate transfers to a trust property worth $200,000, which had a fair market value of $175,000 on the date of the decedent's death, in satisfaction of the decedent's bequest in trust for the benefit of his wife of cash or securities to be selected by the executor in an amount sufficient to utilize the marital deduction to the maximum extent authorized by law (after taking into consideration any other property qualifying for the marital deduction), capital gain in the amount of $25,000 would be realized by the estate and the basis of the property in the hands of the trustees would be $200,000. If, on the other hand, the decedent bequeathed a fraction of his residuary estate to a trust for the benefit of his wife, which fraction will not change regardless of any fluctuations in value of property in the decedent's estate after his death, no gain or loss would be realized by the estate upon transfer of property to the trust, and the basis of the property in the hands of the trustee would be its fair market value on the date of the decedent's death or on the alternate valuation date.

(b) Multiple interests. Where more than one person has an interest in property acquired from a decedent, the basis of such property shall be determined and adjusted without regard to the multiple interests. The basis for computing gain or loss on the sale of any one of such multiple interests shall be determined under § 1.1014–5. Thus, the deductions for depreciation and for depletion allowed or allowable, under sections 167 and 611, to a legal life tenant as if the life tenant were the absolute owner of the property, constitute an adjustment to the basis of the property not only in the hands of the life tenant, but also in the hands of the remainderman and every other person to whom the same uniform basis is applicable. Similarly, the deductions allowed or allowable under sections 167 and 611, both to the trustee and to the trust beneficiaries, constitute an adjustment to the basis of the property not only in the hands of the trustee, but also in the hands of the trust beneficiaries and every other person to whom the uniform basis is applicable. See, however, section 262. Similarly, adjustments in respect of capital expenditures or losses, tax-free distributions, or other distributions applicable in reduction of basis, or other items for which the basis is adjustable are made without regard to which one of the persons to whom the same uniform basis is applicable makes the capital expenditures or sustains the capital losses, or to whom the tax-free or other distributions are made, or to whom the deductions are allowed or allowable. See § 1.1014–6 for adjustments in respect of property acquired from a decedent prior to his death.

(c) Records. The executor or other legal representative of the decedent, the fiduciary of a trust under a will, the life tenant and every other person to whom a uniform basis under this section is applicable, shall maintain records showing in detail all deductions, distributions, or other items for which adjustment to basis is required to be made by sections 1016 and 1017, and shall furnish to the district director such information with respect to those adjustments as he may require.

§ 1.1014–5 Gain or loss—(a) Sale or other disposition of a life interest, remainder interest, or other interest in property acquired from a decedent. (1) The gain or loss from a sale or other disposition of a life interest, remainder interest, or other interest in property acquired from a decedent is determined by comparing the amount of the proceeds with the amount of that part of the adjusted uniform basis which is assignable to the interest sold or otherwise disposed of. The adjusted uniform basis is the uniform basis of the entire property adjusted to the time of sale or other disposition of any such interest as required by sections 1016 and 1017. The uniform basis is the unadjusted basis of the entire property determined immediately after the decedent's death under the applicable sections of part II of subchapter O of chapter 1 of the Internal Revenue Code of 1954. The proper measure of gain or loss resulting from a sale or other disposition of an interest in property acquired from a decedent is so much of the increase or decrease in the value of the entire property as is reflected in such sale or other disposition. Hence, in ascertaining the basis of a life interest, remainder interest, or other interest which is sold or otherwise disposed of, the uniform basis rule contemplates that proper adjustments will be made to reflect the change in relative value of the interests on account of the passage of time. Where a remainder interest is subject to a life interest in one person only, the factors set forth in the table which appears at the end of this subparagraph shall be used in determining the basis of the life interest or the remainder interest in the property at the time such interest is sold. The basis of the life interest or the remainder interest is computed by multiplying the uniform basis (adjusted to the time of the sale) by the appropriate factor. In the case of the sale of a life interest or a remainder interest, the factor used is the factor which appears in the life interest or the remainder interest column of the table opposite the age (at the time of the sale) of the person at whose death the life interest will terminate.

TABLE OF FACTORS

These factors are taken from Table I of the Estate Tax Regulations. See Table I in § 20.2031–7 (f) of those regulations for remainder and life factors for ages not shown here.

In cases in which the value of an interest cannot be determined from the above table, for example, cases in which the interest to be valued is dependent upon the continuation or termination of more than one life, or there is a term-certain concurrent with one or more lives, the factor is to be computed upon the basis of the Makehamized mortality table and interest at the rate of 3½ percent a year, compounded annually. This table appears as Table 38 of United States Life Tables and Actuarial Tables 1939–1941, published by the United States Department of Commerce, Bureau of the Census. Many such factors may be found in, or readily computed with the use of the tables contained in a pamphlet entitled "Actuarial Values for Estate and Gift Tax," which may be purchased from the Superintendent of Documents, United States Government Printing Office, Washington 25, D. C.; or a case requiring a special factor (provided the transaction is completed and not merely proposed or hypothetical) may be stated to the Commissioner who will furnish such factor. The request must be accompanied by a statement of the date of birth of each person, the duration of whose life may affect the value of the interest, and by copies of the relevant instruments.

(2) The application of this section may be illustrated by the following example:

Example. Improved realty having a fair market value of $20,000 at the date of the decedent's death on January 1, 1954, is devised to A for life, with remainder over to B. On January 1, 1958, A sells his life interest for $12,500. During each of the years 1954–57, inclusive, A was allowed a deduction of $300 for depreciation. Thus, the adjusted uniform basis of the property is $18,800 ($20,000 minus $1,200 depreciation). At the time of the sale, A was 39 years of age. The life factor to be used here is 0.63898. The portion of the uniform basis (adjusted to the time of the sale) assigned to A's life interest is $12,012.82 (0.63898×$18,800). A's gain on the sale is $487.18 ($12,500—12,012.82).

§ 1.1014–6 Special rule for adjustments to basis where property is acquired from a decedent prior to his death—(a) In general. (1) The basis of property described in section 1014 (b) (9) which is acquired from a decedent prior to his death shall be adjusted for depreciation, obsolescence, amortization, and depletion allowed the taxpayer on such property for the period prior to the decedent's death. Thus, in general, the adjusted basis of such property will be its fair market value at the decedent's death, or the applicable alternate valuation date, less the amount allowed (determined with regard to section 1016 (a) (2) (B)) to the taxpayer as deductions for exhaustion, wear and tear, obsolescence, amortization and depletion for the period held by the taxpayer prior to the decedent's death. The deduction allowed for a taxable year in which the decedent dies shall be an amount properly allocable to that part of the year prior to his death. For a discussion of the basis adjustment required by section 1014 (b) (9) where property is held in trust, see paragraph (c) of this section.

(2) Where property coming within the purview of subparagraph (1) of this paragraph was held by the decedent and his surviving spouse as tenants by the entirety or as joint tenants with right of survivorship, and joint income tax returns were filed by the decedent and the surviving spouse in which the deductions referred to in subparagraph (1) were taken, there shall be allocated to the surviving spouse's interest in the property that proportion of the deductions allowed for each period for which the joint returns were filed which her income from the property bears to the total income from the property. Each spouse's income from the property shall be determined in accordance with local law.

(3) The application of this paragraph may be illustrated by the following examples:

Example (1). The taxpayer acquired income-producing property by gift on January 1, 1954. The property had a fair market value of $50,000 on the date of the donor's death, January 1, 1956, and was included in his gross estate at that amount for estate tax purposes as a transfer in contemplation of death. Depreciation in the amount of $750 per year was allowable for each of the taxable years 1954 and 1955. However, the taxpayer claimed depreciation in the amount of $500 for each of these years (resulting in a reduction in his taxes) and his income tax returns were accepted as filed. The adjusted basis of the property as of the date of the decedent's death is $49,000 ($50,000, the fair market value at the decedent's death, less $1,000, the total of the amounts actually allowed as deductions).

Example (2). On July 1, 1952, H purchased for $30,000 income-producing property which he conveyed to himself and W, his wife, as tenants by the entirety. Under local law each spouse was entitled to one-half of the income therefrom. H died on January 1, 1955, at which time the fair market value of the property was $40,000. The entire value of the property was included in H's gross estate. H and W filed joint income tax returns for the years 1952, 1953, and 1954. The total depreciation allowance for the year 1952 was $500 and for each of the other years 1953 and 1954 was $1,000. One-half of the $2,500 depreciation will be allocated to W. The adjusted basis of the property in W's hands of January 1, 1955, was $38,750 ($40,000, value on the date of H's death, less $1,250, depreciation allocated to W for periods before H's death). However, if, under local law, all of the income from the property was allocable to H, no adjustment under this paragraph would be required and W's basis for the property as of the date of H's death would be $40,000.

(b) Multiple interests in property described in section 1014 (b) (9) and acquired from a decedent prior to his death. (1) Where more than one person has an interest in property described in section 1014 (b) (9) which was acquired from a decedent before his death, the basis of such property and of each of the several interests therein shall, in general, be determined and adjusted in accordance with the principles contained in §§ 1.1014–4 and 1.1014–5, relating to the uniformity of basis rule. Application of these principles to the determination of basis under section 1014 (b) (9) is shown in the remaining subparagraphs of this paragraph in connection with certain commonly encountered situations involving multiple interests in property acquired from a decedent before his death.

(2) Where property is acquired from a decedent before his death, and the entire property is subsequently included in the decedent's gross estate for estate tax purposes, the uniform basis of the property, as well as the basis of each of the several interests in the property, shall be determined by taking into account the basis adjustments required by section 1014 (a) owing to such inclusion of the entire property in the decedent's gross estate. For example, suppose that the decedent transfers property in trust, with a life estate to A, and the remainder to B or his estate. The transferred property consists of 100 shares of the common stock of X Corporation, with a basis of $10,000 at the time of the transfer. At the time of the decedent's death the value of the stock is $20,000. The transfer is held to have been made in contemplation of death and the entire value of the trust is included in the decedent's gross estate. Under section 1014 (a), the uniform basis of the property in the hands of the trustee, the life tenant, and the remainderman, is $20,000. If immediately prior to the decedent's death, A's share of the uniform basis of $10,000 was $6,000, and B's share was $4,000, then, immediately after the decedent's death, A's share of the uniform basis of $20,000 is $12,000, and B's share is $8,000.

(3) (i) In cases where, due to the operation of the estate tax, only a portion of property acquired from a decedent before his death is included in the decedent's gross estate, as in cases where the decedent retained a reversion to take effect upon the expiration of a life estate in another, the uniform basis of the entire property shall be determined by taking into account any basis adjustments required by section 1014 (a) owing to such inclusion of a portion of the property in the decedent's gross estate. In such cases the uniform basis is the adjusted basis of the entire property immediately prior to the decedent's death increased (or decreased) by an amount which bears the same relation to the total appreciation (or diminution) in value of the entire property (over the adjusted basis of the entire property immediately prior to the decedent's death) as the value of the property included in the decedent's gross estate bears to the value of the entire property. For example, assume that the decedent creates a trust to pay the income to A for life, remainder to B or his estate. The trust instrument further provides that if the decedent should survive A, the income shall be paid to the decedent for life. Assume that the decedent predeceases A, so that, due to the operation of the estate tax, only the present value of the remainder interest is included in the decedent's gross estate. The trust consists of 100 shares of the common stock of X Corporation with an adjusted basis immediately prior to the decedent's death of $10,000 (as determined under section 1015). At the time of the decedent's death the value of the stock is $20,000, and the value of the remainder interest in the hands of B is $8,000. The uniform basis of the entire property following the decedent's death is $14,000, computed as follows:

Uniform basis prior to decedent's death	$10,000
Increase in uniform basis (determined by the following formula)	4,000
Increase in uniform basis (to be determined) / $10,000 (total appreciation) = $8,000 (value of property included in gross estate) / $20,000 (value of entire property)
Uniform basis under section 1014 (a)	14,000

(ii) In cases of the type described in subdivision (i) of this subparagraph, the basis of any interest which is included in the decedent's gross estate may be ascertained by adding to (or substracting from) the basis of such interest determined immediately prior to the decedent's death the increase (or decrease) in the uniform basis of the property attributable to the inclusion of the interest in the decedent's gross estate. Where the interest is sold or otherwise disposed of at any time after the decedent's death, proper adjustment must be made in order to reflect the change in value of the interest on account of the passage of time (see § 1.1014–5 (a) and the table included therein). For an illustration of the operation of this subdivision, see step 6 of the example in § 1.1014–7.

(iii) In cases of the type described in subdivision (i) (cases where, due to the operation of the estate tax, only a portion of the property is included in the decedent's gross estate), the basis for computing the depreciation, amortization, or depletion allowance shall be the uniform basis of the property determined under section 1014 (a). However, the manner of taking into account such allowance computed with respect to such uniform basis is subject to the following limitations:

(a) In cases where the value of the life interest is not included in the decedent's gross estate, the amount of such allowance to the life tenant under section 167 (g) (or section 611 (b)) shall not exceed the amount which would have been allowable to the life tenant if no portion of the basis of the property was determined under section 1014 (a). Proper adjustment shall be made for the amount allowable to the life tenant, as required by section 1016. Thus, an appropriate adjustment shall be made to the uniform basis of the property in the hands of the trustee, to the basis of the life interest in the hands of the life tenant, and to the basis of the remainder in the hands of the remainderman.

(b) The remaining allowance (that is, the increase in the amount of depreciation, amortization, or depletion allowable resulting from the increase in the uniform basis of the property under section 1014 (a)) shall not be allowed to the life tenant. The remaining allowance shall, instead, be allowed to the trustee to the extent that the trustee both (1) is required or permitted, by the governing trust instrument (or under local law), to maintain a reserve for depreciation, amortization, or depletion, and (2) actually maintains such a reserve. If, in accordance with the preceding sentence, the trustee does maintain such a reserve, the remaining allowance shall be taken into account, under section 1016, in adjusting the uniform basis of the property in the hands of the trustee and in adjusting the basis of the remainder interest in the hands of the remainderman, but shall not be taken into account, under section 1016, in determining the basis of the life interest in the hands of the life tenant. For an example of the operation of this subdivision, see § 1.1014–7 (b).

(4) In cases where the basis of any interest in property is not determined under section 1014 (a), as where such interest (i) is not included in the decedent's gross estate, or (ii) is sold, exchanged or otherwise disposed of before the decedent's death, the basis of such interest shall be determined under other applicable provisions of the Internal Revenue Code. To illustrate, in the example shown in subdivision (i) of subparagraph (3) of this paragraph the basis of the life estate in the hands of A shall be determined under section 1015, relating to the basis of property acquired by gift. If, on the other hand, A had sold his life interest prior to the decedent's death, the basis of the life estate in the hands of A's transferee would be determined under section 1012.

(c) Adjustments for deductions allowed prior to the decedent's death. (1) As stated in paragraph (a), section 1014 (b) (9) requires a reduction in the uniform basis of property acquired from a decedent before his death for certain deductions allowed in respect of such property during the decedent's lifetime. In general, the amount of the reduction in basis required by section 1014 (b) (9) shall be the aggregate of the deductions allowed in respect of the property, but shall not include deductions allowed in respect of the property to the decedent himself. In cases where, owing to the operation of the estate tax, only a part of the value of the entire property is included in the decedent's gross estate, interest is included in the decedent's gross estate. The trust consists of an apartment building with a basis of $30,000 at the time of transfer. Under the trust instrument the trustee is required to maintain a reserve for depreciation. During the decedent's lifetime depreciation is allowed in the amount of $800 annually. At the time of the decedent's death the value of the apartment building is $45,000. A, the life tenant, is 43 years of age at the time of the decedent's death. Immediately after the decedent's death, the uniform basis of the entire property under section 1014 (a) is $32,027; A's basis for the life interest is $15,553; and B's basis for the remainder interest is $16,474, computed as follows:

Step 1. Uniform basis (adjusted) immediately prior to decedent's death:

Basis at time of transfer	$30,000
Depreciation allowed under section 1016 before decedent's death ($800×5)	4,000
	26,000

Step 2. Value of property included in decedent's gross estate:

0.40180 (remainder factor, age 43)×$45,000 (value of entire property)	$18,081
Increase in uniform basis (determined by the following formula):
$19,000 (total appreciation, $45,000−$26,000) = $45,000 (value of entire property)	7,634
	33,634

Step 3. Uniform basis of property under section 1014 (a), before reduction required by section 1014 (b) (9):

Uniform basis (adjusted) prior to decedent's death	$26,000
Increase in uniform basis (determined by the following formula):
Increase in uniform basis (to be determined) = $18,081 (value of property included in gross estate)	7,634
	33,634

Step 4. Uniform basis reduced as required by section 1014 (b) (9) for deductions allowed prior to death:

Uniform basis before reduction	$33,634
Deductions allowed prior to decedent's death—taken into account under section 1014 (b) (9) (determined by the following formula):
Prior deductions taken into account (to be determined) = $18,081 (value of property included in gross estate)	1,607
$4,000 (total deductions allowed prior to decedent's death) = $45,000 (value of entire property)	6,027
	16,474

Step 5. A's basis for the life interest at the time of the decedent's death, determined under section 1015:

0.59820 (life factor, age 43)×$26,000	$15,553

Step 6. B's basis for the remainder interest, determined under section 1014 (a):

Basis prior to the decedent's death:
0.40180 (remainder factor, age 43)×$26,000	$10,447
plus
Increase in uniform basis owing to decedent's death:
Increase in uniform basis	$7,634
Reduction required by section 1014 (b) (9)	1,607
	16,474

(b) Assume the same facts as in (a). Assume further, that following the decedents' death depreciation is allowed in the amount of $1,000 annually. As of January 1, 1964, when A's age is 52, the adjusted uniform basis of the entire property is $23,027; A's basis for the life interest is $9,323; and B's basis for the remainder interest is $13,704, computed as follows:

Step 7. Uniform basis (adjusted) as of January 1, 1964:

Uniform basis determined under section 1014 (a), reduced as required by section 1014 (b) (9)	$32,027
less
Depreciation allowed since decedent's death ($1,000×9)	9,000
	23,027

Step 8. Allocable share of adjustment for depreciation allowable in the nine years since the decedent's death:

A's interest

0.49587 (life factor, age 52)×$7,200 (800, depreciation attributable to uniform basis before increase under section 1014 (a), ×9)	$3,570

B's interest

0.50413 (remainder factor, age 52)×$7,200 (800, depreciation attributable to uniform basis before increase under section 1014 (a), ×9)	3,630
plus
$200 (annual depreciation attributable to increase in uniform basis under section 1014 (a)) ×9	1,800
	5,430

Step 9. Tentative bases of A's and B's interests as of January 1, 1964 (before adjustment for depreciation).

A's interest

0.49587 (life factor, age 52)×$26,000 (adjusted uniform basis immediately before decedent's death)	$12,893

B's interest

0.50413 (remainder factor, age 52)×$26,000 (adjusted uniform basis immediately before decedent's death)	$13,107
plus
Increase in uniform basis owing to inclusion of remainder in decedent's gross estate	6,027
	19,134

A

Tentative basis (Step 9)	$12,893
less
Allocable depreciation (Step 8)	3,570

B

Tentative basis (Step 9)	19,134
less
Allocable depreciation (Step 8)	5,430
	13,704

§ 1.1014–8 Bequest, devise, or inheritance of a remainder interest. (a) Where property is transferred for life, with vested remainder in fee, and the remainderman dies before the life tenant, the basis of the remainderman's heir, legatee, or devisee for the remainder interest shall be determined in accordance with the principles set forth in §§ 1.1014–4 through 1.1014–6. However, if the transfer is in trust, no adjustment shall be made to the uniform basis of the property in the hands of the trustee upon the death of the remainderman (see § 1.1014–4 (a)). The basis of any property distributed to the heir, legatee, or devisee upon termination of a trust or at any other time (unless included in the gross income of the legatee or devisee) shall be determined by adding to (or subtracting from) the adjusted uniform basis of the property thus distributed the difference between—

(i) The value of the remainder interest in the property included in the remainderman's estate, and

(ii) The basis of the remainder interest immediately prior to the remainderman's death.

(b) The provisions of paragraph (a) of this section are illustrated by the following examples:

Example (1). Assume that, under the will of a decedent, property consisting of common stock with a value of $1,000 at the time of the decedent's death is transferred in trust, to pay the income to A for life, remainder to B or to B's estate. B predeceases A and bequeaths the remainder interest to C. Assume that B dies on January 1, 1956, and that the value of the stock originally transferred is $1,600 at B's death. A's age at that time is 37. The value of the remainder interest included in B's estate is $547 (0.34185, remainder factor age 37, ×$1,600), and hence $547 is C's basis for the remainder interest immediately after B's death. Assume that C sells the remainder interest on January 1, 1961, when A's age is 42. C's basis for the remainder interest at the time of such sale is $596, computed as follows:

Basis of remainder interest computed with respect to uniform basis of entire property (0.39131, remainder factor age 42, ×$1,000, uniform basis of entire property)	$391
plus
Value of remainder interest included in B's estate	$547
less
Basis of remainder interest immediately prior to B's death (0.34185, remainder factor age 37, ×$1,000)	342
	205
Basis of C's remainder interest at the time of sale	596

Example (2). Assume the same facts as in example (1), except that C does not sell the remainder interest. Upon A's death terminating the trust, C's basis for the stock distributed to him is computed as follows:

Uniform basis of the property, adjusted to date of termination of the trust	$1,000
plus
Value of remainder interests in the property at the time of B's death	$547
less
B's share of uniform basis of the property at the time of his death	342
	205
C's basis for the stock distributed to him upon the termination of the trust	1,205

Example (3). Assume the same facts as in example (2), except that the property transferred is depreciable. Assume further that $100 of depreciation was allowed prior to B's death and that $50 of depreciation is allowed between the time of B's death and the termination of the trust. Upon A's death terminating the trust, C's basis for the property distributed to him is computed as follows:

Uniform basis of the property, adjusted to date of termination of the trust:
Uniform basis immediately after decedent's death	$1,000
Depreciation allowed following decedent's death	150	$850
plus
Value of remainder interest in the property at the time of B's death	547
less
B's share of uniform basis of the property at the time of his death (0.34185×$900, uniform basis at B's death)	308	239
C's basis for the property distributed to him upon the termination of the trust		1,089

(c) The rules stated in paragraph (a) do not apply where the basis of the remainder interest in the hands of the remainderman's transferee is determined by reference to its cost to such transferee. See also, § 1.1014–4 (a). Thus, if, in example (1) of the preceding paragraph, B sold his remainder interest to C for $547 in cash, C's basis for the stock distributed to him upon the death of A terminating the trust is $547.

§ 1.1015 Statutory provisions; basis of property acquired by gifts and transfers in trust.

SEC. 1015. Basis of property acquired by gifts and transfers in trust.—(a) Gifts after December 31, 1920. If the property was acquired by gift after December 31, 1920, the basis shall be the same as it would be in the hands of the donor or the last preceding owner by whom it was not acquired by gift, except that if such basis (adjusted for the period before the date of the gift as provided in section 1016) is greater than the fair market value of the property at the time of the gift, then for the purpose of determining loss the basis shall be such fair market value. If the facts necessary to determine the basis in the hands of the donor or the last preceding owner are unknown to the donee, the Secretary or his delegate shall, if possible, obtain such facts from such donor or last preceding owner, or any other person cognizant thereof. If the Secretary or his delegate finds it impossible to obtain such facts, the basis in the hands of such donor or last preceding owner shall be the fair market value of such property as found by the Secretary or his delegate as of the date or approximate date at which, according to the best information that the Secretary or his delegate is able to obtain, such property was acquired by such donor or last preceding owner.

(b) Transfer in trust after December 31, 1920. If the property was acquired after December 31, 1920, by a transfer in trust (other than by a transfer in trust by a gift, bequest, or devise), the basis shall be the same as it would be in the hands of the grantor increased in the amount of gain or decreased in the amount of loss recognized to the grantor on such transfer under the law applicable to the year in which the transfer was made.

(c) Gift or transfer in trust before January 1, 1921. If the property was acquired by gift or transfer in trust on or before December 31, 1920, the basis shall be the fair market value of such property at the time of such acquisition.

§ 1.1015–1 Basis of property acquired by gift after December 31, 1920—(a) General rule. (1) In the case of property acquired by gift after December 31, 1920 (whether by a transfer in trust or otherwise) the basis of the property for the purpose of determining gain is the same as it would be in the hands of the donor or the last preceding owner by whom it was not acquired by gift. The same rule applies in determining loss unless the basis (adjusted for the period prior to the date of gift in accordance with sections 1016 and 1017) is greater than the fair market value of the property at the time of the gift. In such case the basis for determining loss is the fair market value at the time of the gift.

(2) The provisions of subparagraph (1) may be illustrated by the following example:

Example. A acquires by gift income-producing property which has an adjusted basis of $100,000 at the date of gift. The fair market value of the property at the date of gift is $90,000. A later sells the property for $95,000. In such case there is neither gain nor loss. The basis for determining loss is $90,000; therefore, there is no loss. Furthermore, there is no gain, since the basis for determining gain is $100,000.

(b) Uniform basis; proportionate parts of. Property acquired by gift has a single or uniform basis although more than one person may acquire an interest in such property. The uniform basis of the property remains fixed subject to proper adjustment for items under sections 1016 and 1017. However, the value of the proportionate parts of the uniform basis represented, for instance, by the respective interests of the life tenant and remainderman are adjustable to reflect the change in the relative values of such interest on account of the lapse of time. The portion of the basis attributable to an interest at the time of its sale or other disposition shall be determined under the rules provided in § 1.1014–5.

(c) Time of acquisition. The date that the donee acquires an interest in property by gift is when the donor relinquishes dominion over the property and not necessarily when title to the property is acquired by the donee. Thus, the date that the donee acquires an interest in property by gift where he is a successor in interest, such as in the case of a remainderman of a life estate or a beneficiary of the distribution of the corpus of a trust, is the date such interests are created by the donor and not the date the property is actually acquired.

(d) Property acquired by gift from a decedent dying after December 31, 1953. If an interest in property was acquired by the taxpayer by gift from a donor dying after December 31, 1953, under conditions which require the inclusion of the property in the donor's gross estate for estate tax purposes, and the property had not been sold, exchanged, or otherwise disposed of by the taxpayer before the donor's death, see the rules prescribed in section 1014 and the regulations thereunder.

(e) Fair market value. For the purposes of this section, the value of property as appraised for the purpose of the Federal gift tax, or, if the gift is not subject to such tax, its value as appraised for the purpose of a State gift tax, shall be deemed to be the fair market value of the property at the time of the gift.

(f) Reinvestments by fiduciary. If the property is an investment by the fiduciary under the terms of the gift (as, for example, in the case of a sale by the fiduciary of property transferred under the terms of the gift, and the reinvestment of the proceeds), the cost or other basis to the fiduciary is taken in lieu of the basis specified in paragraph (a) of this section.

(g) Records. To insure a fair and adequate determination of the proper basis under section 1015, persons making or receiving gifts of property should preserve and keep accessible a record of the facts necessary to determine the cost of the property and, if pertinent, its fair market value as of March 1, 1913, or its fair market value as of the date of the gift.

§ 1.1015–2 Transfer of property in trust after December 31, 1920—(a) General rule. (1) In the case of property acquired after December 31, 1920, by transfer in trust (other than by a transfer in trust by a gift, bequest, or devise) the basis of property so acquired is the same as it would be in the hands of the grantor increased in the amount of gain or decreased in the amount of loss recognized to the grantor upon such transfer under the law applicable to the year in which the transfer was made. If the taxpayer acquired the property by a transfer in trust, this basis applies whether the property be in the hands of the trustee, or the beneficiary, and whether acquired prior to the termination of the trust and distribution of the property, or thereafter.

(2) The principles stated in § 1.1015–1 (b) concerning the uniform basis are applicable in determining the basis of property where more than one person acquires an interest in property by transfer in trust after December 31, 1920.

(b) Reinvestment by fiduciary. If the property is an investment made by the fiduciary (as, for example, in the case of a sale by the fiduciary of property transferred by the grantor, and the reinvestment of the proceeds), the cost or other basis to the fiduciary is taken in lieu of the basis specified in paragraph (a) of this section.

§ 1.1015–3 Gift or transfer in trust before January 1, 1921. (a) In the case of property acquired by gift or transfer in trust before January 1, 1921, the basis of such property is the fair market value thereof at the time of the gift or at the time of the transfer in trust.

(b) The principles stated in § 1.1015–1 (b) concerning the uniform basis are applicable in determining the basis of property where more than one person, acquires an interest in property by gift or transfer in trust before January 1, 1921. In addition, if an interest in such property was acquired from a decedent and the property had not been sold, exchanged, or otherwise disposed of before the death of the donor, the rules prescribed in section 1014 and the regulations thereunder are applicable in determining the basis of such property in the hands of the taxpayer.

§ 1.1015–4 Transfers in part a gift and in part a sale—(a) General rule. Where a transfer of property is in part a sale and in part a gift, the unadjusted basis of the property in the hands of the transferee is the sum of (1) the amount paid by the transferee for the property, and (2) any excess of the transferor's adjusted basis over such amount. Thus, the unadjusted basis of the property in the hands of the transferee is the greater of (1) the amount paid for the property, or (2) the transferor's adjusted basis at the time of the transfer. For determining loss, the unadjusted basis of the property in the hands of the transferee shall not be greater than the fair market value of the property at the time of such transfer. For determination of gain or loss of the transferor see § 1.1001–1 (e).

(b) Examples. The rule of paragraph (a) is illustrated by the following examples:

Example (1). If A transfers property to his son for $30,000, and such property at the time of the transfer has an adjusted basis of $30,000 in A's hands (and a fair market value of $60,000), the unadjusted basis of the property in the hands of the son is $30,000.

Example (2). If A transfers property to his son for $60,000, and such property at the time of transfer has an adjusted basis of $30,000 in A's hands (and a fair market value of $90,000), the unadjusted basis of such property in the hands of the son is $60,000.

Example (3). If A transfers property to his son for $30,000, and such property at the time of transfer has an adjusted basis in A's hands of $60,000 (and a fair market value of $90,000), the unadjusted basis of such property in the hands of the son is $60,000.

Example (4). If A transfers property to his son for $30,000 and such property at the time of transfer has an adjusted basis of $90,000 in A's hands (and a fair market value of $60,000), the unadjusted basis of the property in the hands of the son is $90,000. However, since the adjusted basis of the property in A's hands at the time of the transfer was greater than the fair market value at that time, for the purpose of determining any loss on a later sale or other disposition of the property by the son its unadjusted basis in his hands is $60,000.

§ 1.1016 Statutory provisions; adjustments to basis.

SEC. 1016. Adjustments to basis—(a) General rule. Proper adjustment in respect of the property shall in all cases be made—

(1) For expenditures, receipts, losses, or other items, properly chargeable to capital account, but no such adjustment shall be made—

(A) For taxes or other carrying charges described in section 266, or

(B) For expenditures described in section 173 (relating to circulation expenditures), for which deductions have been taken by the taxpayer in determining taxable income for the taxable year or prior taxable years;

(2) In respect of any period since February 28, 1913, for exhaustion, wear and tear, obsolescence, amortization, and depletion, to the extent of the amount—

(A) Allowed as deductions in computing taxable income under this subtitle or prior income tax laws, and

(B) Resulting (by reason of the deductions so allowed) in a reduction for any taxable year of the taxpayer's taxes under this subtitle (other than chapter 2, relating to tax on self-employment income), or prior income, war-profits, or excess-profits tax laws, but not less than the amount allowable under this subtitle or prior income tax laws. Where no method has been adopted under section 167 (relating to depreciation deduction), the amount allowable shall be determined under section 167 (b) (1). Subparagraph (B) of this paragraph shall not apply in respect of any period since February 28, 1913, and before January 1, 1952, unless an election has been made under section 1020. Where for any taxable year before the taxable year 1932 the depletion allowance was based on discovery value or a percentage of income, then the adjustment for depletion for such year shall be based on the depletion which would have been allowable for such year if computed without reference to discovery value or a percentage of income;

(3) In respect of any period—

(A) Before March 1, 1913, and

(B) Since February 28, 1913, during which such property was held by a person or an organization not subject to income taxation under this chapter or prior income tax laws, for exhaustion, wear and tear, obsolescence, amortization, and depletion, to the extent sustained;

(4) In the case of stock (to the extent not provided for in the foregoing paragraphs) for the amount of distributions previously made which, under the law applicable to the year in which the distribution was made, either were tax-free or were applicable in reduction of basis (not including distributions made by a corporation which was classified as a personal service corporation under the provisions of the Revenue Act of 1918 (40 Stat. 1057), or the Revenue Act of 1921 (42 Stat. 227), out of its earnings or profits which were taxable in accordance with the provisions of section 218 of the Revenue Act of 1918 or 1921);

(5) In the case of any bond (as defined in section 171 (d)) the interest on which is wholly exempt from the tax imposed by this subtitle, to the extent of the amortizable bond premium disallowable as a deduction pursuant to section 171 (a) (2), and in the case of any other bond (as defined in section 171 (d)) to the extent of the deductions allowable pursuant to section 171 (a) (1) with respect thereto;

(6) In the case of any short-term municipal bond (as defined in section 75 (b)), to the extent provided in section 75 (a) (2);

(7) In the case of a residence the acquisition of which resulted, under section 1034, in the nonrecognition of any part of the gain realized on the sale, exchange, or involuntary conversion of another residence, to the extent provided in section 1034 (e);

(8) In the case of property pledged to the Commodity Credit Corporation, to the extent of the amount received as a loan from the Commodity Credit Corporation and treated by the taxpayer as income for the year in which received pursuant to section 77, and to the extent of any deficiency on such loan with respect to which the taxpayer has been relieved from liability;

(9) For amounts allowed as deductions as deferred expenses under section 616 (b) (relating to certain expenditures in the development of mines) and resulting in a reduction of the taxpayer's taxes under this subtitle, but not less than the amounts allowable under such section for the taxable year and prior years;

(10) For amounts allowed as deductions as deferred expenses under section 615 (b) (relating to certain exploration expenditures) and resulting in a reduction of the taxpayer's taxes under this subtitle but not less than the amounts allowable under such section for the taxable year and prior years;

(11) For deductions to the extent disallowed under section 268 (relating to sale of land with unharvested crops); notwithstanding the provisions of any other paragraph of this subsection;

(12) To the extent provided in section 28 (h) of the Internal Revenue Code of 1939 in the case of amounts specified in a shareholder's consent made under section 28 of such code;

(13) To the extent provided in section 551 (f) in the case of the stock of United States shareholders in a foreign personal holding company;

(14) For amounts allowed as deductions as deferred expenses under section 174 (b) (1) (relating to research and experimental expenditures) and resulting in a reduction of the taxpayers' taxes under this subtitle, but not less than the amounts allowable under such section for the taxable year and prior years;

(15) For deductions to the extent disallowed under section 272 (relating to disposal of coal), notwithstanding the provisions of any other paragraph of this subsection.

(b) Substituted basis. Whenever it appears that the basis of property in the hands of the taxpayer is a substituted basis, then the adjustments provided in subsection (a) shall be made after first making in respect of such substituted basis proper adjustments of a similar nature in respect of the period during which the property was held by the transferor, donor, or grantor, or during which the other property was held by the person for whom the basis is to be determined. A similar rule shall be applied in the case of a series of substituted bases. The term "substituted basis" as used in this section means a basis determined under any provision of this subchapter and subchapters C (relating to corporate distributions and adjustments), K (relating to partners and partnerships), and P (relating to capital gains and losses), or under any corresponding provision of a prior income tax law, providing that the basis shall be determined—

(1) By reference to the basis in the hands of a transferor, donor, or grantor, or

(2) By reference to other property held at any time by the person for whom the basis is to be determined.

(c) Separate mineral interests treated as one property. For treatment of separate mineral interests as one property, see section 614.

§ 1.1016–1 Adjustments to basis; scope of section. Section 1016 and §§ 1.1016–2 to 1016–10, inclusive, contain the rules relating to the adjustments to be made to the basis of property to determine the adjusted basis as defined in section 1011. However, if the property was acquired from a decedent before his death, see § 1.1014–6 for adjustments on account of certain deductions allowed the taxpayer for the period between the date of acquisition of the property and the date of death of the decedent.

§ 1.1016–2 Items properly chargeable to capital account. (a) The cost or other basis shall be properly adjusted for any expenditure, receipt, loss, or other item, properly chargeable to capital account, including the cost of improvements and betterments made to the property. No adjustment shall be made in respect of any item which, under any applicable provision of law or regulation, is treated as an item not properly chargeable to capital account but is allowable as a deduction in computing net or taxable income for the taxable year. For example, in the case of oil and gas wells no adjustment may be made in respect of any intangible drilling and development expense allowable as a deduction in computing net or taxable income. See the regulations under section 263 (c).

(b) The application of the foregoing provisions may be illustrated by the following example:

Example. A, who makes his returns on the calendar year basis, purchased property in 1941 for $10,000. He subsequently expended $6,000 for improvements. Disregarding, for the purpose of this example, the adjustments required for depreciation, the adjusted basis of the property is $16,000. If A sells the property in 1954 for $20,000, the amount of his gain will be $4,000.

(c) Adjustment to basis shall be made for carrying charges such as taxes and interest, with respect to property (whether real or personal, improved or unimproved, and whether productive or unproductive), which the taxpayer elects to treat as chargeable to capital account under section 266, rather than as an allowable deduction. The term "taxes" for this purpose includes duties and excise taxes but does not include income taxes.

(d) Expenditures described in section 173 to establish, maintain, or increase the circulation of a newspaper, magazine, or other periodical are chargeable to capital account only in accordance with and in the manner provided in the regulations under section 173.

§ 1.1016–3 Exhaustion, wear and tear, obsolescence, amortization, and depletion for periods since February 28, 1913—(a) In general—(1) Adjustment where deduction is claimed. (i) For taxable periods beginning on or after January 1, 1952, the cost or other basis of property shall be decreased for exhaustion, wear and tear, obsolescence, amortization, and depletion by the greater of the following two amounts: (a) the amount allowed as deductions in computing taxable income, to the extent resulting in a reduction of the taxpayer's income taxes, or (b) the amount allowable for the years involved. See paragraph (b) of this section. Where the taxpayer makes an appropriate election the above rule is applicable for periods since February 28, 1913, and before January 1, 1952. See paragraph (d) of this section. For rule for such periods where no election is made, see paragraph (c) of this section.

(ii) The determination of the amount properly allowable for exhaustion, wear and tear, obsolescence, amortization, and depletion shall be made on the basis of facts reasonably known to exist at the end of the taxable year. A taxpayer is not permitted to take advantage in a later year of his prior failure to take any such allowance or his taking an allowance plainly inadequate under the known facts in prior years. In the case of depreciation, if in prior years the taxpayer has consistently taken proper deductions under one method, the amount allowable for such prior years shall not be increased even though a greater amount would have been allowable under another proper method. For rules governing losses on retirement of depreciable property, including rules for determining basis, see § 1.167 (a)–8 of the regulations under section 167. This subdivision may be illustrated by the following example:

Example. An asset was purchased January 1, 1950, at a cost of $10,000. The useful life of the asset is 10 years. It has no salvage value. Depreciation was deducted and allowed for 1950 to 1954 as follows:

1951	-----
1952	1,000
1953	1,000
1954	1,000
Total amount allowed	3,500

The correct reserve as of December 31, 1954, is computed as follows:

Dec. 31:
1950 ($10,000÷10)	$1,000
1951 ($9,000÷9)	1,000
1952 ($8,000÷8)	1,000
1953 ($7,000÷7)	1,000
1954 ($6,000÷6)	1,000
Reserve Dec. 31, 1954	5,000

Depreciation for 1955 is computed as follows:

Cost	$10,000
Reserve as of December 31, 1954	5,000
Unrecovered cost	5,000
Depreciation allowable for 1955 ($5,000÷5)	1,000

(2) Adjustment for amount allowable where no depreciation deduction claimed. (i) If the taxpayer has not taken a depreciation deduction either in the taxable year or for any prior taxable year, adjustments to basis of the property for depreciation allowable shall be determined by using the straight-line method of depreciation. (See § 1.1016–4 for adjustments in the case of persons exempt from income taxation.)

(ii) For taxable years beginning after December 31, 1953, and ending after August 16, 1954, if the taxpayer with respect to any property has taken a deduction for depreciation properly under one of the methods provided in section 167 (b) for one or more years but has omitted the deduction in other years, the adjustment to basis for the depreciation allowable in such a case will be the deduction under the method which was used by the taxpayer with respect to that property. Thus, if A acquired property in 1954 on which he properly computed his depreciation deduction under the method described in section 167 (b) (2) (the declining-balance method) for the first year of its useful life but did not take a deduction in the second and third year of the asset's life, the adjustment to basis for depreciation allowable for the second and third year will be likewise computed under the declining-balance method.

(3) Adjustment for depletion deductions with respect to taxable years before 1932. Where for any taxable year before the taxable year 1932 the depletion allowance was based on discovery value or a percentage of income, then the adjustment for depletion for such year shall not exceed a depletion deduction which would have been allowable for such year if computed without reference to discovery value or a percentage of income.

(b) Adjustment for periods beginning on or after January 1, 1952. The decrease required by paragraph (a) of this section for deductions in respect of any period beginning on or after January 1, 1952, shall be whichever is the greater of the following amounts:

(1) The amount allowed as deductions in computing taxable income under subtitle A of the Internal Revenue Code of 1954 or prior income tax laws and resulting (by reason of the deductions so allowed) in a reduction for any taxable year of the taxpayer's taxes under subtitle A (other than chapter 2, relating to tax on self-employment income) or prior income, war-profits, or excess-profits tax laws; or

(2) The amount properly allowable as deductions in computing taxable income under subtitle A or prior income tax laws (whether or not the amount properly allowable would have caused a reduction for any taxable year of the taxpayer's taxes).

(c) Adjustment for periods since February 28, 1913, and before January 1, 1952, where no election made. If no election has been properly made under section 1020, or under section 113 (d) of the Internal Revenue Code of 1939 (see paragraph (d)), the decrease required by paragraph (a) for deductions in respect of any period since February 28, 1913, and before January 1, 1952, shall be whichever of the following amounts is the greater:

(1) The amount allowed as deductions in computing net income under chapter 1 of the Internal Revenue Code of 1939 or prior income tax laws;

(2) The amount properly allowable in computing net income under chapter 1 of the Internal Revenue Code of 1939 or prior income tax laws.

For the purpose of determining the decrease required by this paragraph, it is immaterial whether or not the amount under subparagraph (1) of this paragraph or the amount under subparagraph (2) of this paragraph would have resulted in a reduction for any taxable year of the taxpayer's taxes.

(d) Adjustment for periods since February 28, 1913, and before January 1, 1952, where election made. If an election has been properly made under section 1020, or under section 113 (d) of the Internal Revenue Code of 1939, the decrease required by paragraph (a) of this section for deductions in respect of any period since February 28, 1913, and before January 1, 1952, shall be whichever is the greater of the following amounts:

(1) The amount allowed as deductions in computing net income under chapter 1 of the Internal Revenue Code of 1939 or prior income tax laws and resulting (by reason of the deductions so allowed) in a reduction for any taxable year of the taxpayer's taxes under subchapter 1 (other than subchapter E, relating to tax on self-employment income), subchapter E of chapter 2 of the Internal Revenue Code of 1939, or prior income, war-profits, or excess-profits tax laws;

(2) The amount properly allowable as deductions in computing net income under chapter 1 of the Internal Revenue Code of 1939 or prior income tax laws (whether or not the amount properly allowable would have caused a reduction for any taxable year of the taxpayer's taxes).

(e) Determination of amount allowed which reduced taxpayer's taxes. (1) As indicated in paragraphs (b) and (d) of this section, there are situations in which it is necessary to determine (for the purpose of ascertaining the basis adjustment required by paragraph (a) of this section) the extent to which the amount allowed as deductions resulted in a reduction for any taxable year of the taxpayer's taxes under subtitle A (other than chapter 2 relating to tax on self-employment income) of the Internal Revenue Code of 1954, or prior income, war-profits, or excess-profits tax laws. This amount (amount allowed which resulted in a reduction of the taxpayer's taxes) is hereinafter referred to as the "tax-benefit amount allowed." For the purpose of determining whether the tax-benefit amount allowed exceeded the amount allowable, a determination must be made of that portion of the excess of the amount allowed over the amount allowable which, if disallowed, would not have resulted in an increase in any such tax previously determined. If the entire excess of the amount allowed over the amount allowable could be disallowed without any such increase in tax, the tax-benefit amount allowed shall not be considered to have exceeded the amount allowable. In such a case (if paragraph (b) or (d) of this section is applicable) the reduction in basis required by paragraph (a) of this section would be the amount properly allowable as a deduction. If only part of such excess could be disallowed without any such increase in tax, the tax-benefit amount allowed shall be considered to exceed the amount allowable to the extent of the remainder of such excess. In such a case (if paragraph (b) or (d) of this section is applicable) the reduction in basis required by paragraph (a) of this section would be the amount of the tax-benefit amount allowed.

(2) For the purpose of determining the tax-benefit amount allowed the tax previously determined shall be determined under the principles of section 1314. The only adjustments made in determining whether there would be an increase in tax shall be those resulting from the disallowance of the amount allowed. The taxable years for which the determination is made shall be the taxable year for which the deduction was allowed and any other taxable year which would be affected by the disallowance of such deduction. Examples of such other taxable years are taxable years to which there was a carryover or carryback of a net operating loss from the taxable year for which the deduction was allowed, and taxable years for which a computation under section 111 or section 1333 was made by reference to the taxable year for which the deduction was allowed. In determining whether the disallowance of any part of the deduction would not have resulted in an increase in any tax previously determined, proper adjustment must be made for previous determinations under section 1311, or section 3801 of the Internal Revenue Code of 1939, and for any previous application of section 1016 (a) (2) (B), or section 113 (b) (1) (B) (ii) of the Internal Revenue Code of 1939.

(3) If a determination under section 1016 (a) (2) (B) must be made with respect to several properties for each of which the amount allowed for the taxable year exceeded the amount allowable, the tax-benefit amount allowed with respect to each of such properties shall be an allocated portion of the tax-benefit amount allowed determined by reference to the sum of the amounts allowed and the sum of the amounts allowable with respect to such several properties.

(4) In the case of property held by a partnership or trust, the computation of the tax-benefit amount allowed shall take into account the tax benefit of the partners or beneficiaries, as the case may be, from the deduction by the partnership or trust of the amount allowed to the partnership or the trust. For this purpose, the determination of the amount allowed which resulted in a tax benefit to the partners or beneficiaries shall be made in the same manner as that provided above with respect to the taxes of the person holding the property.

(5) A taxpayer seeking to limit the adjustment to basis to the tax-benefit amount allowed for any period, in lieu of the amount allowed, must establish the tax-benefit amount allowed. A failure of adequate proof as to the tax-benefit amount allowed with respect to one period does not preclude the taxpayer from limiting the adjustment to basis to the tax-benefit amount allowed with respect to another period for which adequate proof is available. For example, a corporate transferee may have available adequate records with respect to the tax effect of the deduction of erroneous depreciation for certain taxable years, but may not have available adequate records with respect to the deduction of excessive depreciation for other taxable years during which the property was held by its transferor. In such case the corporate transferee shall not be denied the right to apply this section with respect to the erroneous depreciation for the period for which adequate proof is available.

(f) Determination of amount allowable in prior taxable years. (1) One of the factors in determining the adjustment to basis as of any date is the amount of depreciation, depletion, etc., allowable for periods prior to such date. The amount allowable for such prior periods is determined under the law applicable to such prior periods; all adjustments required by the law applicable to such periods are made in determining the adjusted basis of the property for the purpose of determining the amount allowable. Provisions corresponding to the rules in section 1016 (a) (2) (B) described in paragraphs (d) and (e) of this section, which limit adjustments to the "tax-benefit amount allowed" where an election is properly exercised, were first enacted by Public Law 539 (82d Congress) approved July 14, 1952. That law provided that corresponding rules are deemed to be includible in all revenue laws applicable to taxable years ending after December 31, 1931. Accordingly, those rules shall be taken into account in determining the amount of depreciation, etc., allowable for any taxable year ending after December 31, 1931. For example, if the adjusted basis of property held by the taxpayer since January 1, 1930, is determined as of January 1, 1955, and if an election was properly made under section 1020, or section 113 (d) of the 1939 Code, then the amount allowable which is taken into account in computing the adjusted basis as of January 1, 1955, shall be determined by taking those rules into account for all taxable years ending after December 31, 1931. Public Law 539 made no change in the law applicable in determining the amount allowable for taxable years ending before January 1, 1932. If there was a final decision of a court prior to the enactment of Public Law 539, determining the amount allowable for a particular taxable year, such determination shall be adjusted. In such case the adjustment shall be made only for the purpose of taking the provision of that law into account and only to the extent made necessary by such provisions.

(2) Although Public Law 539 amended the law applicable to all taxable years ending after December 31, 1931, the amendment does not permit refund, credit, or assessment of a deficiency for any taxable year for which such refund, credit, or assessment was barred by any law or rule of law.

(g) Property with transferred basis. The following rules apply in the determination of the adjustments to basis of property in the hands of a transferee, donee, or grantee which are required by section 1016 (b), or section 113 (b) (2) of the Internal Revenue Code of 1939, with respect to the period the property was held by the transferor, donor, or grantor:

(1) An election or a revocation of an election under section 1020, or section 113 (d) of the Internal Revenue Code of 1939, by a transferor, donor, or grantor, which is made after the date of the transfer, gift, or grant of the property shall not affect the basis of such property in the hands of the transferee, donee, or grantee. An election or a revocation of an election made before the date of the transfer, gift, or grant of the property shall be taken into account in determining under section 1016 (b) the adjustments to basis of such property as of the date of the transfer, gift, or grant, whether or not an election or a revocation of an election under section 1020, or section 113 (d) of the Internal Revenue Code of 1939, was made by the transferee, donee, or grantee.

(2) An election by the transferee, donee, or grantee, or a revocation of such an election shall be applicable in determining the adjustments to basis for the period during which the property was held by the transferor, donor, or grantor, whether or not the transferor, donor, or grantor had made an election or a revocation of an election, provided that the property was held by the transferee, donee, or grantee at any time on or before the date on which the election or revocation was made.

(h) Examples. The application of section 1016 (a) (1) and (2) may be illustrated by the following examples:

Example (1). The case of Corporation A discloses the following facts:

(1) Year	(2) Amount allowed	(3) Amount allowed which reduced taxpayer's taxes	(4) Amount allowable	(5) Amount allowable but not less than amount allowed	(6) Amount allowable but not less than amount allowed which reduced taxpayer's taxes
1949	$6,000	$5,500	$5,000	$6,000	$5,500
1950	7,000	7,000	6,500	7,000	7,000
1951	5,000	4,000	6,500	6,500	6,500
Total, 1949–51				19,500	19,000
1952	6,500	6,500	6,000		6,500
1953	5,000	4,000	4,000		4,000
1954	4,500	4,500	6,000		6,000
Total, 1952–54					16,500

The cost or other basis is to be adjusted by $16,500 with respect to the years 1952–54, that is, by the amount allowable but not less than the amount allowed which reduced the taxpayer's taxes. An adjustment must also be made with respect to the years 1949–1951, the amount of such adjustment depending upon whether an election was properly made under section 1020, or section 113 (d) of the Internal Revenue Code of 1939. If no such election was made, the amount of the adjustment with respect to the years 1949–51 is $19,500, that is, the amount allowed but not less than the amount allowable. If an election was properly made, the amount of the adjustment with respect to the years 1949–51 is $19,000, that is, the amount allowable but not less than the amount allowed which reduced the taxpayer's taxes.

Example (2). Corporation A, which files its returns on the basis of a calendar year, purchased a building on January 1, 1950, at a cost of $100,000. On the basis of the facts reasonably known to exist at the end of 1950, a period of 50 years should have been used as the correct useful life of the building; nevertheless, depreciation was computed by Corporation A on the basis of a useful life of 25 years, and was allowed for 1950 through 1953 as a deduction in an annual amount of $4,000. The building was sold on January 1, 1954. Corporation A did not make an election under section 1020, or section 113 (d) of the Internal Revenue Code of 1939. No part of the amount allowed Corporation A for any of the years 1950 through 1953 resulted in a reduction of Corporation A's taxes. The adjusted basis of the building as of January 1, 1954, is $88,166, computed as follows:

Taxable year	Adjustments to basis as of beginning of taxable year	Adjusted basis on Jan. 1	Remaining life on Jan. 1	Depreciation allowable	Depreciation allowed
1950		$100,000	50	$2,000	$4,000
1951	$4,000	96,000	49	1,959	4,000
1952	8,000	92,000	48	1,917	4,000
1953	9,917	90,083	47	1,917	4,000
1954	11,834	88,166

Example (3). The facts are the same as in example (2), except that Corporation A made a proper election under section 1020. In such case, the adjusted basis of the building as of January 1, 1954, is $92,000 computed as follows:

Taxable year	Adjustments to basis as of beginning of taxable year	Adjusted basis on Jan. 1	Remaining life on Jan. 1	Depreciation allowable	Depreciation allowed
1950		$100,000	50	$2,000	$4,000
1951	$2,000	98,000	49	2,000	4,000
1952	4,000	96,000	48	2,000	4,000
1953	6,000	94,000	47	2,000	4,000
1954	8,000	92,000

Example (4). If it is assumed that in example (2), or in example (3), all of the deduction allowed Corporation A for 1953 had resulted in a reduction of A's taxes, the adjustment to the basis of the building for depreciation for 1953 would reflect the entire $4,000 deduction. In such case, the adjusted basis of the building as of January 1, 1954, would be $86,083 in example (2), and $90,000 in example (3).

Example (5). The facts are the same as in example (2) except that for the year 1950 all of the $4,000 amount allowed Corporation A as a deduction for depreciation for that year resulted in a reduction of A's taxes. In such case, the adjustments to the basis of the building remain the same as those set forth in example (2).

Example (6). The facts are the same as in example (3) except that for the year 1950 all of the $4,000 amount allowed Corporation A as a deduction for depreciation resulted in a reduction of A's taxes. In such case, the adjusted basis of the building as of January 1, 1954, is $90,123, computed as follows:

Taxable year	Adjustments to basis as of beginning of taxable year	Adjusted basis on Jan. 1	Remaining life on Jan. 1	Depreciation allowable	Depreciation allowed
1950		$100,000	50	$2,000	$4,000
1951	$4,000	96,000	49	1,959	4,000
1952	5,959	94,041	48	1,959	4,000
1953	7,918	92,082	47	1,959	4,000
1954	9,877	90,123

§ 1.1016–4 Exhaustion, wear and tear, obsolescence, amortization, and depletion; periods during which income was not subject to tax. Adjustments to basis must be made for exhaustion, wear and tear, obsolescence, amortization, and depletion to the extent actually sustained in respect of:

(a) Any period before March 1, 1913, and

(b) Any period since February 28, 1913, during which the property was held by a person or an organization not subject to income taxation under chapter 1 of the Internal Revenue Code of 1954 or prior income tax laws.

The amount of the aforedescribed deductions actually sustained is that amount charged off on the books of the taxpayer where such amount is considered by the Commissioner to be reasonable. Otherwise the amount actually sustained will be the amount that would have been allowable as a deduction had the taxpayer been subject to income tax during such period. In the case of depreciation, such deduction will be determined by using the straight line method.

§ 1.1016–5 Miscellaneous adjustments to basis—(a) Certain stock distributions. (1) In the case of stock, the cost or other basis must be diminished by the amount of distributions previously made which, under the law applicable to the year in which the distribution was made, either were tax free or were applicable in reduction of basis (not including distributions made by a corporation which was classified as a personal service corporation under the provisions of the Revenue Act of 1918 or 1921, out of its earnings or profits which were taxable in accordance with the provisions of section 218 of the Revenue Act of 1918 or 1921). For adjustments to basis in the case of certain corporate distributions, see section 301 and the regulations thereunder.

(2) The application of subparagraph (1) may be illustrated by the following example:

Example. A, who makes his returns upon the calendar year basis, purchased stock in 1923 for $5,000. He received in 1924 a distribution of $2,000 paid out of earnings and profits of the corporation accumulated before March 1, 1913. The adjusted basis for determining the gain or loss from the sale or other disposition of the stock in 1954 is $5,000 less $2,000, or $3,000, and the amount of the gain or loss from the sale or other disposition of the stock is the difference between $3,000 and the amount realized from the sale or other disposition.

(b) Amortizable bond premium. In the case of a tax-exempt bond, basis shall be reduced by the amount of the amortizable bond premium disallowable as a deduction under section 171 (a) (2), or under section 125 (a) (2) of the Internal Revenue Code of 1939 and, in the case of any other bond (as defined in section 171 (d)), basis shall be reduced by the amount of the deductions allowable under section 171 (a) (1), or under section 125 (a) (1) of the Internal Revenue Code of 1939.

(c) Short-term municipal bonds. In the case of a short-term municipal bond (as defined in section 75 (b)), basis shall be adjusted to the extent provided in section 75 or as provided in section 22 (o) of the Internal Revenue Code of 1939, and the regulations thereunder.

(d) Sale or exchange of residence. Where the acquisition of a new residence results in the nonrecognition of any part of the gain on the sale, exchange, or involuntary conversion of the old residence, the basis of the new residence shall be reduced by the amount of the gain not so recognized pursuant to section 1034 (a), or section 112 (n) of the Internal Revenue Code of 1939, and regulations thereunder. See section 1034 (e) and regulations thereunder.

(e) Loans from Commodity Credit Corporation. In the case of property pledged to the Commodity Credit Corporation, the basis of such property shall be increased by the amount received as a loan from such corporation and treated by the taxpayer as income for the year in which received under section 77, or under section 123 of the Internal Revenue Code of 1939. The basis of such property shall be reduced to the extent of any deficiency on such loan with respect to which the taxpayer has been relieved from liability.

(f) Deferred development and exploration expenses. Expenditures for development and exploration of mines or mineral deposits treated as deferred expenses under sections 615 and 616, or under the corresponding provisions of prior income tax laws, are chargeable to capital account and shall be an adjustment to the basis of the property to which they relate. The basis so adjusted shall be reduced by the amount of such expenditures allowed as deductions which results in a reduction for any taxable year of the taxpayer's taxes under subtitle A (other than chapter 2 relating to tax on self-employment income) of the Internal Revenue Code of 1954, or prior income, war-profits, or excess-profits tax laws, but not less than the amounts allowable under such provisions for the taxable year and prior years. This amount is considered as the "tax-benefit amount allowed" and shall be determined in accordance with paragraph (e) of § 1.1016–3. For example, if a taxpayer purchases unexplored and undeveloped mining property for $1,000,000 and at the close of the development stage has incurred exploration and development costs of $9,000,000 treated as deferred expenses, the basis of such property at such time for computing gain or loss will be $10,000,000. Assuming that the taxpayer in this example has operated the mine for several years and has deducted allowable percentage depletion in the amount of $2,000,000 and has deducted allowable deferred exploration and development expenditures of $2,000,000, the basis of the property in the taxpayer's hands for purposes of determining gain or loss from a sale will be $6,000,000.

(g) Sale of land with unharvested crop. In the case of an unharvested crop which is sold, exchanged, or involuntarily converted with the land and which is considered as property used in the trade or business under section 1231, the basis of such crop shall be increased by the amount of the items which are attributable to the production of such crop and which are disallowed, under section 268, as deductions in computing taxable income. The basis of any other property shall be decreased by the amount of any such items which are attributable to such other property, notwithstanding any provisions of section 1016 or of this section to the contrary. For example, if the items attributable to the production of an unharvested crop consist only of fertilizer costing $100 and $50 depreciation on a tractor used only to cultivate such crop, and such items are disallowed under section 268, the adjustments to the basis of such crop shall include an increase of $150 for such items and the adjustments to the basis of the tractor shall include a reduction of $50 for depreciation.

(h) Consent dividends. (1) In the case of amounts specified in a shareholder's consent to which section 28 of the Internal Revenue Code of 1939 applies, the basis of the consent stock shall be increased to the extent provided in subsection (h) of such section.

(2) In the case of amounts specified in a shareholder's consent to be treated as a consent dividend to which section 565 applies, the basis of the consent stock shall be increased by the amount which, under section 565 (c) (2), is treated as contributed to the capital of the corporation.

(i) Stock in foreign personal holding company. In the case of the stock of a United States shareholder in a foreign personal holding company, basis shall be adjusted to the extent provided in section 551 (f) or corresponding provisions of prior income tax laws.

(j) Research and experimental expenditures. Research and experimental expenditures treated as deferred expenses under section 174 (b) are chargeable to capital account and shall be an adjustment to the basis of the property to which they relate. The basis so adjusted shall be reduced by the amount of such expenditures allowed as deductions which results in a reduction for any taxable year of the taxpayer's taxes under subtitle A (other than chapter 2 relating to tax on self-employment income) of the Internal Revenue Code of 1954, or prior income, war-profits, or excess-profits tax laws, but not less than the amounts allowable under such provisions for the taxable year and prior years. This amount is considered as the "tax-benefit amount allowed" and shall be determined in accordance with paragraph (e) of § 1.1016–3.

(k) Deductions disallowed in connection with disposal of coal. Basis shall be adjusted by the amount of the deductions disallowed under section 272 with respect to the disposal of coal covered by section 631.

(l) Expenditures attributable to grants or loans covered by section 621. In the case of expenditures attributable to a grant or loan made to a taxpayer by the United States for the encouragement of exploration for, or development or mining of, critical and strategic minerals or metals, basis shall be adjusted to the extent provided in section 621, or in section 22 (b) (15) of the Internal Revenue Code of 1939.

§ 1.1016–6 Other applicable rules. (a) Adjustments must always be made to eliminate double deductions or their equivalent. Thus, in the case of the stock of a subsidiary company, the basis thereof must be properly adjusted for the amount of the subsidiary company's losses for the years in which consolidated returns were made.

(b) In determining basis, and adjustments to basis, the principles of estoppel apply, as elsewhere under the Internal Revenue Code of 1954, and prior internal revenue laws.

§ 1.1016–7 Adjusted basis; cancellation of indebtedness under Bankruptcy Act. (a) In addition to the adjustments provided in section 1016, further adjustment is required in the case of a cancellation or reduction of indebtedness in any proceeding under chapters X, XI, or XII of the Bankruptcy Act (11 U. S. C. c. 10, 11, and 12) and under sections 12, 74, or 77B of the Bankruptcy Act of 1898 as amended. For exceptions to the above rule see sections 372, 373, 374, and 1018. Furthermore, no such further adjustment will be made in the case of a "wage earner" as that term is defined in section 606 (8) of the Bankruptcy Act (11 U. S. C. 1006 (8)). The further adjustments required by this section shall be made in the following manner and order:

(1) In the case of indebtedness incurred to purchase specific property (other than inventory or notes or accounts receivable) whether or not a lien is placed against such property securing the payment of all or part of such indebtedness, which indebtedness shall have been canceled or reduced in any such proceeding, the cost or other basis of such property shall be decreased (but not below its fair market value) by the amount by which the indebtedness so incurred with respect to such property shall have been canceled or reduced;

(2) In the case of specific property (other than inventory or notes or accounts receivable) against which, at the time of the cancellation or reduction of the indebtedness, there is a lien (other than a lien securing indebtedness incurred to purchase such property) the cost or other basis of such property shall be decreased (but not below its fair market value) by the amount by which the indebtedness secured by such lien shall have been canceled or reduced;

(3) Any excess of the total amount by which the indebtedness shall have been so canceled or reduced in such proceeding over the sum of the adjustments made under subparagraphs (1) and (2) of this paragraph shall next be applied to reduce the cost or other basis of the property of the debtor (other than inventory and notes and accounts receivable, but including property covered by such subparagraphs) as follows: the cost or other basis of each unit of property shall be decreased (but not below its fair market value) in an amount equal to such proportion of such excess as the adjusted basis (after adjustment under subparagraphs (1) and (2) of this paragraph) of each such unit of property bears to the sum of the adjusted bases (after adjustment under such subparagraphs) of all the property of the debtor other than inventory and notes and accounts receivable;

(4) Any excess of the total amount by which such indebtedness shall have been so canceled or reduced over the sum of the adjustments made under subparagraphs (1), (2), and (3), of this paragraph shall next be applied to reduce the cost or other basis of any units of property covered by such subparagraphs which have a remaining basis (after adjustment under such subparagraphs) greater than their fair market value, as follows: the cost or other basis of each such unit of property shall be decreased (but not below its fair market value) in an amount equal to such proportion of such excess as the remaining basis of each such unit bears to the sum of the remaining bases of such units. The process shall be repeated until the cost or other basis of each unit of the property covered by subparagraphs (1), (2), and (3) of this paragraph is reduced to its fair market value or the amount by which the indebtedness shall have been canceled or reduced is exhausted, taking into account in the successive steps only those units of property having, after the preceding adjustment, a remaining basis greater than their fair market value; and

(5) Any excess of the total amount by which the indebtedness shall have been so canceled or reduced over the sum of the adjustments made under subparagraphs (1), (2), (3), and (4) of this paragraph shall next be applied to reduce the cost or other basis of inventory and notes and accounts receivable as follows: the cost or other basis of inventory or notes or accounts receivable, as the case may be, shall be decreased (but not below its fair market value) in an amount equal to such proportion of such excess as the adjusted basis of inventory, notes receivable or accounts receivable, as the case may be, bears to the sum of the adjusted bases of such inventory and notes and accounts receivable. The process shall be repeated until the adjusted bases of inventory, notes receivable, and accounts receivable are reduced to their fair market value or the amount by which the indebtedness shall have been canceled or reduced is exhausted, taking into account in the successive steps only those units of property having, after the preceding adjustment, a remaining basis greater than their fair market value.

(b) For the purposes of this section:

(1) Basis shall be determined as of the dates of entry of the order confirming the plan, composition, or arrangement under which such indebtedness shall have been canceled or reduced;

(2) Except where the context otherwise requires, property means all of the debtor's property, other than money;

(3) No adjustment shall be made by virtue of the cancellation or reduction of any accrued interest unpaid which shall not have resulted in a tax benefit in any income tax return;

(4) The phrase "indebtedness incurred to purchase" includes (i) indebtedness for money borrowed and applied in the purchase of property and (ii) an existing indebtedness secured by a lien against the property which the debtor, as purchaser of such property, has assumed to pay; and

(5) The term "fair market value" has reference to such value as of the date of entry of the order confirming the plan, composition, or arrangement under which such indebtedness shall have been canceled or reduced.

(c) Any determination of value in a proceeding under the Bankruptcy Act (11 U. S. C. 1 et seq.), shall not constitute a determination of fair market value for the purpose of this section.

(d) The basis of any of the debtor's property which shall have been transferred to a person required to use the debtor's basis in whole or in part shall be determined in accordance with the provisions of this section.

§ 1.1016–8 Adjusted basis; cancellation of indebtedness; special cases. If the taxpayer and the Commissioner of Internal Revenue agree, the basis of the taxpayer's property may be adjusted in a manner different from that set forth in § 1.1016–7. Variations from such rule may, for example, involve adjusting the basis of any part of the taxpayer's property or adjusting the basis of all the taxpayer's property, according to a fixed allocation. Agreement between the taxpayer and the Commissioner of Internal Revenue as to any variation from such general rule shall be effected only by a closing agreement entered into under the provisions of section 7121.

§ 1.1016–9 Adjusted basis; mutual savings banks, building and loan associations, and cooperative banks. (a) The adjustments to the cost or other basis of property provided in section 1016 and §§ 1.1016–1 to 1.1016–8, inclusive, are applicable in the case of a mutual savings bank not having capital stock represented by shares, a domestic building and loan association, and a cooperative bank without capital stock organized and operated for mutual purposes and without profit, although such institutions were exempt from tax for taxable years beginning before January 1, 1952. Proper adjustment must be made under section 1016 for the entire period since the acquisition of property. Thus, adjustment to basis must be made for depreciation sustained for all prior taxable years although such institution may have been exempt from tax during such years. Similarly, in the case of tax-exempt and partially taxable bonds purchased at a premium and subject to amortization under section 171, proper adjustment to basis must be made to reflect amortization with respect to such premium from the date of acquisition of the bond (or in the case of bonds not issued with interest coupons, or in registered form, from the date such bonds are subject to amortization under section 171).

(b) The application of paragraph (a) of this section may be illustrated by the following example:

Example. On January 1, 1954, Z, a mutual savings bank, which keeps its books on a calendar year basis, owns a tax-exempt $1,000 noncallable bond maturing on January 1, 1964. Such bond was acquired by Z on January 1, 1934, for $1,300. It was sold by Z on December 31, 1954, for $1,250. The yearly rate of amortization of the premium, determined by dividing the total premium of $300 by the life of the bond (30 years) is $10. Z realizes a gain of $80 from such sale computed as follows:

(1)	Cost of bond	$1,300
(2)	Amount of bond premium attributable to years 1942 through 1951, during which Z was exempt from tax ($10 times 10 years)	$100
(3)	Amount of bond premium amortized from Jan. 1, 1952, through Dec. 31, 1954 ($10 times 3 years)	30
(4)	Total amount of adjustments to basis (aggregate of (2) and (3))	130
(5)	Adjusted basis of bond at close of 1954 ((1) reduced by (4))	1,170
(6)	Gain realized upon sale—excess of sale price over adjusted basis ($1,250 minus $1,170)	80

The basis of a fully taxable bond purchased at a premium shall be adjusted from the date to which the election applies to amortize such premium in accordance with the provisions of section 171, except that no adjustment shall be allowable for such portion of the premium attributable to the period prior to the election.

(c) In the case of a mortgage (not within the definition of section 171 (d)) purchased, acquired, or originated at a premium, where the principal of such mortgage is payable in installments, adjustments to the basis of the premium must be made for all taxable years (whether or not the institution was exempt from tax during such years) in which installment payments are received. Such adjustments may be made on an individual mortgage basis or on a composite basis by reference to the average period of payments of the mortgage loans of such institution. For the purpose of this adjustment, the term "premium" includes the excess of the acquisition value of the mortgage over its maturity value. The acquisition value of the mortgage is the cost including buying commissions, attorneys' fees, or brokerage fees, but such value does not include amounts paid for accrued interest. For the method of amortization in the case of corporate mortgages purchased, acquired or originated at a premium see § 1.171–2 (e) of the regulations under section 171.

§ 1.1016–10 Substituted basis. (a) Whenever it appears that the basis of property in the hands of the taxpayer is a substituted basis, as defined in section 1016 (b), the adjustments indicated in §§ 1.1016–1 to 1.1016–6, inclusive, shall be made after first making in respect of such substituted basis proper adjustments of a similar nature in respect of the period during which the property was held by the transferor, donor, or grantor, or during which the other property was held by the person for whom the basis is to be determined. In addition, whenever it appears that the basis of property in the hands of the taxpayer is a substituted basis, as defined in section 1016 (b) (1), the adjustments indicated in §§ 1.1016–7 to 1.1016–9, inclusive, and in section 1017 shall also be made, whenever necessary, after first making in respect of such substituted basis a proper adjustment of a similar nature in respect of the period during which the property was held by the transferor, donor, or grantor. Similar rules shall also be applied in the case of a series of substituted bases.

(b) The application of this section may be illustrated by the following example:

Example. A, who makes his returns upon the calendar year basis, in 1935 purchased the X Building and subsequently gave it to his son B. B exchanged the X Building for the Y Building in a tax-free exchange, and then gave the Y Building to his wife C. C, in determining the gain from the sale or disposition of the Y Building in 1954, is required to reduce the basis of the building by deductions for depreciation which were successively allowed (but not less than the amount allowable) to A and B upon the X Building and to B upon the Y Building, in addition to the deductions for depreciation allowed (but not less than the amount allowable) to herself during her ownership of the Y Building.

SEC. 1018. Adjustment of capital structure before September 22, 1938. Where a plan of reorganization of a corporation, approved by the court in a proceeding under section 77B of the National Bankruptcy Act, as amended (48 Stat. 912), is consummated by adjustment of the capital or debt structure of such corporation without the transfer of its assets to another corporation, and a final judgment or decree in such proceeding has been entered before September 22, 1938, then the provisions of section 270 of the Bankruptcy Act, as amended (54 Stat. 709; 11 U. S. C. 670), shall not apply in respect of the property of such corporation. For the purposes of this section, the term "reorganization" shall not be limited by the definition of such term in section 112 (g) of the Internal Revenue Code of 1939.

§ 1.1018–1 Adjusted basis; exception to section 270 of the Bankruptcy Act, as amended. The adjustment to basis provided by section 270 of the Bankruptcy Act, as amended (11 U. S. C. 670), and by §§ 1.1016–7 and 1.1016–8 shall not be made if, in a proceeding under section 77B of such Act, as amended (11 U. S. C. 207; 48 Stat. 912), indebtedness was canceled in pursuance of a plan of reorganization which was consummated by adjustment of the capital or debt structure of the insolvent corporation, and the final judgment or decree in such proceeding was entered before September 22, 1938. Section 1018 and this section do not apply if the plan of reorganization under such section 77B was consummated by the transfer of assets of the insolvent corporation to another corporation.

§ 1.1019 Statutory provisions; property on which lessee has made improvements.

SEC. 1019. Property on which lessee has made improvements. Neither the basis nor the adjusted basis of any portion of real property shall, in the case of the lessor of such property, be increased or diminished on account of income derived by the lessor in respect of such property and excludable from gross income under section 109 (relating to improvements by lessee on lessor's property). If an amount representing any part of the value of the real property attributable to buildings erected or other improvements made by a lessee in respect of such property was included in gross income of the lessor for any taxable year beginning before January 1, 1942, the basis of each portion of such property shall be properly adjusted for the amount so included in gross income.

§ 1.1019–1 Property on which lessee has made improvements. In any case in which a lessee of real property has erected buildings or made other improvements upon the leased property and the lease is terminated by forfeiture or otherwise resulting in the realization by such lessor of income which, were it not for the provisions of section 109, would be includible in gross income of the lessor, the amount so excluded from gross income shall not be taken into account in determining the basis or the adjusted basis of such property or any portion thereof in the hands of the lessor. If, however, in any taxable year beginning before January 1, 1942, there has been included in the gross income of the lessor an amount representing any part of the value of such property attributable to such buildings or improvements, the basis of each portion of such property shall be properly adjusted for the amount so included in gross income. For example, A leased in 1930 to B for a period of 25 years unimproved real property and in accordance with the terms of the lease B erected a building on the property. It was estimated that upon expiration of the lease the building would have a depreciated value of $50,000, which value the lessor elected to report (beginning in 1931) as income over the term of the lease. This method of reporting was used until 1942. In 1952 B forfeits the lease. The amount of $22,000 reported as income by A during the years 1931 to 1941, inclusive, shall be added to the basis of the property represented by the improvements in the hands of A. If in such case A did not report during the period of the lease any income attributable to the value of the building erected by the lessee and the lease was forfeited in 1940 when the building was worth $75,000, such amount, having been included in gross income under the law applicable to that year, is added to the basis of the property represented by the improvements in the hands of A. As to treatment of such property for the purposes of capital gains and losses, see subchapter P (sections 1201–1241, inclusive).

SEC. 1022. Cross references. (1) For certain distributions by a corporation which are applied in reduction of basis of stock, see section 301 (c) (2).

(2) For basis of property in case of certain reorganizations and arrangements under the Bankruptcy Act, see sections 270, 396, and 522 of that Act, as amended (11 U. S. C. 670, 796, 922).

(3) For basis in case of construction of new vessels, see section 511 of the Merchant Marine Act, 1936, as amended (46 U. S. C. 1161).

(4) For rules applicable in case of payments in violation of Defense Production Act of 1950, as amended, see section 405 of that Act.

GIFT TAX

DETERMINATION OF TAX LIABILITY

§ 25.2501 Statutory provisions; imposition of tax.

SEC. 2501. Imposition of tax—(a) General rule. For the calendar year 1955 and each calendar year thereafter a tax, computed as provided in section 2502, is hereby imposed on the transfer of property by gift during such calendar year by any individual, resident or nonresident, except transfers of intangible property by a nonresident who is not a citizen of the United States and who was not engaged in business in the United States during such calendar year.

(b) Cross reference. For exclusion of transfers of property outside the United States by a nonresident who is not a citizen of the United States, see section 2511 (a).

§ 25.2501–1 Imposition of tax. Sections 2501 through 2524 of the Internal Revenue Code of 1954 (Chapter 12) subject to tax the transfer of property by gift by individuals in the calendar year 1955 and subsequent calendar years. The tax is not imposed on property as such, nor is it applicable to transfers by corporations or other persons than individuals, but it is applicable to transfers by individuals to corporations or other persons (see, however, § 25.2511–1 (g) (1) with respect to the extent to which a transfer by or to a corporation is considered a transfer by or to its shareholders). The tax applies to all transfers by gift of property, wherever situated, by an individual who is a citizen or resident of the United States, to the extent the value of the transfers exceeds the amount of the exclusions authorized by section 2503 and the deductions authorized by sections 2521, 2522, and 2523 (see § 25.2503–1). See §§ 25.2501–2 and 25.2511–3 with respect to transfers by nonresident aliens. For the purposes of these regulations the term "nonresident alien" means a person who is a nonresident not a citizen of the United States at the time of the gift. For the Federal gift tax imposed upon transfers by gift prior to January 1, 1955, see the corresponding provisions of prior laws.

§ 25.2501–2 Residence and citizenship. (a) In certain respects the rules which apply to the taxation of gifts by a donor who is a citizen or resident of the United States differ from the rules which apply to the taxation of gifts by a donor who is a nonresident alien. If the donor is a citizen of the United States; whether or not a resident, or a resident of the United States, whether or not a citizen, the tax applies regardless of where the property is situated. See § 25.2511–3 for special rules applicable in the case of a gift by a nonresident alien.

(b) A resident is one who has his domicile in the United States at the time of the gift. For this purpose the United States includes only the States, the Territories of Alaska and Hawaii, and the District of Columbia. See section 7701 (a) (9). All others are nonresidents. A person acquires a domicile in a place by living there, for even a brief period of time, with no definite present intention of moving therefrom. Residence without the requisite intention to remain indefinitely will not constitute domicile, nor will intention to ohange domicile effect such a change unless accompanied by an actual removal.

§ 25.2502 Statutory provisions; rate of tax.

SEC. 2502. Rate of tax—(a) Computation of tax. The tax imposed by section 2501 for each calendar year shall be an amount equal to the excess of—

(b) Calendar year. The term "calendar year" includes only the calendar year 1932 and succeeding calendar years, and, in the case of the calendar year 1932, includes only the portion of such year after June 6, 1932.

(c) Preceding calendar years. The term "preceding calendar years" means the calendar year 1932 and all calendar years intervening between the calendar year 1932 and the calendar year for which the tax is being computed.

(d) Tax to be paid by donor. The tax imposed by section 2501 shall be paid by the donor.

§ 25.2502–1 Rate of tax—(a) Computation of tax. While the gift tax is imposed separately for each calendar year on the total taxable gifts made by a donor during that year, the rate of tax is determined by the total of all gifts made by the donor during the year and in all previous years since June 6, 1932. The following subparagraphs set forth the six steps to be followed in computing the tax:

(1) First step. Ascertain the amount of the "taxable gifts" for the calendar year for which the return is being prepared. For the meaning of this term see § 25.2503–1.

(2) Second step. Ascertain "the aggregate sum of the taxable gifts for each of the preceding calendar years," considering only those gifts made after June 6, 1932. For the meaning of this term see § 25.2504–1.

(3) Third step. Ascertain the total amount of the taxable gifts, which is the sum of the amounts determined in the first and second steps.

(4) Fourth step. Compute the tax on the total amount of taxable gifts (as determined in the third step) using the rate schedule set forth in paragraph (b) of this section.

(5) Fifth step. Compute the tax on "the aggregate sum of the taxable gifts for each of the preceding calendar years" (as determined in the second step), using the rate schedule set forth in paragraph (b) of this section.

(6) Sixth step. Subtract the amount determined in the fifth step from the amount determined in the fourth step. The amount remaining is the gift tax for the calendar year for which the return is being prepared.

(b) Rate of tax. The tax is computed in accordance with the following table:

TABLE FOR COMPUTING GIFT TAX

(c) Examples. The following examples illustrate the application of this section with respect to gifts made by citizens or residents of the United States:

Example (1). Assume that the donor made taxable gifts, as ascertained under the first step (paragraph (a) (1) of this section), of $62,500 and that there were no taxable gifts for prior years, with the result that the amount ascertained under the third step is $62,500. Under the fourth step a tax is computed on this amount. Reference to the table discloses that the specified amount in column (A) nearest to and less than $62,500 is $60,000. The tax on this amount, as shown in column (C), is $7,125. The amount by which the taxable gifts exceeds the specified amount is $2,500 and the tax on this sum, computed at the rate of 21 percent as shown in column (D), is $525. The tax on taxable gifts of $62,500 is the sum of $7,125 and $525, or $7,650.

Example (2). A donor makes gifts (other than gifts of future interests in property) during the calendar year 1955 of $30,000 to A and $33,000 to B. Two exclusions of $3,000 each are allowable, in accordance with the provisions of section 2503 (b), which results in included gifts for 1955 of $57,000. Specific exemption was claimed and allowed in a total amount of $50,000 in the donor's gift tax returns for the calendar years 1934 and 1935 so there remains no specific exemption available for the donor to claim for 1955. The total amount of gifts made by the donor during preceding years, after excluding $5,000 for each donee for each calendar year in accordance with the provisions of section 1003 (b) (1) of the 1939 Code, is computed as follows:

Total amount of included gifts for preceding calendar years	145,000

The aggregate sum of the taxable gifts for preceding calendar years is $115,000, which is determined by deducting a specific exemption of $30,000 from $145,000, the total amount of included gifts for preceding calendar years. The deduction from the 1934 and 1935 gifts for the specific exemption cannot exceed $30,000 for purposes of computing the tax on the 1955 gifts even though a specific exemption in a total amount of $50,000 was allowed in computing the donor's gift tax liability for 1934 and 1935. (See § 25.2504–1 (b).) The computation of the tax for the calendar year 1955 (following the steps set forth in paragraph (a)) is shown below:

(1) Amount of taxable gifts for year	$57,000
(2) Total amount of taxable gifts for preceding years	115,000
(3) Total taxable gifts	172,000
(4) Tax computed on item 3 (in accordance with rate schedule in paragraph (b))	31,725
(5) Tax computed on item 2 (using same rate schedule)	18,900
(6) Tax for year 1955 (item 4 minus item 5)	12,825

Example (3)—(i) Facts. During the calendar year 1955, H makes the following gifts:

To his daughter	$40,000
To his son	5,000
To W, his wife	5,000
To a charitable organization	10,000

The gifts to W qualify for the marital deduction, and, pursuant to the provisions of section 2513 (see § 25.2513–1), H and W consent to treat the gifts to third parties as having been made one-half by each spouse. The amount of H's taxable gifts for preceding years is $50,000. Only $25,000 of H's specific exemption was claimed and allowed in preceding years. H's remaining specific exemption of $5,000 is claimed for the calendar year 1955. See § 25.2521–1. W made no gifts during the calendar year 1955 nor during any preceding calendar year. W claims sufficient specific exemption on her return to eliminate tax liability.

(ii) Computation of H's tax for the calendar year 1955—(a) H's taxable gifts for year.

Total gifts of H	$60,000
Less: Portion of items to be reported by spouse (one-half of total gifts to daughter, son and charity)	27,500
Balance	32,500
Less: Exclusions (three of $3,000 each for daughter, wife and charity and one of $2,500 for son)	11,500
Total included amount of gifts for year	21,000
Less—Deductions:
Charity $2,000
Marital 2,000
Specific exemption 5,000
Total deductions	9,000
Amount of taxable gifts for year	12,000

(b) Computation of tax. The steps set forth in paragraph (a) of this section are followed.

(1) Amount of taxable gifts for year	$12,000
(2) Total taxable gifts for preceding years	50,000
(3) Total taxable gifts	62,000
(4) Tax computed on item 3 (using rate schedule in paragraph (b) of this section)	7,545
(5) Tax computed on item 2 (using rate schedule in paragraph (b) of this section)	5,250
(6) Tax for calendar year	2,295

(iii) Computation of W's tax for calendar year 1955—(a) W's taxable gifts for year.

Total gifts of W	$0
Less: Portion of items to be reported by spouse	0
Balance	0
Gifts of spouse to be included	27,500

Less—Deductions:
Charity $2,000
Marital 0
Specific exemption 17,000
Total deductions	19,000

(b) Computation of tax. Since W had no "taxable gifts" during the year, there is no tax.

Example (4)—(i) Facts. The facts are the same as in example (3) except that W made outright gifts of $10,000 to her niece and $20,000 to H at various times during the year. The amount of taxable gifts made by W in preceding calendar years is $75,000, and only $20,000 of her specific exemption was claimed and allowed for preceding years. See § 25.2521–1. The remaining specific exemption of $10,000 is claimed for the calendar year 1955.

Total included amount of gifts for year	23,000
Deductions:
Charity	$2,000

(6) Tax for year (item 4 minus item 5)	3,360

§ 25.2502–2 Donor liable for tax. Section 2502 (d) provides that the donor shall pay the tax. If the donor dies before the tax is paid the amount of the tax is a debt due the United States from the decedent's estate and his executor or administrator is responsible for its payment out of the estate. (See § 25.6151–1 for the time and place for paying the tax.) If there is no duly qualified executor or administrator, the heirs, legatees, devisees and distributees are liable for and required to pay the tax to the extent of the value of their inheritance, bequests, devises or distributive shares of the donor's estate. If a husband and wife effectively signify consent, under section 2513, to have the gifts made during any calendar year considered as made one-half by each, the liability with respect to the gift tax for that calendar year is joint and several. As to the personal liability of the donee, see section 6324 (b) and the regulations thereunder. As to the personal liability of the executor or administrator, see section 3467 of the Revised Statutes (31 U. S. C. 192), which reads as follows:

Every executor, administrator, or assignee, or other person, who pays, in whole or in part, any debt due by the person or estate for whom or for which he acts before he satisfies and pays the debts due to the United States from such person or estate, shall become answerable in his own person and estate to the extent of such payments for the debts so due to the United States, or for so much thereof as may remain due and unpaid.

As used in Revised Statutes section 3467, the word "debt" includes a beneficiary's distributive share of an estate.

SEC. 2503. Taxable gifts—(a) General definition. The term "taxable gifts" means the total amount of gifts made during the calendar year, less the deductions provided in subchapter C (sec. 2521 and following).

(b) Exclusions from gifts. In the case of gifts (other than gifts of future interests in property) made to any person by the donor during the calendar year 1955 and subsequent calendar years, the first $3,000 of such gifts to such person shall not, for purposes of subsection (a), be included in the total amount of gifts made during such year. Where there has been a transfer to any person of a present interest in property, the possibility that such interest may be diminished by the exercise of a power shall be disregarded in applying this subsection, if no part of such interest will at any time pass to any other person.

(c) Transfer for the benefit of minor. No part of a gift to an individual who has not attained the age of 21 years on the date of such transfer shall be considered a gift of a future interest in property for purposes of subsection (b) if the property and the income therefrom—

(1) May be expended by, or for the benefit of, the donee before his attaining the age of 21 years, and

(2) Will to the extent not so expended—

(A) Pass to the donee on his attaining the age of 21 years, and

(B) In the event the donee dies before attaining the age of 21 years, be payable to the estate of the donee or as he may appoint under a general power of appointment as defined in section 2514 (c).

§ 25.2503–1 General definition of "taxable gifts." The term "taxable gifts" means the "total amount of gifts" made by the donor during the calendar year less the deductions provided for in sections 2521, 2522, and 2523 (specific exemption, charitable, etc., gifts and the marital deduction, respectively). The "total amount of gifts" means the sum of the values of the gifts made during the calendar year less the amounts excludable under section 2503 (b). (See § 25.2503–2.)

§ 25.2503–2 Exclusions from gifts. Section 2503 (b) provides that the first $3,000 of gifts made to any one donee during the calendar year 1955 or any calendar year thereafter, except gifts of future interests in property as defined in §§ 25.2503–3 and 25.2503–4, is excluded in determining the total amount of gifts for the calendar year. In the case of a gift in trust the beneficiary of the trust is the donee. The entire value of any gift of a future interest in property must be included in the total amount of gifts for the calendar year in which the gift is made.

§ 25.2503–3 Future interests in property. (a) No part of the value of a gift of a future interest may be excluded in determining the total amount of gifts made during the calendar year. "Future interests" is a legal term, and includes reversions, remainders, and other interests or estates, whether vested or contingent, and whether or not supported by a particular interest or estate, which are limited to commence in use, possession or enjoyment at some future date or time. The term has no reference to such contractual rights as exist in a bond, note (though bearing no interest until maturity), or in a policy of life insurance, the obligations of which are to be discharged by payments in the future. But a future interest or interests in such contractual obligations may be created by the limitations contained in a trust or other instrument of transfer used in effecting a gift.

(b) An unrestricted right to the immediate use, possession, or enjoyment of property or the income from property (such as a life estate or term certain) is a present interest in property. An exclusion is allowable with respect to a gift of such an interest (but not in excess of the value of the interest). For the valuation of present and future interests, see § 25.2512–5. If a gift is made of an interest which does not commence immediately or is not unrestricted, or the value of which is not ascertainable by accepted actuarial methods, no exclusion is allowable. However, if a donee has received a present interest in property, the possibility that such interest may be diminished by the transfer of a greater interest in the same property to the donee through the exercise of a power is disregarded in computing the value of the present interest, to the extent that no part of such interest will at any time pass to any other person (see example (4) of paragraph (c) of this section below). For a further exception to the rule disallowing an exclusion for gifts of future interests in the case of certain gifts to minors, see § 25.2503–4.

(c) The operation of this section is illustrated by the following examples:

Example (1). Under the terms of a trust created by A the trustee is directed to pay the net income to B, so long as B shall live. The trustee is authorized in his discretion to withhold payments of income during any period he deems advisable and add such income to the trust corpus. Since B's right to receive the income payments is subject to the trustee's discretion, it is not a present interest and no exclusion is allowable with respect to the transfer in trust.

Example (2). C transfers certain insurance policies on his own life to a trust created for the benefit of D. Upon C's death the proceeds of the policies are to be invested and the net income therefrom paid to D during his lifetime. Since the income payments to D will not begin until after C's death the transfer in trust represents a gift of a future interest in property against which no exclusion is allowable.

Example (3). Under the terms of a trust created by E the net income is to be distributed to E's three children in such shares as the trustee, in his uncontrolled discretion, deems advisable. While the terms of the trust provide that all of the net income is to be distributed, the amount of income any one of the three beneficiaries will receive rests entirely within the trustee's discretion and cannot be presently ascertained. Accordingly, no exclusions are allowable with respect to the transfers to the trust.

Example (4). Under the terms of a trust the net income is to be paid to F for life, with the remainder payable to G on F's death. The trustee has the uncontrolled power to pay over the corpus to F at any time. Although F's present right to receive the income may be terminated, no other person has the right to such income interest. Accordingly, the power in the trustee is disregarded in determining the value of F's present interest. The power is not disregarded to the extent that the trustee during F's life can distribute corpus to persons other than F.

Example (5). The corpus of a trust created by J consists of certain real property, subject to a mortgage. The terms of the trust provide that the net income from the property is to be used to pay the mortgage. After the mortgage is paid in full the net income is to be paid to K during his lifetime. Since K's right to receive the income payments will not begin until after the mortgage is paid in full the transfer in trust represents a gift of a future interest in property against which no exclusion is allowable.

Example (6). L pays premiums on a policy of insurance on his life, all the incidents of ownership of which (including the right to surrender the policy) are vested in M. The payment of premiums constitutes a gift of a present interest in property.

§ 25.2503–4 Transfer for the benefit of a minor. (a) Section 2503 (c) provides that no part of a transfer for the benefit of a donee who has not attained the age of 21 years on the date of the gift will be considered a gift of a future interest in property if the terms of the transfer satisfy all of the following conditions:

(1) Both the property itself and its income may be expended by or for the benefit of the donee before he attains the age of 21 years.

(2) Any portion of the property and its income not disposed of under (1) will pass to the donee when he attains the age of 21 years.

(3) Any portion of the property and its income not disposed of under (1) will be payable either to the estate of the donee or as he may appoint under a general power of appointment as defined in section 2514 (c) if he dies before attaining the age of 21 years.

(b) Either a power of appointment exercisable by the donee by will or a power of appointment exercisable by the donee during his lifetime will satisfy the conditions set forth in paragraph (a) (3) of this section. However, if the transfer is to qualify for the exclusion under this section, there must be no restrictions of substance (as distinguished from formal restrictions of the type described in § 25.2523 (e)–1 (g) (4)), either by law or by the terms of the instrument of transfer, on the exercise of the power by the donee. For example, if under the applicable local law, a minor is incapable of executing a will, the condition in paragraph (a) (3) cannot be satisfied by merely giving a minor donee a power exercisable only by will. Similarly, unless under the local law (by reason of a direction in the governing instrument or otherwise) a minor can effectively exercise an inter-vivos power of appointment, the condition cannot be satisfied by merely giving a minor donee such a power. A transfer does not fail to satisfy the conditions of section 2503 (c) by reason of the mere fact that—

(1) The amount expended by or for the benefit of the donee during minority may be limited to an amount necessary (determinable within the discretion of any person) for his support, health or education, provided such discretionary authority may not be exercised so as to deny the donee the right to the property or income in case of need.

(2) The donee, upon reaching age 21, is given the right to extend the term of the trust.

(3) The governing instrument may contain a disposition of the property or income not expended during the donee's minority to persons other than the donee's estate in the event of the default of appointment by the donee.

(c) A gift to a minor which does not satisfy the requirements of section 2503 (c) may be either a present or a future interest under the general rules of § 25.2503–3. Thus, for example, a transfer of property in trust with income required to be paid annually to a minor beneficiary and corpus to be distributed to him upon his attaining the age of 25 is a gift of a present interest with respect to the right to income but is a gift of a future interest with respect to the right to corpus.

§ 25.2504 Statutory provisions; taxable gifts for preceding years.

SEC. 2504. Taxable gifts for preceding years—(a) In general. In computing taxable gifts for the calendar year 1954 and preceding calendar years for the purpose of computing the tax for the calendar year 1955 or any calendar year thereafter, there shall be treated as gifts such transfers as were considered to be gifts under the gift tax laws applicable to the years in which the transfers were made and there shall be allowed such deductions as were provided for under such laws, except that specific exemption in the amount, if any, allowable under section 2521 shall be applied in all computations in respect of the calendar year 1954 and previous calendar years for the purpose of computing the tax for the calendar year 1955 or any calendar year thereafter.

(b) Exclusions from gifts for preceding years. In the case of gifts made to any person by the donor during the calendar year 1954 and preceding calendar years, the amount excluded, if any, by the provisions of gift tax laws applicable to the years in which the gifts were made shall not, for purposes of subsection (a), be included in the total amount of the gifts made during such year.

(c) Valuation of certain gifts for preceding calendar years. If the time has expired within which a tax may be assessed under this chapter or under corresponding provisions of prior laws, on the transfer of property by gift made during a preceding calendar year, as defined in section 2502 (c), and if a tax under this chapter or under corresponding provisions of prior laws has been assessed or paid for such preceding calendar year, the value of such gift made in such preceding calendar year shall, for purposes of computing the tax under this chapter for the calendar year 1955 and subsequent calendar years, be the value of such gift which was used in computing the tax for the last preceding calendar year, for which a tax under this chapter or under corresponding provisions of prior laws was assessed or paid.

(d) Net gifts. For years before the calendar year 1955, the term "net gifts" as used in corresponding provisions of prior laws shall be read as "taxable gifts" for purposes of this chapter.

§ 25.2504–1 Taxable gifts for preceding years. (a) In order to determine the correct gift tax liability for the calendar year 1955 or any calendar year thereafter it is necessary to ascertain the correct amount, if any, of the aggregate sum of the taxable gifts for each of the preceding taxable years. (See § 25.2502–1 (a) (2).) The words "aggregate sum of the taxable gifts for each of the preceding years" means the correct aggregate of such gifts, not necessarily that returned for those years and in respect of which tax was paid. All transfers which constituted gifts in prior calendar years under the laws, including the provisions of law relating to exclusions from gifts, in effect at the time the transfers were made are included in determining the amount of taxable gifts for preceding years. The deductions other than for the specific exemption (see paragraph (b) of this section) allowed by the laws in effect at the time the transfers were made also are taken into account in determining the aggregate sum of the taxable gifts for preceding years. (The allowable exclusion from a gift was $5,000 for years before 1939, $4,000 for the calendar years 1939 through 1942, and $3,000 thereafter.)

(b) In determining the aggregate sum of the taxable gifts for preceding years, the total of the amounts allowed as deductions, for the specific exemption, under section 2521 and the corresponding provisions of prior laws, shall not exceed a total of $30,000. Thus, if the only preceding years during which the donor made gifts were 1940 and 1941 (at which time the specific exemption allowable was $40,000) and in his returns for those years the donor claimed deductions totaling $40,000 for the specific exemption and reported taxable gifts totaling $110,000, nevertheless, in determining the aggregate sum of the taxable gifts for preceding years, the deductions for the specific exemption cannot exceed a total of $30,000, and the aggregate sum of his taxable gifts for preceding years will be $120,000, instead of the $110,000 reported on his returns for preceding years. (The allowable deduction for the specific exemption was $50,000 for years before 1936, $40,000 for the calendar years 1936 through 1942, and $30,000 thereafter.)

(c) If, during any preceding calendar year, the donor and his spouse consented to have gifts made to third parties considered as made one-half by each spouse, pursuant to the provisions of section 2513 or section 1000 (f) of the Internal Revenue Code of 1939 (which corresponds to section 2513), these provisions shall be taken into account in determining the aggregate sum of the taxable gifts for that preceding calendar year.

(d) In the case of interpretations of the gift tax law in prior calendar years, which resulted in the erroneous inclusion of property for gift tax which should have been excluded, or the erroneous exclusion of property which should have been included, the necessary adjustments must be made in order to arrive at the correct aggregate of taxable gifts for preceding years. However, see section 1000 (e) and (g) of the 1939 Code relating to certain discretionary trusts and reciprocal trusts.

§ 25.2504–2 Valuation of certain gifts for preceding calendar years. Section 2504 (c) provides that if the only question in issue is the valuation of a transfer for gift tax purposes with respect to a gift or gifts made in a preceding calendar year, and if the statutory period within which an assessment may be made has expired and a tax was actually assessed or paid for such prior calendar year, then the value of the earlier gift or gifts for purposes of arriving at the correct amount of the taxable gifts for preceding years is the value which was used in computing the tax for the last preceding calendar year for which a tax was assessed or paid under chapter 12 of the Internal Revenue Code of 1954 or the corresponding provisions of prior laws. However, this rule will not prevent an adjustment where no tax was paid or assessed for the prior year and, in any case, will not prevent adjustment if issues other than valuation of property are involved.

TRANSFERS

§ 25.2511 Statutory provisions; transfers in general.

SEC. 2511. Transfers in general—(a) Scope. Subject to the limitations contained in this chapter, the tax imposed by section 2501 shall apply whether the transfer is in trust or otherwise, whether the gift is direct or indirect, and whether the property is real or personal, tangible or intangible; but in the case of a nonresident not a citizen of the United States, shall apply to a transfer only if the property is situated within the United States.

(b) Stock in corporation. Shares of stock owned and held by a nonresident not a citizen of the United States shall be deemed property within the United States only if issued by a domestic corporation.

§ 25.2511–1 Transfers in general. (a) The gift tax applies to a transfer by way of gift whether the transfer is in trust or otherwise, whether the gift is direct or indirect, and whether the property is real or personal, tangible or intangible. For example, a taxable transfer may be effected by the creation of a trust, the forgiving of a debt, the assignment of a judgment, the assignment of the benefits of an insurance policy, or the transfer of cash, certificates of deposit, or Federal, State or municipal bonds. Statutory provisions which exempt bonds, notes, bills and certificates of indebtedness of the Federal Government or its agencies and the interest thereon from taxation are not applicable to the gift tax, since the gift tax is an excise tax on the transfer, and is not a tax on the subject of the gift.

(b) In the case of a nonresident alien who was not engaged in business in the United States (see § 25.2501–2 (b)) during the calendar year, the tax is imposed only if the gift consisted of real estate or tangible personal property situated within the United States at the time of transfer. See §§ 25.2501–2 and 25.2511–3.

(c) The gift tax also applies to gifts indirectly made. Thus, all transactions whereby property or property rights or interests are gratuitously passed or conferred upon another, regardless of the means or device employed, constitute gifts subject to tax. See further § 25.2512–8. The renunciation of a vested property interest, such as the interest of an heir or next-of-kin, or devisee in whom title immediately vests upon a decedent's death under local law, constitutes a gift to those persons who receive the property interest by means of the renunciation. On the other hand the renunciation of a gift, bequest, or inheritance, if under local law title does not immediately vest, is not a gift if the renunciation is complete, and is made within a reasonable time after knowledge of the existence of the interest. The renunciation must be unequivocal and effective under local law. A renunciation is a complete and unqualified refusal to accept the property to which one is entitled. There can be no renunciation of property after its acceptance. A renunciation of only a portion of the property is not a complete and unqualified refusal to accept the property to which one is entitled. In the absence of acts to the contrary, the failure to renounce within a reasonable time after learning of the transfer to him will be presumed to constitute an acceptance of the property. If a joint income tax return is filed by a husband and wife for a taxable year, the payment by one spouse of all or part of the income tax liability for such year is not treated as resulting in a transfer which is subject to gift tax. The same rule is applicable to the payment of gift tax for a calendar year in the case of a husband and wife who have consented to have the gifts made considered as made half by each of them in accordance with the provisions of section 2513.

(d) If a donor transfers by gift less than his entire interest in property, the gift tax is applicable to the interest transferred. The tax is applicable, for example, to the transfer of an undivided half interest in property, or to the transfer of a life estate when the grantor retains the remainder interest, or vice versa. However, if the donor's retained interest is not susceptible of measurement on the basis of generally accepted valuation principles, the gift tax is applicable to the entire value of the property subject to the gift. Thus, if a donor, aged 65 years, transfers a life estate in property to A, aged 25 years, with remainder to A's issue, or in default of issue, with reversion to the donor, the gift tax will normally be applicable to the entire value of the property.

(e) If a donor is the owner of only a limited interest in property, and transfers his entire interest, the interest is in every case to be valued by the rules set forth in §§ 25.2512–1 through 25.2512–8. If the interest is a remainder or reversion or other future interest, it is to be valued on the basis of actuarial principles set forth in § 25.2512–5, or if it is not susceptible of valuation in that manner, in accordance with the principles set forth in § 25.2512–1.

(f) (1) Donative intent on the part of the transferor is not an essential element in the application of the gift tax to the transfer. The application of the tax is based on the objective facts of the transfer and the circumstances under which it is made, rather than on the subjective motives of the donor. However, there are certain types of transfers to which the tax is not applicable. It is applicable to a transfer of a beneficial interest in property. It is not applicable to a transfer of bare legal title to a trustee. A transfer by a trustee of trust property in which he has no beneficial interest does not constitute a gift by the trustee (but such a transfer may constitute a gift by the creator of the trust, if until the transfer he had the power to change the beneficiaries by amending or revoking the trust). The gift tax is not applicable to a transfer for a full and adequate consideration in money or money's worth, or to ordinary business transactions, described in § 25.2512–8. Further, current expenditures by an individual on behalf of his spouse or minor child in satisfaction of his legal obligation to provide for their support are not taxable gifts. The extent of the donor's legal obligation to support his spouse or minor child must be ascertained from the facts and circumstances of the individual case. See section 2516 and the regulations thereunder with respect to property settlements incident to a divorce.

(2) A transfer of property by a trustee is not a taxable transfer if it is made pursuant to a fiduciary power the exercise or nonexercise of which is limited by a reasonably fixed or readily ascertainable standard which is set forth in the trust instrument, even though the trustee has a beneficial interest in the trust property. A clearly measurable standard under which the holder of a power is legally accountable is such a standard for this purpose. For instance, a power to distribute corpus for the education, support, maintenance, or health of the beneficiary; for his reasonable support and comfort; to enable him to maintain his accustomed standard of living; or to meet an emergency, would be such a standard. However, a power to distribute corpus for the pleasure, desire, or happiness of a beneficiary is not such a standard. The entire context of a provision of a trust instrument granting a power must be considered in determining whether the power is limited by a reasonably definite standard. For example, if a trust instrument provides that the determination of the trustee shall be conclusive with respect to the exercise or nonexercise of a power, the power is not limited by a reasonably definite standard. However, the fact that the governing instrument is phrased in discretionary terms is not in itself an indication that no such a standard exists.

(g) In the following examples of transactions resulting in taxable gifts it will be understood that the transfers were not made for an adequate and full consideration in money or money's worth:

(1) A transfer of property by a corporation to B is a gift to B from the stockholders of the corporation. If B himself is a stockholder, the transfer is a gift to him from the other stockholders to the extent it is not a distribution from earnings or in liquidation to which B is entitled as a stockholder. A transfer of property by B to a corporation represents gifts by B to the other individual shareholders of the corporation to the extent of their proportionate interests. However, a transfer made by an individual to a charitable, public, political or similar organization may constitute a gift to the organization as a single entity, depending upon the facts and circumstances in the particular case.

(2) The transfer of property to B if there is imposed upon B the obligation of paying a commensurate annuity to C is a gift to C.

(3) The payment of money or the transfer of property to B in consideration of B's promise to render a service to C is a gift to C, or to both B and C, depending on whether the service to be rendered to C is or is not an adequate and full consideration in money or money's worth for that which is received by B. See section 2512 (b) and the regulations thereunder.

(4) If A creates a joint bank account for himself and B (or a similar type of ownership by which A can regain the entire fund without B's consent), there is a gift to B when B draws upon the account for his own benefit, to the extent of the amount drawn. Similarly, if A purchases a United States savings bond registered as payable to "A or B," there is a gift to B when B surrenders the bond for cash without any obligation to account for a part of the proceeds to A.

(5) If A with his own funds purchases property and has the title conveyed to himself and B as joint owners, with rights of survivorship (other than a joint ownership described in example (4)) but which rights may be defeated by either party severing his interest, there is a gift to B in the amount of half the value of the property. However, see § 25.2515–1 relative to the creation of a joint tenancy (or tenancy by the entirety) between husband and wife in real property with rights of survivorship which, unless the donor elects otherwise is not considered as a transfer includible for Federal gift tax purposes at the time of the creation of the joint tenancy. See § 25.2515–2 with respect to determining the extent to which the creation of a tenancy by the entirety constitutes a taxable gift if the donor elects to have the creation of the tenancy so treated. See also § 25.2523 (d)–1 with respect to the marital deduction allowed in the case of the creation of a joint tenancy or a tenancy by the entirety.

(6) If A is possessed of a vested remainder interest in property, subject to being divested only in the event he should fail to survive one or more individuals or the happening of some other event, an irrevocable assignment of all or any part of his interest would result in a transfer includible for Federal gift tax purposes. See § 25.2512–5 (d) for the valuation of an interest of this type.

(7) If A, without retaining a power to revoke the trust or to change the beneficial interests, transfers property in trust whereby B is to receive the income for life and at his death the trust is to terminate and the corpus is to be returned to A, provided A survives, but if A predeceases B the corpus is to pass to C, A has made a gift equal to the total value of the property less the value of his retained interest. See § 25.2512–5 (e) for the valuation of the donor's retained interest.

(8) If the insured purchases a life insurance policy, or pays a premium on a previously issued policy, the proceeds of which are payable to a beneficiary or beneficiaries other than his estate, and with respect to which the insured retains no reversionary interest in himself or his estate and no power to revest the economic benefits in himself or his estate or to change the beneficiaries or their proportionate benefits (or if the insured relinquishes by assignment, by designation of a new beneficiary or otherwise, every such power that was retained in a previously issued policy), the insured has made a gift of the value of the policy, or to the extent of the premium paid, even though the right of the assignee or beneficiary to receive the benefits is conditioned upon his surviving the insured. For the valuation of life insurance policies see § 25.2512–6.

(9) Where property held by a husband and wife as community property is used to purchase insurance upon the husband's life and a third person is revocably designated as beneficiary and under the State law the husband's death is considered to make absolute the transfer by the wife, there is a gift by the wife at the time of the husband's death of half the amount of the proceeds of such insurance.

(10) If under a pension plan (pursuant to which he has an unqualified right to an annuity) an employee has an option to take either a retirement annuity for himself alone or a smaller annuity for himself with a survivorship annuity payable to his wife, an irrevocable election by the employee to take the reduced annuity in order that an annuity may be paid, after the employee's death, to his wife results in a taxable gift.

§ 25.2511–2 Cessation of donor's dominion and control. (a) The gift tax is not imposed upon the receipt of the property by the donee, nor is it necessarily determined by the measure of enrichment resulting to the donee from the transfer, nor is it conditioned upon ability to identify the donee at the time of the transfer. On the contrary, the tax is a primary and personal liability of the donor, is an excise upon his act of making the transfer, is measured by the value of the property passing from the donor, and attaches regardless of the fact that the identity of the donee may not then be known or ascertainable.

(b) As to any property, or part thereof or interest therein, of which the donor has so parted with dominion and control as to leave in him no power to change its disposition, whether for his own benefit or for the benefit of another, the gift is complete. But if upon a transfer of property (whether in trust or otherwise) the donor reserves any power over its disposition, the gift may be wholly incomplete, or may be partially complete and partially incomplete, depending upon all the facts in the particular case. Accordingly, in every case of a transfer of property subject to a reserved power, the terms of the power must be examined and its scope determined. For example, if a donor transfers property to another in trust to pay the income to the donor or accumulate it in the discretion of the trustee, and the donor retains a testamentary power to appoint the remainder among his descendants, no portion of the transfer is a completed gift. On the other hand, if the donor had not retained the testamentary power of appointment, but instead provided that the remainder should go to X or his heirs, the entire transfer would be a completed gift. However, if the exercise of the trustee's power in favor of the grantor is limited by a fixed or readily ascertainable standard, enforceable by or on behalf of the grantor, then the gift is incomplete to the extent of the ascertainable value of any rights thus retained by the grantor.

(c) A gift is incomplete in every instance in which a donor reserves the power to revest the beneficial title to the property in himself. A gift is also incomplete if and to the extent that a reserved power gives the donor the power to name new beneficiaries or to change the interests of the beneficiaries as between themselves unless the power is a fiduciary power limited by a fixed or readily ascertainable standard. Thus, if an estate for life is transferred but, by an exercise of a power, the estate may be terminated or cut down by the donor to one of less value, and without restriction upon the extent to which the estate may be so cut down, the transfer constitutes an incomplete gift. If in this example the power was confined to the right to cut down the estate for life to one for a term of five years, the certainty of an estate for not less than that term results in a gift to that extent complete.

(d) A gift is not considered incomplete, however, merely because the donor reserves the power to change the manner or time of enjoyment. Thus, the creation of a trust the income of which is to be paid annually to the donee for a period of years, the corpus being distributable to him at the end of the period, and the power reserved by the donor being limited to a right to require that, instead of the income being so payable, it should be accumulated and distributed with the corpus to the donee at the termination of the period, constitutes a completed gift.

(e) A donor is considered as himself having a power if it is exercisable by him in conjunction with any person not having a substantial adverse interest in the disposition of the transferred property or the income therefrom. A trustee, as such, is not a person having an adverse interest in the disposition of the trust property or its income. Nor is a person considered as having an adverse interest in the property or income solely by reason of his standing as a spouse or relative of the donor.

(f) The relinquishment or termination of a power to change the beneficiaries of transferred property, occurring otherwise than by the death of the donor (the statute being confined to transfers by living donors), is regarded as the event which completes the gift and causes the tax to apply. For example, if A transfers property in trust for the benefit of B and C but reserves the power as trustee to change the proportionate interests of B and C, and if A thereafter has another person appointed trustee in place of himself, such later relinquishment of the power by A to the new trustee completes the gift of the transferred property, whether or not the new trustee has a substantial adverse interest. The receipt of income or of other enjoyment of the transferred property by the transferee or by the beneficiary (other than by the donor himself) during the interim between the making of the initial transfer and the relinquishment or termination of the power operates to free such income or other enjoyment from the power, and constitutes a gift of such income or of such other enjoyment taxable as of the calendar year of its receipt. If property is transferred in trust to pay the income to A for life with remainder to B, powers to distribute corpus to A, and to withhold income from A for future distribution to B, are powers to change the beneficiaries of the transferred property.

(g) If a donor transfers property to himself as trustee (or to himself and some other person, not possessing a substantial adverse interest, as trustees), and retains no beneficial interest in the trust property and no power over it except fiduciary powers, the exercise or nonexercise of which is limited by a fixed or readily ascertainable standard, to change the beneficiaries of the transferred property, the donor has made a completed gift and the entire value of the transferred property is subject to the gift tax.

(h) If a donor delivers a properly indorsed stock certificate to the donee or his agent, the gift is completed for gift tax purposes on the date of delivery. If the donor delivers the certificate to his bank or broker as his agent, or to the issuing corporation or its transfer agent, for transfer into the name of the donee, the gift is completed on the date the stock is transferred on the books of the corporation.

(i) [Reserved.]

(j) If the donor contends that the power is of such nature as to render the gift incomplete, and hence not subject to the tax as of the calendar year of the initial transfer, the transaction shall be disclosed in the return and evidence showing all relevant facts, including a copy of the instrument of transfer, should be submitted.

§ 25.2511–3 Transfers by nonresidents not citizens—(a) In general. Sections 2511 and 2501 contain provisions relating to the taxation of transfers by nonresident alien donors. (See § 25.2501–2 for definition of the term "resident.") As combined these rules are—

(1) If the nonresident alien donor was not engaged in business in the United States during the calendar year in which the gift was made, the tax applies only to the transfer of real property and tangible personal property situated in the United States.

(2) If the nonresident alien donor was engaged in business in the United States during the calendar year in which the gift was made, the tax applies to the transfer of all property (whether real or personal, tangible or intangible) situated in the United States.

(b) Situs of property. (1) Real property, tangible personal property, and, except as otherwise provided in subparagraph (2) of this paragraph, the written evidence of intangible personal property which is treated as being the property itself are within the United States if physically situated therein. For example, a bond for the payment of money is not within the United States unless physically situated therein. Intangible personal property the written evidence of which is not treated as being the property itself constitutes property within the United States if consisting of a property right issuing from or enforceable against a resident of the United States or a domestic corporation (public or private) irrespective of where such written evidence is physically located.

(2) Shares of stock owned and held by a nonresident alien donor constitute property within the United States if issued by a domestic corporation, irrespective of where the certificates are physically located. However, since a share of stock is intangible property, the transfer by a nonresident alien donor of a share of stock issued by a domestic corporation would, under the provisions of paragraph (a) of this section, be subject to the tax only if the donor was engaged in business in the United States during the calendar year in which the gift was made.

(3) Shares of stock owned and held by a nonresident alien donor do not constitute property within the United States if issued by a corporation which is not a domestic corporation, irrespective of where the certificates are physically located. Therefore, the tax will not under any circumstances apply to the transfer of a share of such stock by a nonresident alien donor.

§ 25.2512 Statutory provisions; valuation of gifts.

SEC. 2512. Valuation of gifts. (a) If the gift is made in property, the value thereof at the date of the gift shall be considered the amount of the gift.

(b) Where property is transferred for less than an adequate and full consideration in money or money's worth, then the amount by which the value of the property exceeded the value of the consideration shall be deemed a gift, and shall be included in computing the amount of gifts made during the calendar year.

§ 25.2512–1 Valuation of property; in general. Section 2512 provides that if a gift is made in property, its value at the date of the gift shall be considered the amount of the gift. The value of the property is the price at which such property would change hands between a willing buyer and a willing seller, neither being under any compulsion to buy or to sell, and both having reasonable knowledge of relevant facts. The value of a particular kind of property is not the price that a forced sale of the property would produce. The value is generally to be determined by ascertaining as a basis the fair market value at the time of the gift of each unit of the property. For example, in the case of shares of stock or bonds, such unit of property is generally a share or a bond. Property shall not be returned at the value at which it is assessed for local tax purposes unless that value represents the fair market value thereof on the date of the gift. All relevant facts and elements of value as of the time of the gift should be considered. Any property not specifically referred to in §§ 25.2512–2 to 25.2512–6, inclusive, should be valued in accordance with the general rules set forth in this paragraph.

§ 25.2512–2 Stocks and bonds—(a) In general. The value of stocks and bonds is the fair market value per share or bond on the date of the gift.

(b) Based on selling prices. If there is a market for stocks or bonds, on a stock exchange, in an over-the-counter market, or otherwise, the mean between the highest and lowest quoted selling prices on the date of the gift is the fair market value per share or bond. If there were no sales on the date of the gift, but there were sales on dates within a reasonable period both before and after the date of the gift, the fair market value is determined by taking a weighted average of the means between the highest and lowest sales on the nearest date before and the nearest date after the date of the gift. The average is to be weighted inversely by the respective numbers of trading days between the selling dates and the valuation dates. For example, assume that sales of stock nearest the date of the gift (Friday, June 15) occurred two trading days before (Wednesday, June 13) and three trading days after (Wednesday, June 20) and that on these days the mean sale prices per share were $10 and $15, respectively. The price of $12 is taken as representing the fair market value of a share of the stock as of the date of the gift $\left(\frac{(3\times10)+(2\times15)}{5}\right)$. If, instead, the mean sale prices per share on June 13 and June 20 were $15 and $10, respectively, the price of $13 is taken as representing the fair market value $\left(\frac{(3\times15)+(2\times10)}{5}\right)$. If stocks or bonds are listed on more than one exchange, the records of the exchange where the stocks or bonds are principally dealt in should be employed. In valuing listed securities, the donor should be careful to consult accurate records to obtain values as of the date of the gift. If quotations of unlisted securities are obtained from brokers, or evidence as to their sale is obtained from officers of the issuing companies, the donor should preserve in his files the letters furnishing such quotations or other evidence of sale for inspection when the return is verified by an investigating officer.

(c) Based on bid and asked prices. If the provisions of paragraph (b) of this section are inapplicable because actual sales are not available during a reasonable period beginning before and ending after the date of the gift, the fair market value may be determined by taking the mean between the bona fide bid and asked prices on the date of the gift, or if none, by taking a weighted average between the bona fide bid and asked prices on the nearest trading date before and the nearest trading date after the date of the gift, if both such nearest dates are within a reasonable period. The average is to be determined in the manner described in paragraph (b) of this section.

(d) Where selling prices and bid and asked prices are not available for dates both before and after date of gift. If the provisions of paragraphs (b) and (c) of this section are inapplicable because no actual sale prices or quoted bona fide bid and asked prices are available on a date within a reasonable period before the date of the gift, but such prices are available on a date within a reasonable period after the date of the gift, or vice versa, then the mean between the highest and lowest available sale prices or bid and asked prices may be taken as the value.

(e) Where selling prices or bid and asked prices do not represent fair market value. In cases in which it is established that the value per bond or share of any security determined on the basis of the selling or bid and asked prices as provided under paragraphs (b), (c), and (d) of this section does not represent the fair market value thereof, then some reasonable modification of the value determined on that basis or other relevant facts and elements of value shall be considered in determining fair market value. Where sales at or near the date of the gift are few or of a sporadic nature, such sales alone may not indicate fair market value. In certain exceptional cases, the size of the block of securities made the subject of each separate gift in relation to the number of shares changing hands in sales may be relevant in determining whether selling prices reflect the fair market value of the block of stock to be valued. If the donor can show that the block of stock to be valued, with reference to each separate gift, is so large in relation to the actual sales on the existing market that it could not be liquidated in a reasonable time without depressing the market, the price at which the block could be sold as such outside the usual market, as through an underwriter, may be a more accurate indication of value than market quotations. Complete data in support of any allowance claimed due to the size of the block of stock being valued should be submitted with the return. On the other hand, if the block of stock to be valued represents a controlling interest, either actual or effective, in a going business, the price at which other lots change hands may have little relation to its true value.

(f) Where selling prices or bid and asked prices are unavailable. If the provisions of paragraphs (b), (c), and (d) of this section are inapplicable because actual sale prices and bona fide bid and asked prices are lacking, then the fair market value is to be determined by taking the following factors into consideration:

(1) In the case of corporate or other bonds, the soundness of the security, the interest yield, the date of maturity, and other relevant factors; and

(2) In the case of shares of stock, the company's net worth, prospective earning power and dividend-paying capacity, and other relevant factors.

Some of the "other relevant factors" referred to in subparagraphs (1) and (2) of this paragraph are: the value of the business; the economic outlook in the particular industry; the company's position in the industry and its management; and the values of securities of corporations engaged in the same or similar lines of business which are listed on a stock exchange. However, the weight to be accorded such comparisons or any other evidentiary factors considered in the determination of a value depends upon the facts of each case. Complete financial and other data upon which the valuation is based should be submitted with the return, including copies of reports in any case in which examinations of the company have been made by accountants, engineers, or any technical experts as of or near the date of the gift.

§ 25.2512–3 Valuation of interest in business. (a) Care should be taken to arrive at an accurate valuation of any interest in a business which the donor transfers without an adequate and full consideration in money or money's worth. The fair market value of any interest in a business, whether a partnership or a proprietorship, is a net value equal to the amount which a willing purchaser, whether an individual or a corporation, would pay for the interest to a willing seller, neither being under any compulsion to buy or to sell. The net value shall be determined on the basis of all relevant factors including—

(1) A fair appraisal as of the date of the gift of all the assets of the business, tangible and intangible, including good will;

(2) The demonstrated earning capacity of the business; and

(3) The other factors set forth in § 25.2512–2 (f) relating to the valuation of corporate stock, to the extent applicable.

Special attention should be given to determining an adequate value of the good will of the business. Complete financial and other data upon which the valuation is based should be submitted with the return, including copies of reports in any case in which examinations of the business have been made by accountants, engineers, or any technical experts as of or near the date of the gift.

§ 25.2512–4 Valuation of notes. The fair market value of notes, secured or unsecured, is presumed to be the amount of unpaid principal, plus accrued interest to the date of the gift, unless the donor establishes a lower value. Unless returned at face value, plus accrued interest, it must be shown by satisfactory evidence that the note is worth less than the unpaid amount (because of the interest rate, or date of maturity, or other cause), or that the note is uncollectible in part (by reason of the insolvency of the party or parties liable, or for other cause), and that the property, if any, pledged or mortgaged as security is insufficient to satisfy it.

§ 25.2512–5 Valuation of annuities, life estates, terms for years, remainders and reversions—(a) In general. (1) The fair market value of annuities, life estates, terms for years, remainders and reversions is their present value, determined under this section, except in the case of annuities and life insurance under contracts issued by companies regularly engaged in their sale. The valuation of such commercial annuity contracts and insurance policies is determined under § 25.2512–6. Where the donor transfers property in trust or otherwise and retains an interest therein, the value of the gift is the value of the property transferred less the value of the donor's retained interest. If the donor assigns or relinquishes an annuity, life estate, remainder or reversion which he holds by virtue of a transfer previously made by himself or another, the value of the gift is the value of the interest transferred.

(2) The present value of an annuity, life estate, remainder or reversion determined under this section which is dependent on the continuation or termination of the life of one person is computed by the use of Table I in paragraph (f) of this section. The present value of an annuity, term for years, remainder or reversion dependent on a term certain is computed by the use of Table II in paragraph (f). If the interest to be valued is dependent upon more than one life or there is a term certain concurrent with one or more lives, see paragraph (e) of this section. For purposes of the computations described in this section, the age of a person is to be taken as the age of that person at his nearest birthday.

(b) Annuities—(1) Payable annually at end of year. If an annuity is payable annually at the end of each year during the life of an individual (as for example if the first payment is due one year after the date of the gift), the amount payable annually is multiplied by the figure in column 2 of Table I opposite the number of years in column 1 nearest the age of the individual whose life measures the duration of the annuity. If the annuity is payable annually at the end of each year for a definite number of years, the amount payable annually is multiplied by the figure in column 2 of Table II opposite the number of years in column 1 representing the duration of the annuity. The application of this subparagraph may be illustrated by the following examples:

Example (1). The donor assigns an annuity of $10,000 a year payable annually during his life immediately after an annual payment has been made. The age of the donor on the date of assignment is 40 years and 8 months. By reference to Table I, it is found that the figure in column 2 opposite 41 years is 17.6853. The value of the gift is, therefore, $176,853 ($10,000 multiplied by 17.6853).

Example (2). The donor was entitled to receive an annuity of $10,000 a year payable annually at the end of annual periods throughout a term of 20 years; the donor, when 15 years have elapsed, makes a gift thereof to his son. By reference to Table II, it is found that the figure in column 2 opposite 5 years, the unexpired portion of the 20-year period is 4.5151. The present value of the annuity is, therefore, $45,151 ($10,000 multiplied by 4.5151).

(2) Payable at the end of semiannual, quarterly, monthly, or weekly periods. If an annuity is payable at the end of semiannual, quarterly, monthly, or weekly periods during the life of an individual (as for example if the first payment is due one month after the date of the gift), the aggregate amount to be paid within a year is first multiplied by the figure in column 2 of Table I opposite the number of years in column 1 nearest the age of the individual whose life measures the duration of the annuity. The product so obtained is then multiplied by whichever of the following factors is appropriate:

1.0087 for semiannual payments,
1.0130 for quarterly payments,
1.0159 for monthly payments, and
1.0171 for weekly payments.

If the annuity is payable at the end of semiannual, quarterly, monthly, or weekly periods for a definite number of years the aggregate amount to be paid within a year is first multiplied by the figure in column 2 of Table II opposite the number of years in column 1 representing the duration of the annuity. The product so obtained is then multiplied by whichever of the above factors is appropriate. The application of this paragraph may be illustrated by the following example:

Example. The facts are the same as those contained in example (1) set forth in subparagraph (1) above, except that the annuity is payable semiannually. The aggregate annual amount, $10,000, is multiplied by the factor 17.6853, and the product multiplied by 1.0087. The value of the gift is, therefore, $178,391.62 ($10,000 × 17.6853 × 1.0087).

(3) Payable at the beginning of annual, semiannual, quarterly, monthly, or weekly periods. (i) If the first payment of an annuity for the life of an individual is due at the beginning of the annual or other payment period rather than at the end (as for example if the first payment is to be made immediately after the date of the gift), the value of the annuity is the sum of (a) the first payment plus (b) the present value of a similar annuity, the first payment of which is not to be made until the end of the payment period, determined as provided in subparagraph (1) or (2) of this paragraph. The application of this subdivision may be illustrated by the following example:

Example. The donee is made the beneficiary for life of an annuity of $50 a month from the income of a trust, subject to the right reserved by the donor to cause the annuity to be paid for his own benefit or for the benefit of another. On the day a payment is due, the donor relinquishes his reserved power. The donee is then 50 years of age. The value of the gift is $50 plus the product of $50 × 12 × 14.8486 (see Table I) × 1.0159, or $9,100.82.

(ii) If the first payment of an annuity for a definite number of years is due at the beginning of the annual or other payment period, the applicable factor is the product of the factor shown in Table II multiplied by whichever of the following factors is appropriate:

1.0350 for annual payments,
1.0262 for semiannual payments,
1.0218 for quarterly payments,
1.0189 for monthly payments, and
1.0177 for weekly payments.

The application of this subdivision may be illustrated by the following example:

Example. The donee is the beneficiary of an annuity of $50 a month, subject to a reserved right in the donor to cause the annuity or the cash value thereof to be paid for his own benefit or the benefit of another. On the day a payment is due, the donor relinquishes the power. There are 300 payments to be made covering a period of 25 years, including the payment due. The value of the gift is the product of $50 × 12 × 16.4815 (factor for 25 years, Table II) × 1.0189, or $10,075.80.

(c) Life estates and terms for years. If the interest to be valued is the right of a person for his life, or for the life of another person, to receive the income of certain property or to use nonincome-producing property, the value of the interest is the value of the property multiplied by the figure in column 3 of Table I opposite the number of years nearest to the actual age of the measuring life. If the interest to be valued is the right to receive income of property or to use nonincome-producing property for a term of years, column 3 of Table II is used. The application of this paragraph may be illustrated by the following example:

Example. The donor, who during his life is entitled to receive the income from property worth $50,000, makes a gift of such interest. The donor is 31 years old on the date of the gift. The value of the gift is $35,534 ($50,000 × 0.71068).

(d) Remainders or reversionary interests. If the interest to be valued is a remainder or reversionary interest subject to a life estate, the value of the interest should be obtained by multiplying the value of the property at the date of the gift by the figure in column 4 of Table I opposite the number of years nearest the age of the life tenant. If the remainder or reversion is to take effect at the end of a term of years, Table II should be used. The application of this paragraph may be illustrated by the following example:

Example. The donor transfers by gift property worth $50,000 which he is entitled to receive upon the death of his brother, to whom the income for life has been bequeathed. The brother at the date of the gift is 31 years of age. By reference to Table I, it is found that the figure in column 4 opposite age 31 is 0.28932. The value of the gift is, therefore, $14,466 ($50,000 × 0.28932).

(e) Actuarial computations by the Internal Revenue Service. If the interest to be valued is dependent upon the continuation, or termination of more than one life, or there is a term certain concurrent with one or more lives, or if the retained interest of the donor is conditioned upon survivorship, a special factor is necessary. The factor is to be computed upon the basis of the Makehamized mortality table appearing as Table 38 of United States Life Table and Actuarial Tables 1939–41, published by the United States Department of Commerce, Bureau of the Census, and interest at the rate of 3½ percent a year, compounded annually. Many such factors may be found in, or readily computed with the use of the tables contained in, a pamphlet entitled "Actuarial Values for Estate and Gift Tax." This pamphlet may be purchased from the Superintendent of Documents, United States Government Printing Office, Washington 25, D. C. However, if a special factor is required in the case of an actual gift, the Commissioner will furnish the factor upon request. The request must be accompanied by a statement of the date of birth of each person, the duration of whose life may affect the value of the interest, and by copies of the relevant instruments.

(b) The following examples, so far as relating to life insurance contracts, are of gifts of such contracts on which there are no accrued dividends or outstanding indebtedness.

Example (1). A donor purchases from a life insurance company for the benefit of another a life insurance contract or a contract for the payment of an annuity. The value of the gift is the cost of the contract.

Example (2). An annuitant purchased from a life insurance company a single payment annuity contract by the terms of which he was entitled to receive payments of $1,200 annually for the duration of his life. Five years subsequent to such purchase, and when of the age of 50 years, he gratuitously assigns the contract. The value of the gift is the amount which the company would charge for an annuity contract providing for the payment of $1,200 annually for the life of a person 50 years of age.

Example (3). A donor owning a life insurance policy on which no further payments are to be made to the company (e. g., a single premium policy or paid-up policy) makes a gift of the contract. The value of the gift is the amount which the company would charge for a single premium contract of the same specified amount on the life of a person of the age of the insured.

Example (4). A gift is made four months after the last premium due date of an ordinary life insurance policy issued nine years and four months prior to the gift thereof by the insured, who was 35 years of age at date of issue. The gross annual premium is $2,811. The computation follows:

Terminal reserve at end of tenth year	$14,601.00
Terminal reserve at end of ninth year	12,965.00
Increase	1,636.00
One-third of such increase (the gift having been made four months following the last preceding premium due date)	545.33
Terminal reserve at end of ninth year	12,965.00
Interpolated terminal reserve at date of gift	13,510.33
Two-thirds of gross premium ($2,811)	1,874.00
Value of the gift	15,384.33

§ 25.2512–7 Effect of excise tax. If jewelry, furs or other property, the purchase of which is subject to an excise tax, is purchased at retail by a taxpayer and made the subject of gifts within a reasonable time after purchase, the purchase price, including the excise tax, is considered to be the fair market value of the property on the date of the gift, in the absence of evidence that the market price of similar articles has increased or decreased in the meantime. Under other circumstances, the excise tax is taken into account in determining the fair market value of the property to the extent, and only to the extent, that it affects the price at which the property would change hands between a willing buyer and a willing seller, as provided in § 25.2512–1.

§ 25.2512–8 Transfers for insufficient consideration. Transfers reached by the gift tax are not confined to those only which, being without a valuable consideration, accord with the common law concept of gifts, but embrace as well sales, exchanges, and other dispositions of property for a consideration to the extent that the value of the property transferred by the donor exceeds the value in money or money's worth of the consideration given therefor. However, a sale, exchange, or other transfer of property made in the ordinary course of business (a transaction which is bona fide, at arm's length, and free from any donative intent), will be considered as made for an adequate and full consideration in money or money's worth. A consideration not reducible to a value in money or money's worth, as love and affection, promise of marriage, etc., is to be wholly disregarded, and the entire value of the property transferred constitutes the amount of the gift. See, however, section 2515 and the regulations thereunder with respect to tenancies by the entirety and joint tenancies in real estate between husband and wife. A relinquishment of dower or curtesy or of any other marital rights is not consideration in money or money's worth, and the transfer of property in return for such a relinquishment constitutes a gift of the entire value of the property transferred. See, however, section 2516 and the regulations thereunder with respect to transfers incident to a divorce. A transfer of property which, or the income from which, is to be used in the future to discharge a donor's obligation to support a dependent is not a

§ 25.2512–6 Valuation of certain life insurance and annuity contracts. (a) The value of a life insurance contract or of a contract for the payment of an annuity issued by a company regularly engaged in the selling of contracts of that character is established through the sale of the particular contract by the company, or through the sale by the company of comparable contracts. As valuation through sale of comparable contracts is not readily ascertainable when the gift is of a contract which has been in force for some time and on which further premium payments are to be made, the value may be approximated by adding to the interpolated terminal reserve at the date of the gift the proportionate part of this gross premium last paid before the date of the gift which covers the period extending beyond that date. If, however, because of the unusual nature of the contract such approximation is not reasonably close to the full value, this method may not be used.

SEC. 2513. Gift by husband or wife to third party—(a) Considered as made one-half by each—(1) In general. A gift made by one spouse to any person other than his spouse shall, for the purposes of this chapter, be considered as made one-half by him and one-half by his spouse, but only if at the time of the gift each spouse is a citizen or resident of the United States. This paragraph shall not apply with respect to a gift by a spouse of an interest in property if he creates in his spouse a general power of appointment, as defined in section 2514 (c), over such interest. For purposes of this section, an individual shall be considered as the spouse of another individual only if he is married to such individual at the time of the gift and does not remarry during the remainder of the calendar year.

(2) Consent of both spouses. Paragraph (1) shall apply only if both spouses have signified (under the regulations provided for in subsection (b)) their consent to the application of paragraph (1) in the case of all such gifts made during the calendar year by either while married to the other.

(b) Manner and time of signifying consent—(1) Manner. A consent under this section shall be signified in such manner as is provided under regulations prescribed by the Secretary or his delegate.

(2) Time. Such consent may be so signified at any time after the close of the calendar year in which the gift was made, subject to the following limitations—

(A) The consent may not be signified after the 15th day of April following the close of such year, unless before such 15th day no return has been filed for such year by either spouse, in which case the consent may not be signified after a return for such year is filed by either spouse;

(B) The consent may not be signified after a notice of deficiency with respect to the tax for such year has been sent to either spouse in accordance with section 6212 (a).

(c) Revocation of consent. Revocation of a consent previously signified shall be made in such manner as is provided under regulations prescribed by the Secretary or his delegate, but the right to revoke a consent previously signified with respect to a calendar year—

(1) Shall not exist after the 15th day of April following the close of such year if the consent was signified on or before such 15th day; and

(2) Shall not exist if the consent was not signified until after such 15th day.

(d) Joint and several liability for tax. If the consent required by subsection (a) (2) is signified with respect to a gift made in any calendar year, the liability with respect to the entire tax imposed by this chapter of each spouse for such year shall be joint and several.

§ 25.2513–1 Gifts by husband or wife to third party considered as made one-half by each. (a) A gift made by one spouse to a person other than his (or her) spouse may, for the purpose of the gift tax, be considered as made one-half by him and one-half by his spouse, but only if at the time of the gift each spouse was a citizen or resident of the United States. For purposes of this section, an individual is to be considered as the spouse of another individual only if he was married to such individual at the time of the gift and does not remarry during the remainder of the calendar year.

(b) The provisions of this section will apply only if both spouses signify their consent to treat all gifts made to third parties during the calendar year by both spouses while married to each other as having been made one-half by each spouse. As to the manner and time for signifying consent, see § 25.2513–2. Such consent, if signified with respect to any calendar year, is effective with respect to all gifts made to third parties during such year except as follows:

(1) If the consenting spouses were not married to each other during a portion of the calendar year the consent is not effective with respect to any gifts made during such portion of the calendar year. Where the consent is signified by an executor or administrator of a deceased spouse, the consent is not effective with respect to gifts made by the surviving spouse during the portion of the calendar year that his (or her) spouse was deceased.

(2) If either spouse was a nonresident not a citizen of the United States during any portion of the calendar year, the consent is not effective with respect to any gift made during that portion of the calendar year.

(3) The consent is not effective with respect to a gift by one spouse of a property interest over which he created in his spouse a general power of appointment (as defined in section 2514).

(4) If one spouse transferred property in part to his spouse and in part to third parties, the consent is effective with respect to the interest transferred to third parties only insofar as such interest is ascertainable at the time of the gift and hence severable from the interest transferred to his spouse. See § 25.2512–5 for the principles to be applied in the valuation of annuities, life estates, terms for years, remainders and reversions.

(5) The consent applies alike to gifts made by one spouse alone and to gifts made partly by each spouse, provided such gifts were to third parties and do not fall within any of the exceptions set forth in subparagraphs (1) through (4) of this paragraph. The consent may not be applied only to a portion of the property interest constituting such gifts. For example, a wife may not treat gifts made by her spouse from his separate property to third parties as having been made one-half by her if her spouse does not consent to treat gifts made by her to third parties during the same calendar year as having been made one-half by him. If the consent is effectively signified on either the husband's return or the wife's return, all gifts made by the spouses to third parties (except as described in subparagraphs (1) through (4)), during the calendar year will be treated as having been made one-half by each spouse.

(c) If a husband and wife consent to have the gifts made to third party donees considered as made one-half by each spouse, and only one spouse makes gifts during the year, the other spouse is not required to file a gift tax return provided: (1) The total value of the gifts made to each third party donee is not in excess of $6,000, and (2) no portion of the property transferred constitutes a gift of a future interest. If a transfer made by either spouse during the year to a third party represents a gift of a future interest in property and the spouses consent to have the gifts made considered as made one-half by each, a gift tax return for such year must be filed by each spouse regardless of the value of the transfer. (See § 25.2503–3 for the definition of a future interest.)

(d) The following examples illustrate the application of this section relative to the requirements for the filing of a return, assuming that a consent was effectively signified:

(1) A husband made gifts valued at $7,000 during the year to a third party and his wife made no gifts. Each spouse is required to file a return.

(2) A husband made gifts valued at $5,000 to each of two third parties during the year and his wife made no gifts. Only the husband is required to file a return.

(3) A husband made gifts valued at $5,000 to a third party, and the wife made gifts valued at $2,000 to the same third party during the year. Each spouse is required to file a return.

(4) A husband made gifts valued at $5,000 to a third party and his wife made gifts valued at $3,000 to another third party during the year. Only the husband is required to file a return.

(5) A husband made gifts valued at $2,000 during the year to third parties which represented gifts of future interests in property (see § 25.2503–3), and his wife made no gifts during such calendar year. Each spouse is required to file a return.

§ 25.2513–2 Manner and time of signifying consent. (a) Consent to the application of the provisions of section 2513 with respect to a calendar year shall, in order to be effective, be signified by both spouses. If both spouses file gift tax returns within the time for signifying consent it is sufficient if the consent of both spouses is signified on one of the returns, or if the consent of the husband is signified on the wife's return, and the consent of the wife is signified on the husband's return. If only one spouse files a gift tax return within the time provided for signifying consent, the consent of both spouses shall be signified on that return. However, wherever possible, the notice of the consent is to be shown on both returns. The consent may be revoked only as provided in § 25.2513–3. If one spouse files more than one gift tax return for a calendar year on or before the 15th day of April following the close of the calendar year, the last return so filed will, for the purpose of determining whether a consent has been signified, be considered as the return.

(b) The consent may be signified at any time following the close of the calendar year, subject to the following limitations:

(1) The consent may not be signified after the 15th day of April following the close of the calendar year, unless before such 15th day no return has been filed for the year by either spouse, in which case the consent may not be signified after a return for the year is filed by either spouse; and

(2) The consent may not be signified for a calendar year after a notice of deficiency in gift tax for that year has been sent to either spouse in accordance with the provisions of section 6212.

(c) The executor or administrator of a deceased spouse, or the guardian or committee of a legally incompetent spouse, as the case may be, may signify the consent.

(d) If the donor and spouse consent to the application of section 2513, the return or returns for the calendar year must set forth, to the extent provided thereon, information relative to the transfers made by each spouse.

§ 25.2513–3 Revocation of consent. If the consent to the application of the provisions of section 2513 for a calendar year was effectively signified on or before the 15th day of April following the close of the calendar year, either spouse may revoke the consent by filing in duplicate with the district director of internal revenue a signed statement of revocation, but only if the statement is filed on or before such 15th day of April. Therefore, a consent which was not effectively signified until after the 15th day of April following the close of the calendar year to which it applies may not be revoked.

§ 25.2513–4 Joint and several liability for tax. If consent to the application of the provisions of section 2513 is signified as provided in § 25.2513–2, and not revoked as provided in § 25.2513–3, the liability with respect to the entire gift tax of each spouse for such calendar year is joint and several. See § 25.2511–1 (c).

§ 25.2514 Statutory provisions; powers of appointment.

SEC. 2514. Powers of appointment—(a) Powers created on or before October 21, 1942. An exercise of a general power of appointment created on or before October 21, 1942, shall be deemed a transfer of property by the individual possessing such power; but the failure to exercise such a power or the complete release of such a power shall not be deemed an exercise thereof. If a general power of appointment created on or before October 21, 1942, has been partially released so that it is no longer a general power of appointment, the subsequent exercise of such power shall not be deemed to be the exercise of a general power of appointment if—

(1) Such partial release occurred before November 1, 1951, or

(2) The donee of such power was under a legal disability to release such power on October 21, 1942, and such partial release occurred not later than six months after the termination of such legal disability.

(b) Powers created after October 21, 1942. The exercise or release of a general power of appointment created after October 21, 1942, shall be deemed a transfer of property by the individual possessing such power. A disclaimer or renunciation of such a power of appointment shall not be deemed a release of such power.

(c) Definition of general power of appointment. For purposes of this section, the term "general power of appointment" means a power which is exercisable in favor of the individual possessing the power (hereafter in this subsection referred to as the "possessor"), his estate, his creditors, or the creditors of his estate; except that—

(1) A power to consume, invade, or appropriate property for the benefit of the possessor which is limited by an ascertainable standard relating to the health, education, support, or maintenance of the possessor shall not be deemed a general power of appointment.

(2) A power of appointment created on or before October 21, 1942, which is exercisable by the possessor only in conjunction with another person shall not be deemed a general power of appointment.

(3) In the case of a power of appointment created after October 21, 1942, which is exercisable by the possessor only in conjunction with another person—

(A) If the power is not exercisable by the possessor except in conjunction with the creator of the power—such power shall not be deemed a general power of appointment;

(B) If the power is not exercisable by the possessor except in conjunction with a person having a substantial interest, in the property subject to the power, which is adverse to exercise of the power in favor of the possessor—such power shall not be deemed a general power of appointment. For the purposes of this subparagraph a person who, after the death of the possessor, may be possessed of a power of appointment (with respect to the property subject to the possessor's power) which he may exercise in his own favor shall be deemed as having an interest in the property and such interest shall be deemed adverse to such exercise of the possessor's power;

(C) If (after the application of subparagraphs (A) and (B)) the power is a general power of appointment and is exercisable in favor of such other person—such power shall be deemed a general power of appointment only in respect of a fractional part of the property subject to such power, such part to be determined by dividing the value of such property by the number of such persons (including the possessor) in favor of whom such power is exercisable.

For purposes of subparagraphs (B) and (C), a power shall be deemed to be exercisable in favor of a person if it is exercisable in favor of such person, his estate, his creditors, or the creditors of his estate.

(d) Creation of another power in certain cases. If a power of appointment created after October 21, 1942, is exercised by creating another power of appointment which, under the applicable local law, can be validly exercised so as to postpone the vesting of any estate or interest in the property which was subject to the first power, or supend the absolute ownership or power of alienation of such property, for a period ascertainable without regard to the date of the creation of the first power, such exercise of the first power shall, to the extent of the property subject to the second power, be deemed a transfer of property by the individual possessing such power.

(e) Lapse of power. The lapse of a power of appointment created after October 21, 1942, during the life of the individual possessing the power shall be considered a release of such power. The rule of the preceding sentence shall apply with respect to the lapse of powers during any calendar year only to the extent that the property which could have been appointed by exercise of such lapsed powers exceeds in value the greater of the following amounts:

(1) $5,000, or

(2) 5 percent of the aggregate value of the assets out of which, or the proceeds of which, the exercise of the lapsed powers could be satisfied.

(f) Date of creation of power. For purposes of this section a power of appointment created by a will executed on or before October 21, 1942, shall be considered a power created on or before such date if the person executing such will dies before July 1, 1949, without having republished such will, by codicil or otherwise, after October 21, 1942.

§ 25.2514–1 Transfers under power of appointment—(a) Introductory. (1) Section 2514 treats as a taxable gift the exercise of a general power of appointment created on or before October 21, 1942. That section also treats as a taxable gift the exercise or complete release of a general power of appointment created after October 21, 1942, and under certain circumstances the exercise of a power of appointment created after October 21, 1942, by the creation of another power of appointment. See § 25.2514–3 (d). Under certain circumstances, also, the failure to exercise a power of appointment created after October 21, 1942, within a specified time, so that the power lapses, constitutes a taxable gift. Paragraphs (b) through (e) of this section contain definitions of certain terms used in §§ 25.2514–2 and 25.2514–3. See § 25.2514–2 for specific rules applicable to certain powers created on or before October 21, 1942. See § 25.2514–3 for specific rules applicable to powers created after October 21, 1942.

(b) Definition of "power of appointment"—(1) In general. The term "power of appointment" includes all powers which are in substance and effect powers of appointment received by the donee of the power from another person, regardless of the nomenclature used in creating the power and regardless of local property law connotations. For example, if a trust instrument provides that the beneficiary may appropriate or consume the principal of the trust, the power to consume or appropriate is a power of appointment. Similarly, a power given to a donee to affect the beneficial enjoyment of trust property or its income by altering, amending or revoking the trust instrument or terminating the trust is a power of appointment. A power in a donee to remove or discharge a trustee and appoint himself, may be a power of appointment. For example, if under the terms of a trust, the trustee or his successor has the power to appoint the principal of the trust for the benefit of individuals including himself, and another person has the unrestricted power to remove or discharge the trustee at any time and appoint any other person or class which could include himself, such other person is considered as having a power of appointment. However, he would not be considered to have a power of appointment if he only had the power to appoint a successor, including himself, under limited conditions which did not exist at the time of exercise, release or lapse of the trustee's power, without an accompanying unrestricted power of removal. Similarly, a power to amend only the administrative provisions of a trust instrument, which cannot affect the beneficial enjoyment of the trust property or income, is not a power of appointment. The mere power of management, investment, custody of assets, or the power to allocate receipts and disbursements as between income and principal, exercisable in a fiduciary capacity, whereby the holder has no power to enlarge or shift any of the beneficial interests therein except as an incidental consequence of the discharge of such fiduciary duties is not a power of appointment. Further, the right in a beneficiary of a trust to assent to a periodic accounting, thereby relieving the trustee from further accountability, is not a power of appointment if the right of assent does not consist of any power or right to enlarge or shift the beneficial interest of any beneficiary therein.

(2) Relation to other sections. For purposes of §§ 25.2514–1 through 25.2514–3, the term "power of appointment" does not include powers reserved by a donor to himself. No provision of section 2514 or of §§ 25.2514–1 through 25.2514–3 is to be construed as in any way limiting the application of any other section of the Internal Revenue Code of 1954 or of these regulations. The power of the owner of a property interest already possessed by him to dispose of his interest is not a power of appointment, and the interest is includible in the amount of his gifts to the extent it would be includible under section 2511 or other provisions of the Internal Revenue Code of 1954. For example, if a trust created by S provides for payment of the income to A for life with power in A to appoint the entire trust property by deed during her lifetime to a class consisting of her children, and a further power to dispose of the entire corpus by will to anyone, including her estate, and A exercises the inter vivos power in favor of her children, she has necessarily made a transfer of her income interest which constitutes a taxable gift under section 2511 (a), without regard to section 2514. This transfer also results in a relinquishment of her general power to appoint by will, which constitutes a transfer under section 2514 if the power was created after October 21, 1942.

(3) Powers over a portion of property. If a power of appointment exists as to part of an entire group of assets or only over a limited interest in property, section 2514 applies only to such part or interest.

(c) Definition of "general power of appointment"—(1) In general. The term "general power of appointment" as defined in section 2514 (c) means any power of appointment exercisable in favor of the person possessing the power (referred to as the "possessor"), his estate, his creditors, or the creditors of his estate, except (i) joint powers, to the extent provided in §§ 25.2514–2 and 25.2514–3 and (ii) certain powers limited by an ascertainable standard, to the extent provided in subparagraph (2) of this paragraph. A power of appointment exercisable to meet the estate tax, or any other taxes, debts, or charges which are enforceable against the possessor or his estate, is included within the meaning of a power of appointment exercisable in favor of the possessor, his estate or his creditors or the creditors of his estate. A power of appointment exercisable for the purpose of discharging a legal obligation of the possessor or for his pecuniary benefit is considered a power of appointment exercisable in favor of the possessor or his creditors. However, for purposes of §§ 25.2514–1 through 25.2514–3, a power of appointment not otherwise considered to be a general power of appointment is not treated as a general power of appointment merely by reason of the fact that an appointee may, in fact, be a creditor of the possessor or his estate. A power of appointment is not a general power if by its terms it is either—

(a) Exercisable only in favor of one or more designated persons or classes other than the possessor or his creditors (if the power is exercisable during life), his estate, or the creditors of his estate, or

(b) Expressly not exercisable in favor of the possessor, his creditors, his estate, or the creditors of his estate.

A beneficiary may have two powers under the same instrument, one of which is a general power of appointment and the other of which is not. For example, a beneficiary may have a general power to withdraw a limited portion of trust corpus during his life, and a further power exercisable during his lifetime to appoint the corpus among his children. The latter power is not a general power of appointment (but its exercise may cause a release of the former power; see example in paragraph (b) (2) of this section).

(2) Powers limited by an ascertainable standard. A power to consume, invade, or appropriate income or corpus, or both, for the benefit of the possessor which is limited by an ascertainable standard relating to the health, education, support, or maintenance of the possessor is, by reason of section 2514 (c) (1), not a general power of appointment. A power is limited by such a standard if the extent of the possessor's duty to exercise and not to exercise the power is reasonably measurable in terms of his needs for health, education, or support (or any combination of them). The words "support" and "maintenance" are synonymous. While their meaning is not limited to the bare necessities of life, and includes other reasonable living expenses, it does not necessarily extend to all expenditures that might be considered customary in the possessor's position in life. A power to use property for the comfort, welfare, or happiness of the holder of the power is not limited by the requisite standard. Examples of powers which are limited by the requisite standard are powers exercisable for the holder's "support," "support in reasonable comfort," "reasonable comfort and support," "maintenance in health and reasonable comfort," "education, including college and professional education," "health," and "medical, dental, hospital and nursing expenses and expenses of invalidism." In determining whether a power is limited by an ascertainable standard, it is immaterial whether the beneficiary is required to exhaust his other income before a power can be exercised. The fact that the governing instrument gives the holder of a power discretion to determine amounts to be distributed under the power is not in itself an indication that the power is not limited by the requisite standard.

(3) Certain powers under wills of decedents dying between January 1 and April 2, 1948. Section 210 of the Technical Changes Act of 1953 provides that if a decedent died after December 31, 1947, but before April 3, 1948, certain property interests described therein may, if the decedent's surviving spouse so elects, be accorded special treatment in the determination of the marital deduction to be allowed the decedent's estate under the provisions of section 812 (e) of the Internal Revenue Code of 1939. See § 81.47a (h) of Regulations 105 (26 CFR (1939) 81.47a (h)). The section further provides that property affected by the election shall be considered property with respect to which the surviving spouse has a general power of appointment. Therefore, notwithstanding any other provision of law or of §§ 25.2514–1 through 25.2514–3, if the surviving spouse has made an election under section 210 of the Technical Changes Act of 1953, the property which was the subject of the election shall be considered as property with respect to which she has a general power of appointment created after October 21, 1942, exercisable by deed or will, to the extent it was treated as an interest passing to the surviving spouse and not passing to any other person for the purpose of the marital deduction in the prior decedent's estate.

(d) Definition of "exercise." Whether a power of appointment is in fact exercised may depend on local law. However, regardless of local law, a power of appointment is considered as exercised for purposes of section 2514 even though the exercise is in favor of the taker in default of appointment, and irrespective of whether the appointed interest and the interest in default of appointment are identical, or whether the appointee renounces any right to take under the appointment. A power of appointment is also considered as exercised even though the exercise cannot take effect until the occurrence of an event after the exercise takes place, if the exercise is irrevocable and, as of the time of the exercise, the condition was not impossible of occurrence. For example, if property is left in trust to A for life, with a power in A to appoint the remainder by an instrument filed with the trustee during his life, and A exercises his power by appointing the remainder to B in the event that B survives A, A is considered to have exercised his power if the exercise was irrevocable.

(e) Definition of power created on or before October 21, 1942. A power of appointment created by will is in general considered as created on the date of the testator's death. However, section 2514 (f) provides that a power of appointment created by a will executed on or before October 21, 1942, is considered a power created on or before that date if the testator dies before July 1, 1949, without having republished the will, by codicil or otherwise, after October 21, 1942. A power of appointment created by an inter vivos instrument executed on or before October 21, 1942, is considered as created after that date if on that date the instrument was revocable, or was amendable in a manner which could substantially affect the terms of the power or the identity of its holders, other than by or with the consent of the possessor of the power.

However, a power is not considered as created after October 21, 1942, merely because the power is not exercisable or the identity of its holders is not ascertained until after that date. On the other hand, if the power is acquired by the possessor by reason of the failure of some other person to exercise a power of appointment in such other person, or upon the happening of some event, contingency, or condition within the unrestricted control of some other person, including the settlor of a trust or the trustee, the power is not deemed to be created until the event, condition or contingency takes place or becomes fixed. However, where an irrevocably fixed power of appointment is acquired only by reason of the exercise of a right in the trustee, or his successor (other than the settlor), to appoint a successor or additional trustee (not consisting of a right to establish a power of appointment or to change the extent or quality of a previously existing power) the power will be deemed to be created when the power is fixed.

§ 25.2514–2 Powers of appointment created on or before October 21, 1942—(a) In general. The exercise of a general power of appointment created on or before October 21, 1942, is deemed to be a transfer of property by the individual possessing the power.

(b) Joint powers created on or before October 21, 1942. Section 2514 (c) (2) provides that a power created on or before October 21, 1942, which at the time of the exercise is not exercisable by the possessor except in conjunction with another person, is not deemed a general power of appointment.

(c) Release or lapse. A failure to exercise a general power of appointment created on or before October 21, 1942, or a complete release of such a power is not considered to be an exercise of a general power of appointment. The phrase "a complete release" means a release of all powers over all or a portion of the property subject to the power, as distinguished from the reduction of a power to a lesser power. Thus, if the possessor completely relinquished a power over one-half of the property subject to the power, the power is completely released as to that half. However, if at or before the time the power is relinquished, the holder of the power exercises the power in such a manner or to such an extent that the relinquishment results in the reduction, enlargement, or shift in a beneficial interest in property, the relinquishment will be considered to be an exercise and not a release of the power. For example, assume that A created a trust in 1940 providing for payment of the income to B for life with the power in B to amend the trust, and for payment of the remainder to such persons as B shall appoint or, upon default of appointment, to C. If B amended the trust in 1948 by providing that upon his death the remainder was to be paid to C, and further amended the trust in 1955 by deleting his power to amend the trust, and if the 1948 amendment remained in effect the relinquishment will be considered an exercise and not a release of a general power of appointment. On the other hand, if the 1948 amendment became ineffective before or at the time of the 1955 amendment, or if B in 1948 merely amended the trust by changing the purely ministerial powers of the trustee, his relinquishment of the power in 1955 will be considered as a release of a power of appointment.

(d) Partial release. If a general power of appointment created on or before October 21, 1942, is partially released so that it is not thereafter a general power of appointment, a subsequent exercise of the partially released power is not an exercise of a general power of appointment if the partial release occurs before whichever is the later of the following dates:

(1) November 1, 1951;

(2) If the possessor was under a legal disability to release the power on October 21, 1942, the day after the expiration of 6 months following the termination of such legal disability.

However, if a general power created on or before October 21, 1942, is partially released on or after the later of those dates, a subsequent exercise of the power will constitute an exercise of a general power of appointment. The legal disability referred to in this paragraph is determined under local law and may include the disability of an insane person, a minor, or an unborn child. The fact that the type of general power of appointment possessed by the holder actually was not generally releasable under the local law does not place the holder under a legal disability within the meaning of this paragraph. In general, however, it is assumed that all general powers of appointment are releasable, unless the local law on the subject is to the contrary, and it is presumed that the method employed to release the power is effective, unless it is not in accordance with the local law relating specifically to releases or, in the absence of such local law, is not in accordance with the local law relating to similar transactions.

(e) Partial exercise. If a general power of appointment created on or before October 21, 1942, is exercised only as to a portion of the property subject to the power, the exercise is considered to be a transfer only as to the value of that portion. However, if the exercise of a power creates or changes any beneficial interest in a portion subject to the power, the power is considered as exercised with respect to the entire portion. For example, if the possessor of a general power of appointment under a trust created on or before October 21, 1942, exercised his power to the extent of directing the income from the trust property be paid to his wife for her life, and did not otherwise exercise his power, it would be considered as exercised as to the entire trust property.

§ 25.2514–3 Powers of appointment created after October 21, 1942—(a) In general. The exercise, release, or lapse (except as provided in paragraph (c) of this section below) of a general power of appointment created after October 21, 1942, is deemed to be a transfer of property by the individual possessing the power. The exercise of a power of appointment that is not a general power is considered to be a transfer if it is exercised to create a further power under certain circumstances (see paragraph (d) of this section below). See § 20.2041–1 (c) above for the definition of various terms used in this section. See paragraph (b) of this section for the rules applicable to determine the extent to which joint powers created after October 21, 1942, are to be treated as general powers of appointment.

(b) Joint powers created after October 21, 1942. The treatment of a power of appointment created after October 21, 1942, which is exercisable only in conjunction with another person is governed by section 2514 (c) (3), which provides as follows:

(1) Such a power is not considered as a general power of appointment if it is not exercisable by the possessor except with the consent or joinder of the creator of the power.

(2) A power is not considered as a general power of appointment if it is not exercisable by the possessor except with the consent or joinder of a person having a substantial interest in the property subject to the power which is adverse to the exercise of the power in favor of the possessor, his estate, his creditors, or the creditors of his estate. An interest adverse to the exercise of a power is considered as substantial unless its value in relation to the total value of the property subject to the power is insignificant. For this purpose, the interest is to be valued in accordance with the actuarial principles set forth in § 25.2512–5 or if it is not susceptible to valuation under those provisions, in accordance with the general principles set forth in § 25.2512–1. A taker in default of appointment under a power has an interest which is adverse to an exercise of the power. A coholder of the power has no adverse interest merely because of his joint possession of the power nor merely because he is a permissible appointee under a power. However, a coholder of a power is considered as having an adverse interest where he may possess the power after the possessor's death and may exercise it at that time in favor of himself, his estate, his creditors, or the creditors of his estate. Thus, for example, if X, Y, and Z held a power jointly to appoint among a group of persons which includes themselves and on the death of X the power will pass to Y and Z jointly, then Y and Z are considered to have interests adverse to the exercise of the power in favor of X. Similarly, if on Y's death the power will pass to Z, Z is considered to have an interest adverse to the exercise of the power in favor of Y. The application of this subparagraph may be further illustrated by the following additional examples (in each of which it is assumed that the value of the interest in question is substantial):

Example (i). The taxpayer and R are trustees of a trust under which the income is to be paid to the taxpayer for life and then to M for life, and R is remainderman. The trustees have power to distribute corpus to the taxpayer. Since R's interest is substantially adverse to an exercise of the power in favor of the taxpayer, the latter does not have a general power of appointment. If M and the taxpayer were trustees, M's interest would likewise be adverse.

Example (ii). The taxpayer and L are trustees of a trust under which the income is to be paid to L for life and then to M for life, and the taxpayer is remainderman. The trustees have power to distribute corpus to the taxpayer during L's life. Since L's interest is adverse to an exercise of the power in favor of the taxpayer, the taxpayer does not have a general power of appointment. If the taxpayer and M were trustees, M's interest would likewise be adverse.

Example (iii). The taxpayer and L are trustees of a trust under which the income is to be paid to L. The trustees can designate whether corpus is to be distributed to the taxpayer or to A after L's death. L's interest is not adverse to an exercise of the power in favor of the taxpayer, and the taxpayer therefore has a general power of appointment.

(3) A power which is exercisable only in conjunction with another person, and which after application of the rules set forth in subparagraphs (1) and (2) of this paragraph, constitutes a general power of appointment, will be treated as though the holders of the power who are permissible appointees of the property were joint owners of property subject to the power. The possessor, under this rule, will be treated as possessed of a general power of appointment over an aliquot share of the property to be determined with reference to the number of joint holders, including the possessor, who (or whose estates or creditors) are permissible appointees. Thus, for example, if X, Y, and Z hold an unlimited power jointly to appoint among a group of persons, including themselves, but on the death of X the power does not pass to Y and Z jointly, then Y and Z are not considered to have interests adverse to the exercise of the power in favor of X. In this case, X is considered to possess a general power of appointment as to one-third of the property subject to the power.

(c) Partial release and lapses of general powers created after October 21, 1942. (1) The general principles set forth in § 25.2511–2 for determining whether a donor of property (or property right or interest) has divested himself of all or any portion of his interest therein to the extent necessary to effect a completed gift are applicable in determining whether a partial release of a power of appointment constitutes a taxable gift. Thus, if a general power of appointment is partially released so that thereafter the donor may still appoint among a limited class of persons not including himself the partial release does not effect a complete gift, since the possessor of the power has retained the right to designate the ultimate beneficiaries of the property over which he holds the power and since it is only the termination of such control which completes a gift.

(2) If a general power of appointment created after October 21, 1942, was partially released prior to June 1, 1951, so that it no longer represented a general power of appointment, as defined by § 25.2514–1 (c), the subsequent exercise, release, or lapse of the partially released power at any time thereafter will not constitute the exercise or release of a general power of appointment. For example, assume that A created a trust in 1943 under which B possessed a general power of appointment. By an instrument executed in 1948 such general power of appointment was reduced in scope by B to an excepted power. The inter vivos exercise in 1955, or in any calendar year thereafter, of such excepted power is not considered an exercise or release of a general power of appointment for the purposes of the gift tax.

(3) If a general power of appointment created after October 21, 1942, was partially released after May 31, 1951, the subsequent exercise, release or a lapse of the power at any time thereafter, will constitute the exercise or release of a general power of appointment for gift tax purposes.

(4) A release of a power of appointment need not be formal or express in character. For example, the failure to exercise a general power of appointment created after October 21, 1942, within a specified time so that the power lapses, constitutes a release of the power. In any case where the possessor of a general power of appointment is incapable of validly exercising or releasing a power, by reason of minority, or otherwise, and the power may not be validly exercised or released on his behalf, the failure to exercise or release the power is not a lapse of the power. If a trustee has in his capacity as trustee a power which is considered as a general power of appointment, his resignation or removal as trustee will cause a lapse of his power. However, section 2514 (e) provides that such a lapse during any calendar year is considered as a release so as to be subject to the gift tax only to the extent that the property which could have been appointed by exercise of the lapsed power of appointment exceeds the greater of $5,000, or 5 percent of the aggregate value at the time of the lapse of the assets out of which, or the proceeds of which, the exercise of the lapsed power could be satisfied. For example, if an individual has a noncumulative right to withdraw $10,000 a year from the principal of a trust fund, the failure to exercise this right of withdrawal in a particular year will not constitute a gift if the fund at the end of the year equals or exceeds $200,000. If, however, at the end of the particular year the fund should be worth only $100,000, the failure to exercise the power will be considered a gift to the extent of $5,000, the excess of $10,000 over 5 percent of a fund of $100,000. Where the failure to exercise the power, such as the right of withdrawal, occurs in more than a single year, the value of the taxable transfer will be determined separately for each year.

(5) A disclaimer or renunciation of a general power of appointment is not considered to be a release of the power. The disclaimer or renunciation must be unequivocal and effective under local law. A disclaimer is a complete and unqualified refusal to accept the rights to which one is entitled. Such rights refer to the incidents of the power and not to other interests of the possessor of the power in the property. If effective under local law, the power may be disclaimed or renounced without disclaiming or renouncing such other interests. There can be no disclaimer or renunciation of a power after its acceptance. A disclaimer of a power over only a portion of the property subject to the power is not a complete and unqualified refusal to accept the rights to which one is entitled. In the absence of facts to the contrary, the failure to renounce or disclaim within a reasonable time after learning of its existence will be presumed to constitute an acceptance of the power.

(d) Creation of another power in certain cases. Paragraph (d) of section 2514 provides for the imposition of the gift tax on the value of property (or property right or interest) with respect to which a power of appointment (whether or not a general power) created after October 21, 1942, is exercised by creating another power of appointment which under the terms of the instruments creating and exercising the first power and under applicable local law, can be validly exercised so as to (1) postpone the vesting of any estate or interest in the property for a period ascertainable without regard to the date of the creation of the first power, or (2) (if the applicable rule against perpetuities is stated in terms of suspension of ownership or of the power of alienation, rater than of vesting) suspend the absolute ownership or the power of alienation of the property for a period ascertainable without regard to the date of the creation of the first power. For the purpose of this section, the value of the property subject to the second power is considered to be its value unreduced by any precedent or subsequent interest which is not subject to such second power. Thus, if a donor has a power to appoint $100,000 among a group consisting of his children or grandchildren and during his lifetime exercises the power by making an outright appointment of $75,000 and by giving one appointee a power to appoint $25,000, no more than $25,000 will be considered a gift under this section. If, however, the donor appoints the income from the entire fund to a beneficiary for life with power in the beneficiary to appoint the remainder, the entire $100,000 will be considered a gift under section 2514 (d), if the exercise of the second power can validly postpone the vesting of any estate or interest in such property, or can suspend the absolute ownership or power of alienation of such property for a period ascertainable without regard to the date of the creation of the first power.

(e) Examples. The following examples further illustrate the application of this section. They also illustrate the difference between a power of appointment and a right of disposition which adds nothing to the rights which a person otherwise has of disposing of his income or property. In any case where a person has a beneficial interest in income or property and a fiduciary power to dispose of the income or property to another person measurable by a fixed or readily ascertainable standard, as defined in § 25.2511–1 (f) (2), the disposition by the former of the income or property does not constitute the making of a gift to the extent that the disposition is pursuant to the exercise of such power. Further, in each instance in which it is indicated that the donor has a power of appointment, its exercise, release or lapse would not constitute a taxable gift unless it is a general power of appointment, and for this purpose a power, limited by an ascertainable standard relating to health, etc., as defined in § 25.2514–1 (c) (2) is not a general power of appointment. In each of the following examples it is assumed, unless otherwise stated, that S has transferred property in trust after October 21, 1942, with the remainder payable to R at L's death, and that neither L nor R has any interest in or power over the enjoyment of the trust property except as is indicated separately in each example:

Example (1). The income is payable to L. L has the power to cause the income to be paid to R. The exercise of the right constitutes the making of a taxable gift under section 2511. L's power does not constitute a power of appointment since it is only a power to dispose of his income interest, a right otherwise possessed by him.

Example (2). The income is to be accumulated during L's life. L has the power to have the income distributed to himself. L has a general power of appointment over the income, the lapse or release of which during his life may constitute a taxable transfer. For example, if his power in any year extends only to the income of that year, so that his power lapses at the end of the year as to that year's income, the accumulation for the year will constitute a transfer to the extent that the year's accumulation which he could have caused to be paid to himself (in excess of the value of his power to receive income on the accumulation) exceeds the greater of $5,000 or 5 percent of the income for that year.

Example (3). The income is to be paid to L. L has the right to have the income accumulated and added to corpus. The result is the same as in example (1) (except that no gift is made of the value of L's right to receive income from the accumulations) at the time L's power over the accumulations ceases. Thus, if L's power in any year extends only to that year's income, any accumulation of the income of any one year constitutes a taxable transfer (with the same exception) at the end of the year.

Example (4). The income is to be paid to L. L has a power, exercisable at any time, to cause corpus to be distributed to himself. L has a general power of appointment over the remainder interest, the release of which constitutes the making of a taxable gift to the extent of the value of the remainder.

Example (5). The income is payable to L. L has the power to cause the corpus to be distributed to R at any time. To the extent that L's income interest is affected, the result is the same as in example (1). L's power over the value of the remainder interest after his death does not constitute a general power of appointment and the exercise thereof does not constitute the making of a taxable gift.

Example (6). The income is to be accumulated and added to corpus. R has a right to appoint the income to L. R has a power to dispose of his remainder interest in the income, the exercise of which constitutes the making of a taxable gift under section 2511 of the value, if any, of the interest. See § 25.2511–1 (e).

Example (7). The income is payable to L. R has the right to cause the corpus to be distributed to L at any time. R's power is not a power of appointment, but merely a right to dispose of his remainder interest, a right already possessed by him. In such a case, the exercise of the right constitutes the making of a taxable transfer under section 2511 of the value, if any, of his remainder interest. See § 25.2511–1 (e).

Example (8). The income is to be paid to L. R has the right to appoint the corpus to himself at any time. R's general power of appointment over the corpus includes a general power to dispose of L's income interest therein. The lapse or release of R's general power over the income interest during his life may constitute a taxable transfer. For example, if the income in any year is paid to L, R's power lapses at the end of the year as to that year's income, and the amounts paid to L during the year will constitute a transfer to the extent they exceed the greater of $5,000 or 5 percent of the income for that year. R's right to take the remainder interest is not a power of appointment, but merely a power to accelerate the receipt of his own property. The result is therefore the same as if R had only a power during L's lifetime to appoint the income to himself for the duration of L's life.

Example (9). S transfers property in trust. So much of each year's income as is needed to support, educate, and maintain R shall be applied for his benefit; the balance of the yearly income is to be paid to L. L transfers his rights in the income to R. L's disposition of his income interest to R is a gift to R to the extent the value of L's interest in the income exceeds the value of R's right to support, education, and maintenance.

SEC. 2515. Tenancies by the entirety—(a) Creation. The creation of a tenancy by the entirety in real property, either by one spouse alone or by both spouses, and additions to the value thereof in the form of improvements, reductions in the indebtedness thereon, or otherwise, shall not be deemed transfers of property for purposes of this chapter, regardless of the proportion of the consideration furnished by each spouse, unless the donor elects to have such creation of a tenancy by the entirety treated as a transfer, as provided in subsection (c).

(b) Termination. In the case of the termination of a tenancy by the entirety, other than by reason of the death of a spouse, the creation of which, or additions to which, were not deemed to be transfers by reason of subsection (a), a spouse shall be deemed to have made a gift to the extent that the proportion of the total consideration furnished by such spouse multiplied by the proceeds of such termination (whether in form of cash, property, or interests in property) exceeds the value of such proceeds of termination received by such spouse.

(c) Exercise of election. The election provided by subsection (a) shall be exercised by including such creation of a tenancy by the entirety or additions made to the value thereof as a transfer by gift, to the extent such transfer constitutes a gift, determined without regard to this section, in the gift tax return of the donor for the calendar year in which such tenancy by the entirety was created or additions made to the value thereof, filed within the time prescribed by law, irrespective of whether or not the gift exceeds the exclusion provided by section 2503 (b).

(d) Certain joint tenancies included. For purposes of this section, the term "tenancy by the entirety" includes a joint tenancy between husband and wife with right of survivorship.

§ 25.2515–1 Tenancies by the entirety; in general—(a) Nature of. An estate by the entirety in real property is essentially a joint tenancy between husband and wife with the right of survivorship. As used in this section and §§ 25.2515–2 to 25.2515–4, inclusive, the term "tenancy by the entirety" includes a joint tenancy between husband and wife in real property with right of survivorship, or a tenancy which accords to the spouses rights equivalent thereto regardless of the term by which such a tenancy is described in local property law.

(b) Gift upon creation of tenancy by the entirety; in general. During calendar years prior to 1955 the contribution made by a husband or wife in the creation of a tenancy by the entirety constituted a gift to the extent that the consideration furnished by either spouse exceeded the value of the rights retained by that spouse. The contribution made by either or both spouses in the creation of such a tenancy during the calendar year 1955, or any calendar year thereafter, is not deemed a gift by either spouse, regardless of the proportion of the total consideration furnished by either spouse, unless the donor spouse elects under section 2515 (c) to treat such event as a gift in the calendar year in which the transaction is effected. See § 25.2515–2. The creation of a tenancy by the entirety takes place if either a husband or his wife purchases property and causes the title thereto to be conveyed to themselves as tenants by the entirety, or both join in such a purchase, or if either or both cause to be created such a tenancy in property already owned by either or both of them. The rule prescribed herein with respect to the creation of a tenancy by the entirety applies also to contributions made in the making of additions to the value of such a tenancy (in the form of improvements, reductions in the indebtedness, or otherwise), regardless of the proportion of the consideration furnished by each spouse. See § 25.2516–1 for transfers made pursuant to a property settlement agreement incident to divorce.

(c) Consideration—(1) In general. (i) The consideration furnished by a person in the creation of a tenancy by the entirety or the making of additions to the value thereof is the amount contributed by him in connection therewith. The contribution may be made by either spouse or by a third party. It may be furnished in the form of money, other property, or an interest in property. If it is furnished in the form of other property or an interest in property, the amount of the contribution is the fair market value of the property or interest at the time it was transferred to the tenancy or was exchanged for the property which became the subject of the tenancy. For example, if a decedent devised real property to the spouses as tenants by the entirety and the fair market value of the property was $30,000 at the time of the decedent's death, the amount of the decedent's contribution to the creation of the tenancy was $30,000. As another example, assume that in 1950 the husband purchased real property for $25,000, taking it in his own name as sole owner, and that in 1956 when the property had a fair market value of $40,000 he caused it to be transferred to himself and his wife as tenants by the entirety. Here, the amount of the husband's contribution to the creation of the tenancy was $40,000 (the fair market value of the property at the time it was transferred to the tenancy). Similarly, assume that in 1950 the husband purchased, as sole owner, corporate shares for $25,000 and in 1956, when the shares had a fair market value of $35,000, he exchanged them for real property which was transferred to the husband and his wife as tenants by the entirety. The amount of the husband's contribution to the creation of the tenancy was $35,000 (the fair market value of the shares at the time he exchanged them for the real property which became the subject of the tenancy).

(ii) Whether consideration derived from third-party sources is deemed to have been furnished by a third party or to have been furnished by the spouses will depend upon the terms under which the transfer is made. If a decedent devises real property to the spouses as tenants by the entirety, the decedent, and not the spouses, is the person who furnished the consideration for the creation of the tenancy. Likewise, if a decedent in his will directs his executor to discharge an indebtedness of the tenancy, the decedent, and not the spouses, is the person who furnished the consideration for the addition to the value of the tenancy. However, if the decedent bequeathed a general legacy to the husband and the wife and they used the legacy to discharge an indebtedness of the tenancy, the spouses, and not the decedent, are the persons who furnished the consideration for the addition to the value of the tenancy. The principles set forth in this subdivision with respect to transfers by decedents apply equally well to inter vivos transfers by third parties.

(iii) Where a tenancy is terminated in part (e. g., where a portion of the property subject to the tenancy is sold to a third party, or where the original property is disposed of and in its place there is substituted other property of lesser value acquired through reinvestment under circumstances which satisfy the requirements of paragraph (d) (2) (ii)) of this section below, the proportionate contribution of each person to the remaining tenancy is in general the same as his proportionate contribution to the original tenancy, and the character of his contribution remains the same. These proportions are applied to the cost of the remaining or substituted property. Thus, if the total contribution to the cost of the property was $20,000 and a fourth of the property were sold, the contribution to the remaining portion of the tenancy is normally $15,000. However, if it is shown that at the time of the contribution more or less than one-fourth thereof was attributable to the portion sold, the contribution is divided between the portion sold and the portion retained in the proper proportion. If the portion sold was acquired as a separate tract, it is treated as a separate tenancy. As another example of the application of this subdivision, assume that in 1950 X (a third party) gave to H and W (H's wife), as tenants by the entirety, real property then having a value of $15,000. In 1955, H spent $5,000 thereon in improvements and under section 2515 (c) elected to treat his contribution as a gift. In 1956, W spent $10,000 in improving the property but did not elect to treat her contribution as a gift. Between 1957 and 1960 the property appreciated in value by $30,000. In 1960, the property was sold for $60,000, and $45,000 of the proceeds of the sale were, under circumstances that satisfy the requirements of paragraph (d) (2) (ii), reinvested in other real property. Since X contributed one-half of the total consideration for the original property and the additions to its value, he is considered as having furnished $22,500 (one-half of $45,000) toward the creation of the remaining portion of the tenancy and the making of additions to the value thereof. Similarly, H is considered as having furnished $7,500 (one-sixth of $45,000) which was treated as a gift in the year furnished, and W is considered as having furnished $15,000 (one-third of $45,000) which was not treated as a gift in the year furnished.

(2) Proportion of consideration attributable to appreciation. Any general appreciation (appreciation due to fluctuations in market value) in the value of the property occurring between two successive contribution dates which can readily be measured and which can be determined with reasonable certainty to be allocable to any particular contribution or contributions previously furnished is to be treated, for the purpose of the computations in §§ 25.2515–3 and 25.2515–4, as though it were additional consideration furnished by the person who furnished the prior consideration. For the purpose of the preceding sentence, successive contribution dates are the two consecutive dates on which any contributions to the tenancy are made, not necessarily by the same party. Further, appreciation allocable to the prior consideration falls in the same class as the prior consideration to which it relates. The application of this subparagraph may be illustrated by the following examples:

Example (1). In 1940, H purchased real property for $15,000 which he caused to be transferred to himself and W (his wife) as tenants by the entirety. In 1956 when the fair market value of the property was $30,000, W made $5,000 improvements to the property. In 1957 the property was sold for $35,000. The general appreciation of $15,000 which occurred between the date of purchase and the date of W's improvements to the property constitutes an additional contribution by H, having the same characteristics as his original contribution of $15,000.

Example (2). In 1955 real property was purchased by H and W and conveyed to them as tenants by the entirety. The purchase price of the property was $15,000 of which H contributed $10,000 and W, $5,000. In 1960 when the fair market value of the property is $21,000, W makes improvements thereto of $5,000. The property then is sold for $26,000. The appreciation in value of $6,000 results in an additional contribution of $4,000 (10,000/15,000×$6,000) by H, and an additional contribution by W of $2,000 (5,000/15,000×$6,000). H's total contribution to the tenancy is $14,000 (10,000+4,000) and W's total contribution is $12,000 (5,000+2,000+5,000).

Example (3). In 1956 real property was purchased by H and W and conveyed to them as tenants by the entirety. The purchase price of the property was $15,000, on which a down payment of $3,000 was made. The remaining $12,000 was to be paid in monthly installments over a period of 15 years. H furnished $2,000 of the down payment and W, $1,000. H paid all the monthly installments. During the period 1956 to 1971 the property gradually appreciates in values to $24,000. Here, the appreciation is so gradual and the contributions so numerous that the amount allocable to any particular contribution cannot be ascertained with any reasonable certainty. Accordingly, in such a case the appreciation in value may be disregarded in determining the amount of consideration furnished in making the computations provided for in §§ 25.2515–3 and 25.2515–4.

(d) Gift upon termination of tenancy by the entirety.—(1) In general. Upon the termination of the tenancy, whether created before, during, or subsequent to the calendar year 1955, a gift may result, depending upon the disposition made of the proceeds of the termination (whether the proceeds be in the form of cash, property, or interests in property). A gift may result notwithstanding the fact that the contribution of either spouse to the tenancy was treated as a gift. See § 25.2515–3 for the method of determining the amount of any gift which may result from the termination of the tenancy in those cases in which no portion of the consideration contributed was treated as a gift by the spouses in the year in which furnished. See § 25.2515–4 for the method of determining the amount of any gift which may result from the termination of the tenancy in those cases in which all or a portion of the consideration contributed was treated as constituting a gift by the spouses in the year in which furnished. See § 25.2515–2 for the procedure to be followed by a donor who elects under section 2515 (c) to treat the creation of a tenancy by the entirety (or the making of additions to its value) as a transfer subject to the gift tax in the year in which the transfer is made, and for the method of determining the amount of the gift.

(2) Termination.—(i) In general. Except as indicated in subdivision (ii), a termination of a tenancy is effected when all or a portion of the property so held by the spouses is sold, exchanged, or otherwise disposed of, by gift or in any other manner, or when the spouses through any form of conveyance or agreement become tenants in common of the property or otherwise alter their respective interests in the property formerly held by them as tenants by the entirety.

(ii) Exchange or reinvestment. A termination is not considered as effected to the extent that the property subject to the tenancy is exchanged for other real property, the title to which is held by the spouses in an identical tenancy. For this purpose, a tenancy is considered identical if the proportionate values of the spouses' respective rights (other than any change in the proportionate values resulting solely from the passing of time) are identical to those held in the property which was sold. In addition the sale, exchange (other than an exchange described above), or other disposition of property held as tenants by the entirety is not considered as a termination if all three of the following conditions are satisfied:

(a) There is no division of the proceeds of the sale, exchange or other disposition of the property held as tenants by the entirety;

(b) On or before the due date for the filing of a gift tax return for the calendar year in which the property held as tenants by the entirety was sold, exchanged, or otherwise disposed of, the spouses enter into a binding contract for the purchase of other real property; and

(c) After the sale, exchange, or other disposition of the former property and within a reasonable time after the date of the contract referred to in subdivision (b), such other real property actually is acquired by the spouses and held by them in an identical tenancy.

To the extent that all three of the conditions set forth in this subdivision are not met (whether by reason of the death of one of the spouses or for any other reason), the provisions of the preceding sentence shall not apply, and the sale, exchange or other disposition of the property will constitute a termination of the tenancy. As used in subdivision (c) the expression "a reasonable time" means the time which, under the particular facts in each case, is needed for those matters which are incident to the acquisition of the other property (i. e., perfecting of title, arranging for financing, construction, etc.). The fact that proceeds of a sale are deposited in the name of one tenant or of both tenants separately or jointly as a convenience does not constitute a division within the meaning of subdivision (a) if the other requirements of this subdivision are met.

(3) Proceeds of termination. (i) The proceeds of termination may be received by a spouse in the form of money, property, or an interest in property. Where the proceeds are received in the form of property (other than money) or an interest in property, the value of the proceeds received by that spouse is the fair market value, on the date of termination of the tenancy by the entirety, of the property or interest received. Thus, if a tenancy by the entirety is terminated so that thereafter each spouse owns an undivided half interest in the property as tenant in common, the value of the proceeds of termination received by each spouse is one-half the value of the property at the time of the termination of the tenancy by the entirety. If under local law one spouse without the consent of the other, can bring about a severance of his or her interest in a tenancy by the entirety and does so by making a gift of his or her interest to a third party, that spouse is considered as having received proceeds of termination in the amount of the fair market value, at the time of the termination, of his severable interest determined in accordance with the rules prescribed in § 25.2512–5. He has in addition, made a gift to the third party of the fair market value of the interest conveyed to the third party. In such a case, the other spouse also is considered as having received as proceeds of termination the fair market value, at the time of termination, of the interest which she thereafter holds in the property as tenant in common with the third party. However, since section 2515 (b) contemplates that the spouses may divide the proceeds of termination in some proportion other than that represented by the values of their respective legal interests in the property, if both spouses join together in making a gift to a third party of property held by them as tenants by the entirety, the value of the proceeds of termination which will be treated as received by each is the amount which each reports (on his or her gift tax return filed for the calendar year in which the termination occurs) as the value of his or her gift to the third party. This amount is the amount which each reports without regard to whether the spouses elect under section 2513 to treat the gifts as made one-half by each. For example, assume that H and W (his wife) hold real property as tenants by the entirety; that in 1956, when the property has a fair market value of $60,000, they give it to their son; and that on their gift tax returns for the calendar year 1956, H reports himself as having made a gift to the son of $36,000 and W reports herself as having made a gift to the son of $24,000. Under these circumstances, H is considered as having received proceeds of termination valued at $36,000, and W is considered as having received proceeds of termination valued at $24,000.

(ii) Except as provided otherwise in subparagraph (2) (ii) of this paragraph (under which certain tenancies by the entirety are considered not to be terminated), where the proceeds of a sale, exchange, or other disposition of the property are not actually divided between the spouses but are held (whether in a bank account or otherwise) in their joint names or in the name of one spouse as custodian or trustee for their joint interests, each spouse is presumed, in the absence of a showing to the contrary, to have received, as of the date of termination, proceeds of termination equal in value to the value of his or her enforceable property rights in respect of the proceeds.

§ 25.2515–2 Tenancies by the entirety; transfers treated as gifts; manner of election and valuation. (a) The election to treat the creation of a tenancy by the entirety in real property, or additions to its value made thereto, as constituting a gift in the year in which effected, shall be exercised by including the value of such gifts in the gift tax return of the donor for the calendar year in which the tenancy was created, or the additions in value were made to the property. See section 6019 and the regulations thereunder. The election may be exercised only in a return filed within the time prescribed by law, or before the expiration of any extention of time granted pursuant to law for the filing of the return. See sections 6075 and 6081 and the regulations thereunder. In order to make the election, a gift tax return must be filed for the calendar year in which the tenancy was created, or additions in value thereto made, even though the value of the gift involved does not exceed the amount of the exclusion provided by section 2503 (b).

(b) If the donor spouse exercises the election as provided in paragraph (a) of this section, the amount of the gift at the creation of the tenancy is the amount of the contribution by such spouse to such tenancy less the value of the donor's retained interest in it, determined as follows:

(1) If under the law of the jurisdiction governing the rights of the spouses, either spouse, acting alone, can bring about a severance of his or her interest in the property, the value of the donor's retained interest is one-half the value of the property.

(2) If, under the law of the jurisdiction governing the rights of the spouses each is entitled to share in the income or other enjoyment of the property but neither, acting alone, may defeat the right of the survivor of them to the whole of the property, the amount of retained interest of the donor is determined by multiplying the value of the property by the appropriate actuarial factor for the donor spouse at his attained age at the time the transaction is effected.

(c) Factors representing the respective interests of the spouses, under a tenancy by the entirety, at their attained ages at the time of the transaction may be found, or readily computed with the use of the tables contained in the actuarial pamphlet referred to in § 25.2512–5 (e). State law may provide that the husband only is entitled to all of the income or other enjoyment of the real property held as tenants by the entirety, and the wife's interest consists only of the right of survivorship with no right of severance. In such a case, a special factor may be needed to determine the value of the interests of the respective spouses. See § 25.2512–5 (e) relative to the procedure for obtaining special factors from the Commissioner in cases requiring their use.

(d) The application of this paragraph may be illustrated by the following example:

Example. A husband with his own funds acquires real property valued at $10,000 and has it conveyed to himself and his wife as tenants by the entirety. Under the law of the jurisdiction governing the rights of the parties, each spouse is entitled to share in the income from the property but neither spouse acting alone could bring about a severance of his or her interest. The husband elects to treat the transfer as a gift in the year in which effected. At the time of transfer, the ages of the husband and his wife are 45 and 40, respectively, on their birthdays nearest to the date of transfer. The value of the gift to the wife is $5,502.90, computed as follows:

Value of property transferred	$10,000.00
Less $10,000×0.44971 (factor for value of donor's retained rights)	4,497.10
Value of gift	5,502.90

§ 25.2515–3 Termination of tenancy by the entirety; cases in which entire value of gift is determined under section 2515 (b). (a) In any case in which—

(1) The creation of a tenancy by the entirety (including additions in value thereto) was not treated as a gift, and

(2) The entire consideration for the creation of the tenancy, and any additions in value thereto, was furnished solely by the spouses (see § 25.2515–1 (c) (1) (ii)).

the termination of the tenancy (other than by the death of a spouse) always results in the making of a gift by a spouse who receives a smaller share of the proceeds of the termination (whether received in cash, property or interests in property) than the share of the proceeds attributable to the total consideration furnished by him. See § 25.2515–1 (c) for a discussion of what constitutes consideration and the value thereof. Thus, a gift is effected at the time of termination of the tenancy by the spouse receiving less than one-half of the proceeds of termination if such spouse (regardless of age) furnished one-half or more of the total consideration for the purchase and improvements, if any, of the property held in the tenancy. Also, if one spouse furnished the entire consideration, a gift is made by such spouse to the extent that the other spouse receives any portion of the proceeds of termination. See § 25.2515–4 for determination of the amount of the gift, if any, in cases in which the creation of the tenancy was treated as a gift or a portion of the consideration was furnished by a third person. See § 25.2515–1 (d) (2) as to the acts which effect a termination of the tenancy.

(b) In computing the value of the gift under the circumstances described in paragraph (a) of this section, it is necessary to first determine the spouse's share of the proceeds attributable to the consideration furnished by him. This share is computed by multiplying the total value of the proceeds of the termination by a fraction, the numerator of which is the total consideration furnished by the donor spouse and the denominator of which is the total consideration furnished by both spouses. From this amount there is subtracted the value of the proceeds of termination received by the donor spouse. The amount remaining is the value of the gift. In arriving at the "total consideration furnished by the donor spouse" and the "total consideration furnished by both spouses," for purposes of the computation provided for in this paragraph, the consideration furnished (see § 25.2515–1 (c)) is not reduced by any amounts which otherwise would have been excludable under section 2503 (b) in determining the amounts of taxable gifts for the years in which the consideration was furnished. As an example assume that in 1955, real property was purchased for $30,000, the husband and wife each contributing $12,000 and the remaining $6,000 being obtained through a mortgage on the property. In each of the years 1956 and 1957, the husband paid $3,000 on the principal of the indebtedness, but did not disclose the value of these transfers on his gift tax returns for those years. The total consideration furnished by the husband is $18,000, the total consideration furnished by the wife is $12,000, and the total consideration furnished by both spouses is $30,000.

(c) The application of this section may be illustrated by the following examples:

Example (1). In 1956 the husband furnished $30,000 and his wife furnished $10,000 of the consideration for the purchase and subsequent improvement of real property held by them as tenants by the entirety. Neither spouse elected to treat the consideration furnished as a gift. The property later is sold for $60,000, the husband receiving $35,000 and his wife receiving $25,000 of the proceeds of the termination. The termination of the tenancy results in a gift of $10,000 by the husband to his wife, computed as follows:

$$\frac{$30,000 \text{ (consideration furnished by husband)}}{$40,000 \text{ (total consideration furnished by both spouses)}} \times $60,000 \text{ (proceeds of termination)} = $45,000$$

$45,000 − $35,000 (proceeds received by husband) = $10,000 gift by husband to wife.

Example (2). In 1950 the husband purchased shares of X Company for $10,000. In 1955 when these shares had a fair market value of $30,000, he and his wife purchased real property from A and had it conveyed to them as tenants by the entirety. In payment for the real property, the husband transferred his shares of X Company to A and the wife paid A the sum of $10,000. They later sell the real property for $60,000, and divide $24,000 (each taking $12,000) and reinvest the remaining $36,000 in other real property under circumstances that satisfy the conditions set forth in § 25.2515–1 (d) (2) (ii). The tenancy is terminated only with respect to the $24,000 divided between them. This termination of the tenancy results in a gift of $6,000 by the husband to the wife, computed as follows:

$$\frac{$30,000 \text{ (consideration furnished by husband)}}{$40,000 \text{ (total consideration furnished by both spouses)}} \times $24,000 \text{ (proceeds of termination)} = $18,000$$

$18,000 − $12,000 (proceeds received by husband) = $6,000 gift by husband to wife.

Since the tenancy was terminated only in part, with respect to the remaining portion of the tenancy each spouse is considered as having furnished that proportion of the total consideration for the remaining portion of the tenancy as the consideration furnished by him before the sale bears to the total consideration furnished by both spouses before the sale. See § 25.2515–1 (c). The consideration furnished by the husband for the reduced tenancy is $27,000, computed as follows:

$$\frac{$30,000 \text{ (consideration furnished by husband before sale)}}{$40,000 \text{ (total consideration furnished by both spouses before sale)}} \times $36,000 \text{ (consideration for reduced tenancy)} = $27,000$$

The consideration furnished by the wife is $9,000, computed in a similar manner.

§ 25.2515–4 Termination of tenancy by entirety; cases in which none, or a portion only, of value of gift is determined under section 2515 (b).—(a) In general. The rules provided in section 2515 (b) (see § 25.2515–3) are not applied in determining whether a gift has been made at the termination of a tenancy to the extent that the consideration furnished for the creation of the tenancy was treated as a gift or if the consideration for the creation of the tenancy was furnished by a third party. Consideration furnished for the creation of the tenancy was treated as a gift if it was furnished either (1) during calendar years prior to 1955, or (2) during the calendar year 1955 and subsequent years and the donor spouse exercised the election to treat the furnishing of consideration as a gift. See paragraph (b) of this section relative to the manner of computing the value of gifts resulting from the termination of the tenancy under these circumstances. See paragraph (c) of this section for the rules to be applied where part of the total consideration for the creation of the tenancy and additions to the value thereof was not treated as a gift and part either was treated as a gift or was furnished by a third party.

(b) Value of gift when entire consideration is of the type described in paragraph (a) of this section. If the entire consideration for the creation of a tenancy by the entirety was treated as a gift or consideration therefor was contributed by a third party, the determination of the amount, if any, of a gift made at the termination of the tenancy will be made by the application of the general principles set forth in § 25.2511–1. Under those principles, when a spouse surrenders a property interest in a tenancy, the creation of which was treated as a gift, and in return receives an amount (whether in the form of cash, property, or an interest in property) less than the value of the property interest surrendered, that spouse is deemed to have made a gift in an amount equal to the difference between the value, at the time of termination, of the property interest surrendered by such spouse and the amount received in exchange. Thus, if the husband's interest in such a tenancy at the time of termination is worth $44,971 and the wife's interest therein at the time is worth $55,029, the property is sold for $100,000, and each spouse receives $50,000 out of the proceeds of the sale, the wife has made a gift to the husband of $5,029. The principles applied in § 25.2515–2 (c) for the method of determining the value of the respective interests of the spouses at the time of the creation of a tenancy by the entirety are equally applicable in determining the value of each spouse's interest in the tenancy at termination, except that the actuarial factors to be applied are those for the respective spouses at the ages attained at the date of termination.

(c) Valuation of gift where both types of consideration are involved. If the consideration furnished consists in part of the type described in § 25.2515–3 (a) (consideration furnished by the spouses after 1954, are not treated as a gift in the year furnished) and in part of the type described in paragraph (a) of this section (consideration furnished by the spouses and treated as a gift or furnished by a third party), the amount of the gift is determined as follows:

(1) By applying the principles set forth in § 25.2515–3 (b) to that portion of the total proceeds of termination which the consideration described in § 25.2515–3 (a) bears to the total consideration furnished;

(2) By applying the principles set forth in paragraph (b) of this section to the remaining portion of the total proceeds of termination; and

(3) By subtracting the proceeds of termination received by the donor from the total of the amounts which under the principles referred to in subparagraphs (1) and (2) of this paragraph are to be compared with the proceeds of termination received by a spouse in determining whether a gift was made by that spouse.

For example, assume that consideration of $30,000 was furnished in 1954; and that in 1955 the husband contributed $12,000 and the wife $8,000, the husband's contribution not being treated as a gift. Assume further that between 1957 and 1965 the property appreciated in value by $40,000 and was sold in 1965 for $90,000 (of which the husband received $40,000 and the wife $50,000). The principles set forth in § 25.2515–3 (b) are applied to $36,000 (20,000/50,000 × $90,000) in arriving at the amount which is compared with the proceeds of termination received by a spouse. Applying the principles set forth in § 25.2515–3 (b), this amount in the case of the husband is $19,800 (12,000/20,000 × 36,000). Similarly, the principles set forth in paragraph (b) of this section are applied to $54,000 ($90,000 − 36,000), the remaining portion of the proceeds of termination, in arriving at the amount which is compared with the proceeds of termination received by a spouse. If in this case either spouse, without the consent of the other spouse, can bring about a severance of his interest in the tenancy, the amount so determined in the case of the husband would be $27,000 (½ of $54,000). The total of the two amounts which are to be compared with the proceeds of termination received by the husband is $46,800 ($19,800 + 27,000). This sum of $46,800 is then compared with the $40,000 proceeds received by the husband, and the termination of the tenancy has resulted, for gift tax purposes, in a transfer of $6,800 by the husband to his wife in 1965. See paragraph (d) of this section for an additional example illustrating the application of this paragraph.

(d) The application of paragraph (c) of this section may be illustrated by the following example:

Example. X died in 1948 and devised real property to Y and Z (Y's wife) as tenants by the entirety. Under the law of the jurisdiction, both spouses are entitled to share equally in the income from, or the enjoyment of, the property, but neither spouse, acting alone, may defeat the right of the survivor of them to the whole of the property. The fair market value of the property at the time of X's death was $100,000 and this amount is the consideration which X furnished toward the creation of the tenancy. In 1955, at which time the fair market value of the property was the same as at the time of X's death, improvements of $50,000 were made to the property, of which Y furnished $40,000 out of his own funds and Z furnished $10,000 out of her own funds. Y did not elect to treat his transfer to the tenancy as resulting in the making of a gift in 1955. In 1956 the property was sold for $300,000 and Y and Z each received $150,000 of the proceeds. At the time the property was sold Y and Z are 45 and 40, respectively, on their birthdays nearest the date of sale. The value of the gift made by Y to Z is $19,842, computed as follows:

Amount determined under principles set forth in § 25.2515–3:

$$\frac{$50,000 \text{ (consideration not treated as gift in year furnished)}}{$150,000 \text{ (total consideration furnished)}} \times $300,000 \text{ (proceeds of termination)}$$

= $100,000 (Proceeds of termination to which principles set forth in § 25.2513 apply)

$$\frac{$40,000 \text{ (consideration furnished by H and not treated as gift)}}{$50,000 \text{ (total consideration not treated as gift)}} \times $100,000 = $80,000$$

Amount determined under principles set forth in paragraph (b) of this section:

$300,000 (total proceeds of termination) − $100,000 (proceeds to which principles set forth in § 25.2515–3 apply) = $200,000 (proceeds to which principles set forth in paragraph (b) apply)

0.44971 (factor for Y's interest) × $200,000 = $89,842

Amount of gift:

Amount determined under § 25.2515–3	$80,000
Amount determined under paragraph (b)	89,842
Total	169,842
Less: Proceeds received by Y	150,000
Amount of gift made by Y to Z	19,842

§ 25.2516 Statutory provisions; certain property settlements.

SEC. 2516. Certain property settlements. Where husband and wife enter into a written agreement relative to their marital and property rights and divorce occurs within 2 years thereafter (whether or not such agreement is approved by the divorce decree), any transfers of property or interests in property made pursuant to such agreement—

(1) To either spouse in settlement of his or her marital or property rights, or

(2) To provide a reasonable allowance for the support of issue of the marriage during minority, shall be deemed to be transfers made for a full and adequate consideration in money or money's worth.

§ 25.2516–1 Certain property settlements. (a) Under the general rule of section 2512 a transfer in settlement of a spouse's dower, curtesy or other property rights arising out of a marriage is not deemed to be for an adequate and full consideration in money or money's worth and is, therefore, subject to a gift tax on the full value of the property transferred. See § 25.2512–8. However, such a transfer is excepted from the general rule, and is not subject to gift tax, either if it qualifies under section 2516 (see paragraph (b) of this section) or if it is effected by a court decree as provided in paragraph (c) of this section.

(b) Section 2516 provides that transfers of property or interests in property made under the terms of a written agreement between spouses in settlement of their marital or property rights are deemed to be for an adequate and full consideration in money or money's worth and, therefore, exempt from the gift tax (whether or not such agreement is approved by a divorce decree), if the spouses obtain a final decree of divorce from each other within two years after entering into the agreement.

(c) When a transfer of property between spouses in settlement of their dower, curtesy or other property rights arising out of the marriage does not qualify under section 2516, it may nevertheless be exempt from gift tax, but only if the transfer is effected by a court decree rather than by a promise or agreement between the spouses. A transfer is deemed to be effected by a decree if: (1) The transfer is pursuant to an agreement which is binding only upon the entry of a decree of divorce, separate maintenance, or annulment, and such decree is subsequently granted incorporating the terms of the agreement, or (2) the transfer is solely pursuant to a divorce, separation, maintenance, or annulment decree as, for example, where there has been no prior out-of-court agreement between the spouses.

(d) See § 25.6019–3 (b) for the circumstances under which information relating to property settlements must be disclosed on the transferor's gift tax return for the calendar year in which the agreement becomes effective.

§ 25.2516–2 Transfers in settlement of support obligations. Transfers to provide a reasonable allowance for the support of children (including legally adopted children) of a marriage during minority are not subject to the gift tax if made pursuant to an agreement which satisfies the requirements of section 2516. See also §§ 25.2511–1 (f) and 25.2512–8, relating to transfers for the support of dependents.

DEDUCTIONS

§ 25.2521 Statutory provisions; specific exemption.

SEC. 2521. Specific exemption. In computing taxable gifts for the calendar year, there shall be allowed a deduction in the case of a citizen or resident an exemption of $30,000, less the aggregate of the amounts claimed and allowed as specific exemption in the computation of gift taxes for the calendar year 1932 and all calendar years intervening between that calendar year and the calendar year for which the tax is being computed under the laws applicable to such years.

§ 25.2521–1 Specific exemption. (a) In determining the amount of taxable gifts for the calendar year there may be deducted, if the donor was a resident or citizen of the United States at the time the gifts were made, a specific exemption of $30,000, less the sum of the amounts claimed and allowed as an exemption in prior calendar years. The exemption, at the option of the donor, may be taken in the full amount of $30,000 in a single calendar year, or be spread over a period of years in such amounts as the donor sees fit, but after the limit has been reached no further exemption is allowable. Except as otherwise provided in a tax convention between the United States and another country, a donor who was a nonresident not a citizen of the United States at the time the gift or gifts were made is not entitled to this exemption.

(b) No part of a donor's lifetime specific exemption of $30,000 may be deducted from the value of a gift attributable to his, or her, spouse where a husband and wife consent, under the provisions of section 2513, to have the gifts made during a calendar year considered as made one-half by each of them. The "gift-splitting" provisions of section 2513 do not authorize the filing of a joint gift tax return nor permit a donor to claim any of his, or her, spouse's specific exemption. For example, if a husband has no specific exemption remaining available, but his wife does, and the husband makes a gift to which his wife consents under the provisions of section 2513 (or the wife makes a gift to which the husband consents), the specific exemption remaining available may be claimed only on the return of the wife with respect to one-half of the gift. The husband may not claim any specific exemption since he has none available.

(c) The amount by which the specific exemption claimed and allowed in gift tax returns for prior calendar years exceeds $30,000 is includible in determining the aggregate sum of the taxable gifts for preceding calendar years. See § 25.2504–1 (b).

§ 25.2522 (a) Statutory provisions; charitable and similar gifts; citizens or residents.

SEC. 2522. Charitable and similar gifts—(a) Citizens or residents. In computing taxable gifts for the calendar year, there shall be allowed as a deduction in the case of a citizen or resident the amount of all gifts made during such year to or for the use of—

(1) The United States, any State, Territory, or any political subdivision thereof, or the District of Columbia, for exclusively public purposes;

(2) A corporation, or trust, or community chest, fund, or foundation, organized and operated exclusively for religious, charitable, scientific, literary, or educational purposes, including the encouragement of art and the prevention of cruelty to children or animals, no part of the net earnings of which inures to the benefit of any private shareholder or individual, and no substantial part of the activities of which is carrying on propaganda, or otherwise attempting, to influence legislation;

(3) A fraternal society, order, or association, operating under the lodge system, but only if such gifts are to be used exclusively for religious, charitable, scientific, literary, or educational purposes, including the encouragement of art and the prevention of cruelty to children or animals;

(4) Posts or organizations of war veterans, or auxiliary units or societies of any such posts or organizations, if such posts, organizations, units, or societies are organized in the United States or any of its possessions, and if no part of their net earnings inures to the benefit of any private shareholder or individual.

§ 25.2522 (a)–1 Charitable and similar gifts; citizens or residents. (a) In determining the amount of taxable gifts for the calendar year there may be deducted, in the case of a donor who was a citizen or resident of the United States at the time the gifts were made, all gifts included in the "total amount of gifts" made by the donor during the taxable year (see section 2503 and the regulations thereunder) and made to or for the use of:

(1) The United States, any State, Territory, or any political subdivision thereof, or the District of Columbia, for exclusively public purposes.

(2) Any corporation, trust, community chest, fund or foundation organized and operated exclusively for religious, charitable, scientific, literary, or educational purposes, including the encouragement of art and the prevention of cruelty to children or animals, if no part of the net earnings of the organization inures to the benefit of any private shareholder or individual, and no substantial part of its activities is carrying on propaganda, or otherwise attempting, to influence legislation.

(3) A fraternal society, order, or association, operating under the lodge system, provided the gifts are to be used by the society, order or association exclusively for one or more of the purposes set forth in subparagraph (2) of this paragraph.

(4) Any organization of war veterans or auxiliary unit or society thereof, if organized in the United States or any of its possessions, and if no part of its net earnings inures to the benefit of any private shareholder or individual.

(b) The deduction is not limited, in the case of donors who were citizens or residents of the United States at the time the gifts were made to gifts for use within the United States, or to gifts to or for the use of domestic corporations, community chests, funds or foundations, or fraternal societies, orders or associations operating under the lodge system.

(c) The deduction under section 2522 is not allowed for a transfer to a corporation, trust, community chest, fund, or foundation unless the organization or trust meets the following three tests:

(1) It must be organized and operated exclusively for one or more of the specified purposes.

(2) It must not by a substantial part of its activities attempt to influence legislation by propaganda or otherwise.

(3) Its net earnings must not inure in whole or in part to the benefit of private shareholders or individuals other than as legitimate objects of the exempt purposes.

For further limitations see § 25.2522 (c)–1, relating to gifts to trusts and organizations which have engaged in a prohibited transaction described in section 681 (b) (2) or section 503 (c).

(d) In order to prove the right to the charitable, etc., deduction provided by section 2522 the donor must submit such data as may be requested by the district director. As to the extent the deductions provided by this section are allowable, see section 2524.

§ 25.2522 (a)–2 Transfers not exclusively for charitable, etc., purposes—(a) Remainders and similar interests. If a trust is created or property is limited for both a charitable and a private purpose, deduction may be taken of the value of the charitable beneficial interest only insofar as that interest is presently ascertainable, and hence severable from the noncharitable interest. The present value of a remainder or other deferred payment to be made for a charitable purpose is to be determined in accordance with the rules stated in § 25.2512–5. Thus, if money or property is placed in trust to pay the income to an individual during his life, or for a term of years, and then to pay the principal to a charitable organization, the present value of the remainder is deductible. To determine the present value of such remainder use the appropriate factor from column 4 of Table I or II of § 25.2512–5, whichever is applicable. If the interest involved is such that its value is to be determined by a special computation (see § 25.2512–5 (e)), a request for a specific factor accompanied by a statement of the date of birth of each person, the duration of whose life may affect the value of the remainder, and by copies of the relevant instruments may be submitted to the Commissioner, who may, if conditions permit, supply the factor requested. If the Commissioner does not furnish the factor, the claim for deduction must be supported by a full statement of the computation of the present worth made in accordance with the principles set forth in the applicable paragraph of § 25.2512–5.

(b) Transfers subject to a condition or a power. If as of the date of the gift a transfer for charitable purposes is dependent upon the performance of some act or the happening of a precedent event in order that it might become effective, no deduction is allowable unless the possibility that the charitable transfer will not become effective is so remote as to be negligible. If an estate or interest passes to or is vested in charity on the date of the gift and the estate or interest would be defeated by the performance of some act or the happening of some event, the occurrence of which appeared to have been highly improbable on the date of the gift, the deduction is allowable. The deduction is not allowed in the case of a transfer in trust conveying a present interest in income if by reason of all the conditions and circumstances surrounding the transfer it appears that the charity may not receive the beneficial enjoyment of the interest. For example, assume that assets placed in trust consist of stock in a corporation the fiscal policies of which are controlled by the donor and his family, that the trustees and remaindermen are likewise members of the donor's family, and that the governing instrument contains no adequate guarantee of the requisite income to the charitable organization. Under such circumstances, no deduction will be allowed. Similarly, if the trustees were not members of the donor's family but had no power to sell or otherwise dispose of closely held stock, or otherwise insure the requisite enjoyment of income to the charitable organization, no deduction would be allowed.

SEC. 2522. Charitable and similar gifts. • • •

(b) Nonresidents. In the case of a nonresident not a citizen of the United States, there shall be allowed as a deduction the amount of all gifts made during such year to or for the use of—

(1) The United States, any State, Territory, or any political subdivision thereof, or the District of Columbia, for exclusively public purposes;

(2) A domestic corporation organized and operated exclusively for religious, charitable, scientific, literary, or educational purposes, including the encouragement of art and the prevention of cruelty to children or animals, no part of the net earnings of which inures to the benefit of any private shareholder or individual, and no substantial part of the activities of which is carrying on propaganda, or otherwise attempting, to influence legislation;

(3) A trust, or community chest, fund, or foundation, organized and operated exclusively for religious, charitable, scientific, literary, or educational purposes, including the encouragement of art and the prevention of cruelty to children or animals, no substantial part of the activities of which is carrying on propaganda, or otherwise attempting, to influence legislation; but only if such gifts are to be used within the United States exclusively for such purposes;

(4) A fraternal society, order, or association, operating under the lodge system, but only if such gifts are to be used within the United States exclusively for religious, charitable, scientific, literary, or educational purposes, including the encouragement of art and the prevention of cruelty to children or animals;

(5) Posts or organizations of war veterans, or auxiliary units or societies of any such posts or organization, if such posts, organizations, units, or societies are organized in the United States or any of its possessions, and if no part of their net earnings inures to the benefit of any private shareholder or individual.

§ 25.2522 (b)–1 Charitable and similar gifts, nonresidents not citizens. (a) The deduction for charitable and similar gifts, in the case of a nonresident who was not a citizen at the time he made the gifts, is governed by the same rules as those applying to gifts by citizens or residents, subject, however, to the following exceptions:

(1) If the gift is made to or for the use of a corporation, the corporation must be one created or organized under the laws of the United States or of any State or Territory thereof.

(2) If the gift is made to or for the use of a trust, community chest, fund or foundation, or a fraternal order or association operating under the lodge system, the gift must be for use within the United States exclusively for religious, charitable, scientific, literary or educational purposes, including encouragement of art and the prevention of cruelty to children or animals.

§ 25.2522 (c) Statutory provisions; charitable and similar gifts; disallowance of deductions in certain cases.

SEC. 2522. Charitable and similar gifts. • • •

(c) Disallowance of deductions in certain cases. For disallowance of certain charitable, etc., deductions otherwise allowable under this section, see sections 504 and 681.

§ 25.2522 (c)–1 Disallowance of charitable, etc., deductions because of prohibited transactions. (a) Sections 503 (e) and 681 (b) (5) provide that no deduction which would otherwise be allowable under section 2522 for a gift for religious, charitable, scientific, literary or educational purposes, including the encouragement of art and the prevention of cruelty to children or animals, is allowed if—

(1) The gift is made in trust and, for income tax purposes for the taxable year of the trust in which the gift is made, the deduction otherwise allowable to the trust under section 642 (c) is limited by section 681 (b) (1) by reason of the trust having engaged in a prohibited transaction described in section 681 (b) (2); or

(2) The gift is made to any corporation, community chest, fund or foundation which, for its taxable year in which the gift is made is not exempt from income tax under section 501 (a) by reason of having engaged in a prohibited transaction described in section 503 (c).

(b) For the purposes of section 503 (e) and section 681 (b) (5) the term "gift" includes any gift, contribution, or transfer without adequate consideration.

(c) Regulations relating to the income tax contain the rules for the determination of the taxable year of the trust for which the deduction under section 642 (c) is limited by section 681 (b), and for the determination of the taxable year of the organization for which an exemption is denied under section 503 (a). Generally, such taxable year is a taxable year subsequent to the taxable year during which the trust or organization has been notified by the Internal Revenue Service that it has engaged in a prohibited transaction. However, if the trust or organization during or prior to the taxable year entered into the prohibited transaction for the purpose of diverting its corpus or income from the charitable or other purposes by reason of which it is entitled to a deduction or exemption, and the transaction involves a substantial part of such income or corpus, then the deduction of the trust under section 642 (c) for such taxable year is limited by section 681 (b), or the exemption of the organization for such taxable year is denied under section 503 (a), whether or not the organization has previously received notification by the Internal Revenue Service that it has engaged in a prohibited transaction. In certain cases, the limitation of section 503 or 681 may be removed or the exemption may be reinstated for certain subsequent taxable years under the rules set forth in the income tax regulations under sections 503 and 681.

(d) In cases in which prior notification by the Internal Revenue Service is not required in order to limit the deduction of the trust under section 681 (b), or to deny exemption of the organization under section 503, the deduction otherwise allowable under § 25.2522 (a)–1 is not disallowed with respect to gifts made during the same taxable year of the trust or organization in which a prohibited transaction occurred, or in a prior taxable year, unless the donor or a member of his family was a party to the prohibited transaction. For purposes of the preceding sentence, the members of the donor's family include only his brothers and sisters (whether by whole or half blood), spouse, ancestors, and lineal descendants.

SEC. 2523. Gift to spouse—(a) In general. Where a donor who is a citizen or resident transfers during the calendar year by gift an interest in property to a donee who at the time of the gift is the donor's spouse, there shall be allowed as a deduction in computing taxable gifts for the calendar year an amount with respect to such interest equal to one-half of its value.

§ 25.2523 (a)–1 Gift to spouse; in general—(a) In general. In determining the amount of taxable gifts for the calendar year 1955 or any calendar year thereafter, in the case of a donor who was a citizen or resident of the United States at the time the gift was made, there may be deducted an amount equal to one-half the value of any property interest (except as otherwise provided in paragraph (b) of this section) transferred by gift to a donee who at the time of the gift was the donor's spouse. This deduction is referred to as the "marital deduction." No marital deduction is authorized with respect to a gift if the donor, at the time of the gift, was a nonresident not a citizen of the United States. However, if the donor was a citizen or resident of the United States at the time the gift was made, he is not deprived of the right to the marital deduction by reason of the fact that his spouse was a nonresident not a citizen. For convenience the donor's spouse is generally referred to in the feminine gender, but if the donor is a woman the reference is to her husband. The donor must submit such proof as is necessary to establish the right to the marital deduction, including any evidence requested by the district director.

(b) Deductible and nondeductible interests. The property interest transferred by a donor to his spouse fall within two general categories: (1) Those with respect to which the marital deduction is authorized, and (2) those with respect to which the deduction is not authorized. These categories are referred to in this section and §§ 25.2523 (b)–1 through 25.2523 (f)–1 as "deductible interests" and "nondeductible interests," respectively (see subdivision (ii) of this paragraph). Subject to the limitations set forth in §§ 25.2523 (f)–1 (relating to gifts of community property) and 25.2524–1 (relating to cases in which the total value of the gifts made to the donee spouse in any one year is less than $6,000), the marital deduction is equal to one-half of the aggregate value of the "deductible interests." A property interest transferred by a donor to his spouse is a "deductible interest" if it does not fall within one of the two following classes of "nondeductible interest":

(i) A property interest transferred by a donor to his spouse which is a "terminable interest," as defined in § 25.2523 (b)–1, is a "nondeductible interest" to the extent specified in that section.

(ii) Any property interest transferred by a donor to his spouse is a "nondeductible interest" to the extent that it is not included in the total amount of gifts made during the calendar year. See §§ 25.2515–1 (relating to tenancies by the entirety) and 25.2516–1 (relating to property settlements, followed by divorce) for some, but not necessarily all, of the situations in which property is transferred by a donor to his spouse and not included in the total amount of gifts made during the calendar year. If the total gifts made by a donor to his spouse during a calendar year have a value of $6,000 or more the amount of the marital deduction is determined without regard to the amount of the exclusion, if any, allowable. For example, assume that in 1955 a donor made a cash gift of $10,000 to his wife. No other gifts were made by the donor in 1955. The amount of the marital deduction is one-half of $10,000, or $5,000; the amount of the exclusion is $3,000; and the total amount of included gifts is $2,000. See § 25.2524–1 with respect to the amount of the marital deduction allowable where the total gifts made in a calendar year by a donor to his spouse have a value of less than $6,000.

(c) Valuation. If the income from property is made payable to the donor or another individual for life, or for a term of years, with remainder absolutely to the donor's spouse or to her estate, the marital deduction is equal to one-half the present value of the remainder. The present value of the remainder (that is, its value as of the date of gift) is to be determined in accordance with the rules stated in § 25.2512–5. For example, in a case to which § 25.2512–5 is applicable, if the donor's spouse is to receive $50,000 upon the death of a person 31 years of age, the present value of the remainder is $14,466. (See the example in § 25.2512–5 (d).) If the remainder is such that its value is to be determined by a special computation (see § 25.2512–5), a request for a specific factor, accompanied by a statement of the dates of birth of each person, the duration of whose life may affect the value of the remainder, and by copies of the relevant instruments may be submitted to the Commissioner who, if conditions permit, may supply the factor requested. If the Commissioner does not furnish the factor, the claim for deduction must be supported by a full statement of the computation of the present worth, made in accordance with the principles set forth in § 25.2512–5.

SEC. 2523. Gift to spouse. • • •

(b) Life estate or other terminable interest. Where, on the lapse of time, on the occurrence of an event or contingency, or on the failure of an event or contingency to occur, such interest transferred to the spouse will terminate or fail, no deduction shall be allowed with respect to such interest—

(1) If the donor retains in himself, or transfers or has transferred (for less than an adequate and full consideration in money or money's worth) to any person other than such donee spouse (or the estate of such spouse), an interest in such property, and if by reason of such retention or transfer the donor (or his heirs or assigns) or such person (or his heirs or assigns) may possess or enjoy any part of such property after such termination or failure of the interest transferred to the donee spouse; or

(2) If the donor immediately after the transfer to the donee spouse has a power to appoint an interest in such property which he can exercise (either alone or in conjunction with any person) in such manner that the appointee may possess or enjoy any part of such property after such termination or failure of the interest transferred to the donee spouse. For purposes of this paragraph, the donor shall be considered as having immediately after the transfer to the donee spouse such power to appoint even though such power cannot be exercised until after the lapse of time, upon the occurrence of an event or contingency, or on the failure of an event or contengency to occur.

An exercise or release at any time by the donor, either alone or in conjunction with any person, of a power to appoint an interest in property, even though not otherwise a transfer, shall, for purposes of paragraph (1), be considered as a transfer by him. Except as provided in subsection (e), where at the time of the transfer it is impossible to ascertain the particular person or persons who may receive from the donor an interest in property so transferred by him, such interest shall, for purposes of paragraph (1), be considered as transferred to a person other than the donee spouse.

§ 25.2523 (b)–1 Life estate or other terminable interest—(a) In general. (1) The provisions of section 2523 (b) generally prevent the allowance of the marital deduction with respect to certain property interests (referred to generally as "terminable interests," defined in subparagraph (3) of this paragraph), transferred to the donee spouse under the circumstances described in subparagraph (2) of this paragraph, unless the transfer comes within one of the exceptions set forth in § 25.2523 (d)–1, relating to certain joint interests, or § 25.2523 (e)–1, relating to certain life estates with powers of appointment.

(2) If a donor transfers a terminable interest in property to the donee spouse, the marital deduction is disallowed with respect to the transfer if the donor spouse also—

(i) Transferred an interest in the same property to another donee (see paragraph (b) of this section), or

(ii) Retained an interest in the same property in himself (see paragraph (c) of this section), or

(iii) Retained a power to appoint an interest in the same property (see paragraph (d) of this section).

Under these circumstances, if the other donee, the donor, or the possible appointee, may, by reason of the transfer or retention, possess or enjoy any part of the property after the termination or failure of the interest therein transferred to the donee spouse, no marital deduction may be taken with respect to the transfer to the donee spouse.

(3) For the purposes of this section, a distinction is to be drawn between "property," as such term is used in section 2523, and an "interest in property." The "property" referred to is the underlying property in which various interests exist; each such interest is not, for this purpose, to be considered as "property." A "terminable interest" in property is an interest which will terminate or fail on the lapse of time or on the occurrence or failure to occur of some contingency. Life estates, terms for years, annuities, patents, and copyrights are therefore terminable interests. However, a bond, note, or similar contractual obligation, the discharge of which would not have the effect of an annuity or term for years, is not a terminable interest.

(b) Interest in property which another donee may possess or enjoy. (1) Section 2523 (b) provides that no marital deduction shall be allowed with respect to the transfer to the donee spouse of a "terminable interest" in property, in case—

(i) The donor transferred (for less than an adequate and full consideration in money or money's worth) an interest in the same property to any person other than the donee spouse (or the estate of such spouse), and,

(ii) By reason of such transfer, such person (or his heirs or assigns) may possess or enjoy any part of such property after the termination or failure of the interest therein transferred to the donee spouse.

(2) In determining whether the donor transferred an interest in property to any person other than the donee spouse, it is immaterial whether the transfer to the person other than the donee spouse was made at the same time as the transfer to such spouse, or at any earlier time.

(3) Except as provided in § 25.2523 (e)–1, if at the time of the transfer it is impossible to ascertain the particular person or persons who may receive a property interest transferred by the donor, such interest is considered as transferred to a person other than the donee spouse for the purpose of section 2523 (b). This rule is particularly applicable in the case of the transfer of a property interest by the donor subject to a reserved power. (See § 25.2511–2.) Under this rule, any property interest over which the donor reserved a power to revest the beneficial title in himself, or over which the donor reserved the power to name new beneficiaries or to change the interests of the beneficiaries as between themselves, is for the purpose of section 2523 (b), considered as transferred to a "person other than the donee spouse." The following examples illustrate the application of the provisions of this subparagraph:

(i) If a donor transferred property in trust, naming his wife as the irrevocable income beneficiary for 10 years, and providing that, upon the expiration of that term, the corpus should be distributed among his wife and children in such proportions as the trustee should determine, the right to the corpus, for the purpose of the marital deduction, is considered as transferred to a "person other than the donee spouse."

(ii) If, in the above example, the donor had provided that, upon the expiration of the 10-year term, the corpus was to be paid to his wife, but also reserved the power to revest such corpus in himself, the right to corpus, for the purpose of the marital deduction, is considered as transferred to a "person other than the donee spouse."

(4) The term "person other than the donee spouse" includes the possible unascertained takers of a property interest, as, for example, the members of a class to be ascertained in the future. As another example, assume that the donor created a power of appointment over a property interest, which does not come within the purview of § 25.2523 (e)–1. In such a case, the term "person other than the donee spouse" refers to the possible appointees and takers in default (other than the spouse) of such property interest.

(5) An exercise or release at any time by the donor (either alone or in conjunction with any person) of a power to appoint an interest in property, even though not otherwise a transfer by him, shall, in determinng for the purpose of section 2523 (b) whether he transferred an interest in such property to a person other than the donee spouse, be considered as a transfer by him.

(6) The following examples illustrate the application of this paragraph. In each of them it is assumed that the property interest which the donor transferred to a person other than the donee spouse was not for an adequate and full consideration in money or money's worth:

(i) H (the donor) transferred real property to W (his wife) for life, with remainder to A and his heirs. No marital deduction may be taken with respect to the interest transferred to W, since it will terminate upon her death and A (or his heirs or assigns) will thereafter possess or enjoy the property.

(ii) H transferred property for the benefit of W and A. The income was payable to W for life and upon her death the principal was to be distributed to A or his issue. However, if A should die without issue, leaving W surviving, the principal was then to be distributed to W. No marital deduction may be taken with respect to the interest transferred to W, since it will terminate in the event of her death if A or his issue survive, and A or his issue will thereafter possess or enjoy the property.

(iii) H purchased for $100,000 a life annuity for W. If the annuity payments made during the life of W should be less than $100,000, further payments were to be made to A. No marital deduction may be taken with respect to the interest transferred to W, since A may possess or enjoy a part of the property following the termination of W's interest. If, however, the contract provided for no continuation of payments, and provided for no refund upon the death of W, or provided that any refund was to go to the estate of W, then a marital deduction may be taken with respect to the gift.

(iv) H transferred property to A for life with remainder to W provided W survives A, but if W predeceases A, the property is to pass to B and his heirs. No marital deduction may be taken with respect to the interest transferred to W.

(v) H transferred real property to A, reserving the right to the rentals of the property for a term of 20 years. H later transferred the right to the remaining rentals to W. The terms of the transfer satisfy the conditions prescribed in § 25.2523 (e)–1, so that the interest transferred is considered as transferred solely to W. However, no marital deduction may be taken with respect to the interest since it will terminate upon the expiration of the balance of the 20-year term and A will thereafter possess or enjoy the property.

(vi) H transferred a patent to W and A as tenants in common. In this case, the interest of W will terminate upon the expiration of the term of the patent, but possession and enjoyment of the property by A must necessarily cease at the same time. Therefore, since A's possession or enjoyment cannot outlast the termination of W's interest, the provisions of section 2523 (b) do not disallow the marital deduction with respect to the interest.

(c) Interest in property which the donor may possess or enjoy. (1) Section 2523 (b) provides that no marital deduction is allowed with respect to the transfer to the donee spouse of a "terminable interest" in property if—

(i) The donor retained in himself an interest in the same property, and

(ii) By reason of such retention, the donor (or his heirs or assigns) may possess or enjoy any part of the property after the termination or failure of the interest transferred to the donee spouse. However, as to a transfer to the donee spouse as sole joint tenant with the donor or as tenant by the entirety, see § 25.2523 (d)–1.

(2) In general, the principles illustrated by the examples under paragraph (b) of this section are applicable in determining whether the marital deduction may be taken with respect to a property interest transferred to the donee spouse subject to the retention by the donor of an interest in the same property. The application of this paragraph may be further illustrated by the following example:

Example. The donor purchased three annuity contracts for the benefit of his wife and himself. The first contract provided for payments to the wife for life, with refund to the donor in case the aggregate payments made to the wife were less than the cost of the contract. The second contract provided for payments to the donor for life, and then to the wife for life if she survived the donor. The third contract provided for payments to the donor and his wife for their joint lives and then to the survivor of them for life. No marital deduction may be taken with respect to the gifts resulting from the purchases of the contracts since, in the case of each contract, the donor may possess or enjoy a part of the property after the termination or failure of the interest transferred to the wife.

(d) Interest in property over which the donor retained a power to appoint. (1) Section 2523 (b) provides that no marital deduction is allowed with respect to the transfer to the donee spouse of a "terminable interest" in property if—

(i) The donor had, immediately after the transfer, a power to appoint an interest in the same property, and

(ii) The donor's power was exercisable (either alone or in conjunction with any person) in such manner that the appointee may possess or enjoy any part of the property after the termination or failure of the interest transferred to the donee spouse.

(2) For the purposes of section 2523 (b), the donor is to be considered as having, immediately after the transfer to the donee spouse, such a power to appoint even though the power cannot be exercised until after the lapse of time, upon the occurrence of an event or contingency, or upon the failure of an event or contingency to occur. It is immaterial whether the power retained by the donor was a taxable power of appointment under section 2514.

(3) The principles illustrated by the examples under paragraph (b) of this section are generally applicable in determining whether the marital deduction may be taken with respect to a property interest transferred to the donee spouse subject to retention by the donor of a power to appoint an interest in the same property. The application of this paragraph may be illustrated by the following example:

Example. The donor, having a power of appointment over certain property, appointed a life estate to his spouse. No marital deduction may be taken with respect to such transfer, since, if the retained power to appoint the remainder interest is exercised, the appointee thereunder may possess or enjoy the property after the termination or failure of the interest taken by the donee spouse.

SEC. 2523. Gift to spouse. • • •

(c) Interest in unidentified assets. Where the assets out of which, or the proceeds of which, the interest transferred to the donee spouse may be satisfied include a particular asset or assets with respect to which no deduction would be allowed if such asset or assets were transferred from the donor to such spouse, then the value of the interest transferred to such spouse shall, for purposes of subsection (a), be reduced by the aggregate value of such particular assets.

§ 25.2523 (c)–1 Interest in unidentified assets. (a) Section 2523 (c) provides that if an interest passing to a donee spouse may be satisfied out of a group of assets (or their proceeds) which include a particular asset that would be a nondeductible interest if it passed from the donor to his spouse, the value of the interest passing to the spouse is reduced, for the purpose of the marital deduction, by the value of the particular asset.

(b) In order for this section to apply, two circumstances must coexist, as follows:

(1) The property interest transferred to the donee spouse must be payable out of a group of assets. An example of a property interest payable out of a group of assets is a right to a share of the corpus of a trust upon its termination.

(2) The group of assets out of which the property interest is payable must include one or more particular assets which, if transferred by the donor to the donee spouse, would not qualify for the marital deduction. Therefore, section 2523 (c) is not applicable merely because a group of assets includes a terminable interest, but would only be applicable if the terminable interest were nondeductible under the provisions of § 25.2523 (b)–1.

(c) If the circumstances in the preceding paragraph are both present, the marital deduction with respect to such property interest may not exceed one-half of the excess, if any, of its value over the aggregate value of the particular asset or assets which, if transferred to the donee spouse, would not qualify for the marital deduction. The application of this section may be illustrated by the following example:

Example. H was absolute owner of a rental property and on July 1, 1950, transferred it to A by gift, reserving the income for a period of 20 years. On July 1, 1955, he created a trust to last for a period of 10 years. H was to receive the income from the trust and at the termination of the trust the trustee is to turn over to H's wife, W, property having a value of $100,000. The trustee has absolute discretion in deciding which properties in the corpus he shall turn over to W in satisfaction of the gift to her. The trustee received two items of property from H. Item (1) consisted of shares of corporate stock. Item (2) consisted of the right to receive the income from the rental property during the unexpired portion of the 20-year term. Assume that at the termination of the trust on July 1, 1965, the value of the right to the rental income for the then unexpired term of 5 years (item 2) will be $30,000. Since item (2) is a nondeductible interest and the trustee can turn it over to W in partial satisfaction of her gift, only $70,000 of the $100,000 receivable by her on July 1, 1965, will be considered as property with respect to which a marital deduction is allowable. The present value on July 1, 1955, of the right to receive $70,000 at the end of 10 years is $49,573.93 (70,000×.708199). The value of the property qualifying for the marital deduction, therefore, is $49,573.93, and a marital deduction is allowed for one-half of that amount, or $24,786.97.

SEC. 2523. Gift to spouse. • • •

(d) Joint interests. If the interest is transferred to the donee spouse as sole joint tenant with the donor or as tenant by the entirety, the interest of the donor in the property which exists solely by reason of the possibility that the donor may survive the donee spouse, or that there may occur a severance of the tenancy, shall not be considered for purposes of subsection (b) as an interest retained by the donor in himself.

§ 25.2523 (d)–1 Joint interests. Section 2523 (d) provides that if a property interest is transferred to the donee spouse as sole joint tenant with the donor or as a tenant by the entirety, the interest of the donor in the property which exists solely by reason of the possibility that the donor may survive the donee spouse, or that there may occur a severance of the tenancy, is not for the purposes of section 2523 (b), to be considered as an interest retained by the donor in himself. Under this provision, the fact that the donor may, as surviving tenant, possess or enjoy the property after the termination of the interest transferred to the donee spouse does not preclude the allowance of the marital deduction with respect to the latter interest. Thus, if the donor purchased real property in the name of himself and wife as tenants by the entirety, or as joint tenants with right of survivorship and, pursuant to the provisions of section 2515 (c), elected to treat such transaction as a completed gift in the calendar year effected, a marital deduction equal to one-half the value of the interest of the donee spouse in such property may be taken. See § 25.2523 (b)–1 (c), and section 2524.

§ 25.2523 (e) Statutory provisions; gift to spouse; life estate with power of appointment in donee spouse.

SEC. 2523. Gift to spouse. • • •

(e) Life estate with power of appointment in donee spouse. Where the donor transfers an interest in property, if by such transfer his spouse is entitled for life to all of the income from the entire interest, or all the income from a specific portion thereof, payable annually or at more frequent intervals, with power in the donee spouse to appoint the entire interest, or such specific portion (exercisable in favor of such donee spouse, or of the estate of such donee spouse, or in favor of either, whether or not in each case the power is exercisable in favor of others), and with no power in any other person to appoint any part of such interest, or such portion, to any person other than the donee spouse—

(1) The interest, or such portion, so transferred shall, for purposes of subsection (a) be considered as transferred to the donee spouse, and

(2) No part of the interest, or such portion, so transferred shall, for purposes of subsection (b) (1), be considered as retained in the donor or transferred to any person other than the donee spouse.

This subsection shall apply only if, by such transfer, such power in the donee spouse to appoint the interest, or such portion, whether exercisable by will or during life, is exercisable by such spouse alone and in all events.

§ 25.2523 (e)–1 Marital deduction; life estate with power of appointment in donee—(a) In general. Section 2523 (e) provides that if an interest in property is transferred by a donor to his spouse (whether or not in trust) and the spouse is entitled for life to all the income from the entire interest or all the income from a specific portion of the entire interest, with a power in her to appoint the entire interest or the specific portion, the interest transferred to her is a deductible interest, to the extent that it satisfies all five of the conditions set forth below (see paragraph (b) of this section if one or more of the conditions is satisfied as to only a portion of the interest):

(1) The donee spouse must be entitled for life to all of the income from the entire interest or a specific portion of the entire interest, or to a specific portion of all the income from the entire interest.

(2) The income payable to the donee spouse must be payable annually or at more frequent intervals.

(3) The donee spouse must have the power to appoint the entire interest or the specific portion to either herself or her estate.

(4) The power in the donee spouse must be exercisable by her alone and (whether exercisable by will or during life) must be exercisable in all events.

(5) The entire interest or the specific portion must not be subject to a power in any other person to appoint any part to any person other than the donee spouse.

(b) Specific portion; deductible amount. If either the right to income or the power of appointment given to the donee spouse pertains only to a specific portion of a property interest, the portion of the interest which qualifies as a deductible interest is limited to the extent that the rights in the donee spouse meet all of the five conditions described in paragraph (a) of this section. While the rights over the income and the power must coexist as to the same interest in property, it is not necessary that the rights over the income or the power as to such interest be in the same proportion. However, if the rights over income meeting the required conditions set forth in paragraph (a) (1) and (2) extend over a smaller share of the property interest than the share with respect to which the power of appointment requirements set forth in paragraph (a) (3) through (5) are satisfied, the deductible interest is limited to the smaller share. Conversely, if a power of appointment meeting all the requirements extends to a smaller portion of the property interest than the portion over which the income rights pertain, the deductible interest cannot exceed the value of the portion to which such power of appointment applies. Thus, if the donor gives to the donee spouse the right to receive annually all of the income from a particular property interest and a power of appointment meeting the specifications prescribed in paragraph (a) (3) through (5) above as to only one-half of the property interest, then only one-half of the property interest is treated as a deductible interest. Correspondingly, if the income interest of the spouse satisfying the requirements extends to only one-fourth of the property interest and a testamentary power of appointment satisfying the requirements extends to all of the property interest, then only one-fourth of the interest in the spouse qualifies as a deductible interest. Further, if the donee spouse has no right to income from a specific portion of a property interest but a testamentary power of appointment which meets the necessary conditions over the entire interest, then none of the interest qualifies for the deduction. In addition, if, from the time of the transfer, the donee spouse has a power of appointment meeting all of the required conditions over three-fourths of the entire property interest and the prescribed income rights over the entire interest, but with a power in another person to appoint one-half of the entire interest, the value of the interest in the donee spouse over only one-half of the property interest will qualify as a deductible interest.

(c) Definition of "specific portion". A partial interest in property is not treated as a specific portion of the entire interest unless the rights of the donee spouse in income and as to the power constitute a fractional or percentile share of a property interest so that such interest or share in the donee spouse reflects its proportionate share of the increment or decline in the whole of the property interest to which the income rights and the power relate. Thus, if the right of the spouse to income and the power extend to one-half or a specified percentage of the property, or the equivalent, the interest is considered as a specific portion. On the other hand, if the annual income of the spouse is limited to a specific sum, or if she has a power to appoint only a specific sum out of a larger fund, the interest is not a deductible interest. Even though the rights in the donee spouse may not be expressed in terms of a definite fraction or percentage, a deduction may be allowable if it is shown that the effect of local law is to give the spouse rights which are identical to those she would have acquired if the size of the share had been expressed in terms of a definite fraction or percentage. The following examples illustrate the application of this and the preceding paragraphs of this section:

Example (1). The donor transferred to a trustee 500 identical shares of X Company stock. He provided that during the lifetime of the donee spouse the trustee should pay her annually one-half of the trust income or $6,000, whichever is the larger. The spouse was also given a general power of appointment, exercisable by her last will over the sum of $160,000 or over three-fourths of the trust corpus, whichever should be of larger value. Since there is no certainty that the trust income will not vary from year to year, for purposes of paragraphs (a) and (b) of this section, an annual payment of a specified sum, such as the $6,000 provided for in this case, is not considered as representing the income from a definite fraction or a specific portion of the entire interest if that were the extent of the spouse's interest. However, since the spouse is to receive annually at least one-half of the trust income, she will, for purposes of paragraphs (a) and (b) of this section, be considered as receiving all of the income from one-half of the entire interest in the stock. Inasmuch as there is no certainty that the value of the stock will be the same on the date of the donee spouse's death as it was on the date of the transfer to the trustee, for purposes of paragraphs (a) and (b) of this section, a specified sum, such as the $160,000 provided for in this case, is not considered to be a definite fraction of the entire interest. However, since the donee spouse has a general power of appointment over at least three-fourths of the trust corpus, she is considered as having a general power of appointment over three-fourths of the entire interest in the stock.

Example (2). The donor transferred to a trustee an office building and 250 identical shares of Y Company stock. He provided that during the lifetime of the donee spouse the trustee should pay her annually three-fourths of the trust income. The spouse was given a general power of appointment, exercisable by will, over the office building and 100 shares of the stock. By the terms of the trust instrument the donee spouse is given all the income from a definite fraction of the entire interest in the office building and in the stock. She also has a general power of appointment over the entire interest in the office building. However, since the amount of property represented by a single share of stock would be altered if the corporation split its stock, issued stock dividends, made a distribution of capital, etc., a power to appoint 100 shares at the time of the donee sponse's death is not the same necessarily as a power to appoint $\frac{100}{250}$ of the entire interest which the 250 shares represented on the date of the gift. If it is shown in this case that the effect of local law is to give the spouse a general power to appoint not only the 100 shares designated by the donor but also $\frac{100}{250}$ of any shares or amounts which are distributed by the corporation and included in the corpus, the requirements of this paragraph will be satisfied and the donee spouse will be considered as having a general power to appoint $\frac{100}{250}$ of the entire interest in the 250 shares.

(d) Definition of "entire interest". Since a marital deduction is allowed for each qualifying separate interest in property transferred by the donor to the donee spouse, for purposes of paragraphs (a) and (b) of this section, each property interest with respect to which the donee spouse received some rights is considered separately in determining whether her rights extend to the entire interest or to a specific portion of the entire interest. A property interest which consists of several identical units of property (such as a block of 250 shares of stock, whether the ownership is evidenced by one or several certificates) is considered one property interest, unless certain of the units are to be segregated and accorded different treatment, in which case each segregated group of items is considered a separate property interest. The bequest of a specified sum of money consitutes the bequest of a separate property interest if immediately following the transfer and thenceforth it, and the investments made with it, must be so segregated as to permit its identification as a separate item of property. The application of this paragraph may be illustrated by the following examples:

Example (1). The donor transferred to a trustee three adjoining farms, Blackacre, Whiteacre, and Greenacre. The trust instrument provided that during the lifetime of the donee spouse the trustee should pay her all of the income from the trust. Upon her death, all of Blackacre, a one-half interest in Whiteacre, and a one-third interest in Greenacre were to be distributed to the person or persons appointed by her in her will. The donee spouse is considered as being entitled to all of the income from the entire interest in Blackacre, all of the income from the entire interest in Whiteacre, and all of the income from the entire interest in Greenacre. She is also considered as having a power of appointment over the entire interest in Blackacre, over one-half of the entire interest in Whiteacre, and over one-third of the entire interest in Greenacre.

Example (2). The donor transferred $250,000 to C, as trustee. C is to invest the money and pay all of the income from the investments to W, the donor's spouse, annually. W was given a general power, exercisable by will, to appoint half of the corpus of the trust. Here, immediately following establishment of the trust, the $250,000 will be sufficiently segregated to permit its identification as a separate item, and the $250,000 will constitute an entire property interest. Therefore, W has a right to income and a power of appointment such that one-half of the entire interest is a deductible interest.

Example (3). The donor transferred 100 shares of Z Corporation stock to D, as trustee. W, the donor's spouse, is to receive all of the income of the trust annually and is given a general power, exercisable by will, to appoint out of the trust corpus the sum of $25,000. In this case the $25,000 is not, immediately following establishment of the trust, sufficiently segregated to permit its identification as a separate item of property in which the donee spouse has the entire interest. Therefore, the $25,000 does not constitute the entire interest in a property for the purpose of paragraphs (a) and (b) of this section.

(e) Application of local law. In determining whether or not the conditions set forth in paragraph (a) (1) through (5) of this section are satisfied by the instrument of transfer, regard is to be had to the applicable provisions of the law of the jurisdiction under which the interest passes and, if the transfer is in trust, the applicable provisions of the law governing the administration of the trust. For example, silence of a trust instrument as to the frequency of payment will not be regarded as a failure to satisfy the condition set forth in paragraph (a) (2) of this section that income must be payable to the donee spouse annually or more frequently unless the applicable law permits payment to be made less frequently than annually. The principles outlined in this paragraph and paragraph (f) which are applied in determining whether transfers in trust meet such conditions are equally applicable in ascertaining whether, in the case of interests not in trust, the donee spouse has the equivalent in rights over income and over the property.

(f) Right to income. (1) If an interest is transferred in trust, the donee spouse is "entitled for life to all of the income from the entire interest or a specific portion of the entire interest," for the purpose of the condition set forth in paragraph (a) (1) of this section, if the effect of the trust is to give her substantially that degree of beneficial enjoyment of the trust property during her life which the principles of the law of trusts accord to a person who is unqualifiedly designated as the life beneficiary of a trust. Such degree of enjoyment is given only if it was the donor's intention, as manifested by the terms of the trust instrument and the surrounding circumstances, that the trust should produce for the donee spouse during her life such an income, or that the spouse should have such use of the trust property as is consistent with the value of the trust corpus and with its preservation. The designation of the spouse as sole income beneficiary for life of the entire interest or a specific portion of the entire interest will be sufficient to qualify the trust unless the terms of the trust and the surrounding circumstances considered as a whole evidence an intention to deprive the spouse of the requisite degree of enjoyment. In determining whether a trust evidences that intention, the treatment required or permitted with respect to individual items must be considered in relation to the entire system provided for the administration of the trust.

(2) If the over-all effect of a trust is to give to the donee spouse such enforceable rights as will preserve to her the requisite degree of enjoyment, it is immaterial whether that result is effected by rules specifically stated in the trust instrument, or, in their absence, by the rules for the management of the trust property and the allocation of receipts and expenditures supplied by the State law. For example, where the State law does not provide for amortization of bond premium, a provision in the trust instrument for amortization by appropriate periodic charges to interest will not disqualify the interest transferred in trust.

(3) In the case of a trust, the rules to be applied by the trustee in allocation of receipts and expenses between income and corpus must be considered in relation to the nature and expected productivity of the assets transferred in trust, the nature and frequency of occurrence of the expected receipts, and any provisions as to change in the form of investments. If it is evident from the nature of the trust assets and the rules provided for management of the trust that the allocation to income of such receipts as rents, ordinary cash dividends and interest will give to the spouse the substantial enjoyment during life required by the statute, provisions that such receipts as stock dividends and proceeds from the conversion of trust assets shall be treated as corpus will not disqualify the interest transferred in trust. Similarly, provision for a depletion charge against income in the case of trust assets which are subject to depletion will not disqualify the interest transferred in trust, unless the effect is to deprive the spouse of the requisite beneficial enjoyment. The same principle is applicable in the case of depreciation, trustees' commissions, and other charges.

(4) Provisions granting administrative powers to the trustees will not have the effect of disqualifying an interest transferred in trust unless the grant of powers evidences the intention to deprive the donee spouse of the beneficial enjoyment required by the statute. Such an intention will not be considered to exist if the entire terms of the instrument are such that the local courts will impose reasonable limitations upon the exercise of the powers. Among the powers which if subject to reasonable limitations will not disqualify the interest transferred in trust are the power to determine the charges which shall be made against income and corpus, the power to apply the income or corpus for the benefit of the spouse, and the power to retain the assets transferred to the trust. For example, a power to retain trust assets which consist substantially of unproductive property will not disqualify the interest if the applicable rules for the administration of the trust require, or permit the spouse to require, that the trustee either make the property productive or convert it within a reasonable time. Nor will such a power disqualify the interest if the applicable rules for administration of the trust require the trustee to use the degree of judgment and care in the exercise of the power which a prudent man would use if he were owner of the trust assets. Further, a power to retain a residence for the spouse or other property for her personal use will not disqualify the interest transferred in trust.

(5) An interest transferred in trust will not satisfy the condition set forth in paragraph (a) (1) of this section that the donee spouse be entitled to all the income if the primary purpose of the trust is to safeguard property without providing the spouse with the required beneficial enjoyment. Such trusts include not only trusts which expressly provide for the accumulation of the income but also trusts which indirectly accomplish a similar purpose. For example, assume that the corpus of a trust consists substantially of property which is not likely to be income producing during the life of the donee spouse and that the spouse cannot compel the trustee to convert or otherwise deal with the property as described in subparagraph (4) of this paragraph. An interest transferred to such a trust will not qualify unless the applicable rules for the administration require, or permit the spouse to require, that the trustee provide the required beneficial enjoyment, such as by payments to the spouse out of other assets of the trust.

(6) If a trust may be terminated during the life of the donee spouse, under her exercise of a power of appointment or by distribution of the corpus to her, the interest transferred in trust satisfies the condition set forth in paragraph (a) (1) of this section, that the spouse be entitled to all the income, if the spouse is entitled to the income until the trust terminates.

(7) An interest transferred in trust fails to satisfy the condition set forth in paragraph (a) (1) of this section, that the spouse be entitled to all the income, to the extent that the income is required to be accumulated in whole or in part or may be accumulated in the discretion of any person other than the donee spouse; to the extent that the consent of any person other than the donee spouse is required as a condition precedent to distribution of the income; or to the extent that any person other than the donee spouse has the power to alter the terms of the trust so as to deprive her of her right to the income. An interest transferred in trust will not fail to satisfy the condition that the spouse be entitled to all the income merely because its terms provide that the right of the donee spouse to the income shall not be subject to assignment, alienation, pledge, attachment or claims of creditors.

(8) In the case of an interest transferred in trust, the terms "entitled for life" and "payable annually or at more frequent intervals", as used in the conditions set forth in paragraph (a) (1) and (2) of this section, require that under the terms of the trust the income referred to must be currently (at least annually; see paragraph (e) of this section above) distributable to the spouse or that she must have such command over the income that it is virtually hers. Thus, the conditions in paragraph (a) (1) and (2) of this section are satisfied in this respect if, under the terms of the trust instrument, the donee spouse has the right exercisable annually (or more frequently) to require distribution to herself of the trust income, and otherwise the trust income is to be accumulated and added to corpus. Similarly, as respects the income for the period between the last distribution date and the date of the spouse's death, it is sufficient if that income is subject to the spouse's power to appoint. Thus, if the trust instrument provides that income accrued or undistributed on the date of the spouse's death is to be disposed of as if it had been received after her death, and if the spouse has a power of appointment over the trust corpus, the power necessarily extends to the undistributed income.

(g) Power of appointment in donee spouse. (1) The conditions set forth in paragraph (a) (3) and (4) of this section, that is, that the donee spouse must have a power of appointment exercisable in favor of herself or her estate and exercisable alone and in all events, are not met unless the power of the donee spouse to appoint the entire interest or a specific portion of it falls within one of the following categories:

(i) A power so to appoint fully exercisable in her own favor at any time during her life (as, for example, an unlimited power to invade); or

(ii) A power so to appoint exercisable in favor of her estate. Such a power, if exercisable during life, must be fully exercisable at any time during life, or, if exercisable by will, must be fully exercisable irrespective of the time of her death; or

(iii) A combination of the powers described under subdivisions (i) and (ii) of this subparagraph. For example, the donee spouse may, until she attains the age of 50 years, have a power to appoint to herself and thereafter have a power to appoint to her estate. However, the condition that the spouse's power must be exercisable in all events is not satisfied unless irrespective of when the donee spouse may die the entire interest or a specific portion of it will at the time of her death be subject to one power or the other.

(2) The power of the donee spouse must be a power to appoint the entire interest or a specific portion of it as unqualified owner (and free of the trust if a trust is involved, or free of the joint tenancy if a joint tenancy is involved) or to appoint the entire interest or a specific portion of it as a part of her estate (and free of the trust if a trust is involved), that is, in effect, to dispose of it to whomsoever she pleases. Thus, if the donor transferred property to a son and the donee spouse as joint tenants with right of survivorship and under local law the donee spouse has a power of severance exercisable without consent of the other joint tenant, and by exercising this power could acquire a one-half interest in the property as a tenant in common, her power of severance will satisfy the conditions set forth in paragraph (a) (3) of this section that she have a power of appointment in favor of herself or her estate. However, if the donee spouse entered into a binding agreement with the donor to exercise the power only in favor of their issue, that condition is not met. An interest transferred in trust will not be regarded as failing to satisfy the condition merely because takers in default of the donee spouse's exercise of the power are designated by the donor. The donor may provide that, in default of exercise of the power, the trust shall continue for an additional period.

(3) A power is not considered to be a power exercisable by a donee spouse alone and in all events as required by paragraph (a) (4) of this section if the exercise of the power in the donee spouse to appoint the entire interest or a specific portion of it to herself or to her estate requires the joinder or consent of any other person. The power is not "exercisable in all events", if it can be terminated during the life of the donee spouse by any event other than her complete exercise or release of it. Further, a power is not "exercisable in all events" if it may be exercised for a limited purpose only. For example, a power which is not exercisable in the event of the spouse's remarriage is not exercisable in all events. Likewise, if there are any restrictions, either by the terms of the instrument or under applicable local law, on the exercise of a power to consume property (whether or not held in trust) for the benefit of the spouse, the power is not exercisable in all events. Thus, if a power of invasion is exercisable only for the spouse's support, or only for her use, the power is not exercisable in all events. In order for a power of invasion to be exercisable in all events, the donee spouse must have the unrestricted power exercisable at any time during her life to use all or any part of the property subject to the power, and to dispose of it in any manner, including the power to dispose of it by gift (whether or not she has power to dispose of it by will).

(4) If the power is in existence at all times following the transfer of the interest, limitations of a formal nature will not disqualify the interest. Examples of formal limitations on a power exercisable during life are requirements that an exercise must be in a particular form, that it must be filed with a trustee during the spouse's life, that reasonable notice must be given, or that reasonable intervals must elapse between successive partial exercises. Examples of formal limitations on a power exercisable by will are that it must be exercised by a will executed by the donee spouse after the donor's death or that exercise must be by specific reference to the power.

(5) If the donee spouse has the requisite power to appoint to herself or her estate, it is immaterial that she also has one or more lesser powers. Thus, if she has a testamentary power to appoint to her estate, she may also have a limited power of withdrawal or of appointment during her life. Similarly, if she has an unlimited power of withdrawal, she may have a limited testamentary power.

(h) Existence of a power in another. Paragraph (a) (5) of this section provides that a transfer described in paragraph (a) is nondeductible to the extent that the donor created a power in the trustee or in any other person to appoint a part of the interest to any person other than the donee spouse. However, only powers in other persons which are in opposition to that of the donee spouse will cause a portion of the interest to fail to satisfy the condition set forth in paragraph (a) (5) of this section. Thus, a power in a trustee to distribute corpus to or for the benefit of the donee spouse will not disqualify the trust. Similarly, a power to distribute corpus to the spouse for the support of minor children will not disqualify the trust if she is legally obligated to support such children. The application of this paragraph may be illustrated by the following examples:

Example (1). Assume that a donor created a trust, designating his spouse as income beneficiary for life with an unrestricted power in the spouse to appoint the corpus during her life. The donor further provided that in the event the donee spouse should die without having exercised the power, the trust should continue for the life of his son with a power in the son to appoint the corpus. Since the power in the son could become exercisable only after the death of the donee spouse, the interest is not regarded as failing to satisfy the condition set forth in paragraph (a) (5) of this section.

Example (2). Assume that the donor created a trust, designating his spouse as income beneficiary for life and as donee of a power to appoint by will the entire corpus. The donor further provided that the trustee could distribute 30 percent of the corpus to the donor's son when he reached the age of 35 years. Since the trustee has a power to appoint 30 percent of the entire interest for the benefit of a person other than the donee spouse, only 70 percent of the interest placed in trust satisfied the condition set forth in paragraph (a) (5) of this section. If, in this case, the donee spouse had a power, exercisable by her will, to appoint only one-half of the corpus as it was constituted at the time of her death, it should be noted that only 35 percent of the interest placed in the trust would satisfy the condition set forth in paragraph (a) (3) of this section.

SEC. 2523. Gift to spouse. • • •

(f) Community property. (1) A deduction otherwise allowable under this section shall be allowed only to the extent that the transfer can be shown to represent a gift of property which is not, at the time of the gift, held as community property under the law of any State, Territory, or possession of the United States, or of any foreign country.

(2) For purposes of paragraph (1), community property (except property which is considered as community property solely by reason of paragraph (3)) shall not be considered as "held as community property" if the entire value of such property (and not merely one-half thereof) is treated as the amount of the gift.
